Board Acts To Retire Callahan at His Request

Commission May Accede Monday; Barrett Expected To Be Police Chief

The Police and Firemen's Retirement Board yesterday recommended full retirement of ailing Police Superintendent Harvey G. Callahan, at his own request.

District Commissioners are expected to name Police Inspector Robert J. Barrett, chief of the Detective Bureau, to succeed to the superintendent's post, according to informed local officials.

Major Callahan, seriously ill since January, made his request official from his sickbed at home when he signed a formal waiver asking to be excused from personal appearance at the board's hearing. The action was presaged Thursday when his wife held a private consultation with District Commissioner John Russell Young.

The retirement board, in special meeting yesterday afternoon at police headquarters, declared Major Callahan "disabled for active duty, by disease and physical disability incurred in the line of duty."

Due To Act Monday

District Commissioners are not expected to act formally on the board's recommendations until Monday. Major Callahan's retirement will probably then be made effective as of July 1. Acceptance of the board's recommendations would make Major Callahan eligible to retire at half pay, highest rate obtainable under present rules.

Mrs. Callahan told Commissioner Young on Thursday, that she and her husband wished that he be retired as soon as possible. She asked officials to act promptly on the request, despite the Commissioner's offer to keep him at the helm for duration of his sickness.

On the verge of tears, Mrs. Callahan yesterday told a reporter that her husband had hoped to recover in time to return to duty July 1.

"But he's been feeling worse and worse the past three or four days," she explained. "Now, he doesn't think it right to hold his position in prolonged sickness. He's awfully discouraged (about his health)."

Two Operations

He has had two major operations since illness forced him finally to leave his desk early in February. Since then, it was often reported he intended to retire but he scotched such rumors on May 24 when he said he'd be back to duty July 1.

Yesterday's actions were carried out in quiet, police efficiency, but there was drama with it all in

Youth Grilled After Payroll Holdup Report

Messenger Relates Slugging and Theft Of $3790 He Carried

A 19-year-old messenger, who told police he was attacked and robbed of a $3790 payroll, was booked at police headquarters last night. Detectives said they were questioning him further.

Earlier the youth, Alan Olson, of 505 6th st. se., had reported empty-handed to the fourth floor payroll offices of the Credit Bureau, Inc., 1221 G st. nw., and gasped, "My money's gone."

A three-months' employe of the firm, the boy told his fellow workers a youth of 20 or so assaulted him as he entered the building. Olson said he was carrying a black satchel full of cash at the time.

He described his assailant as a figure in long-sleeved brown sweater and baggy pants who dragged him down a flight of stairs into the basement. Olson told police another youth then hit him on the forehead with a lead pipe.

The two escaped up a back stairs and into an alley, taking the money and bag with them, Olson said.

Isadora Walls, 31-year-old elevator operator, of 1303 57th ave. ne., said she was in the restroom in the basement when Olson knocked on the door and pleaded:

"Take me upstairs quick; I'm sick."

Miss Wells said Olson was sitting in a corner of the basement, hunched over and coughing, when she first noticed him.

According to John K. Althaus, general manager of the firm, the youth was not the regular payroll messenger but was serving for a 25-year employe on vacation. He said the boy "came to us on the very best recommendations." His record shows he was a Navy veteran, Althaus said.

Train Derailed, 2 Hurt

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 19 (AP).—Two crewmen were injured late today as the locomotive and 20 cars of a Louisville & Nashville freight train derailed near Butler, Ky., Superintendent A. M. Stevenson of the L. & N.'s Cincinnati division reported. Witnesses said at least 30 head of cattle were killed.

Marshall Aid Plan Arouses Red 'Interest'

Russians Curious About Conditions Of Credits, U. N. Role, Tass Says

London, June 20 (AP).—Russia is "considering" the Marshall plan for aid to Europe at the urgent request of Britain and France for action by Europe's three chief powers, the Moscow radio said tonight.

The broadcast, quoting the official news agency Tass, said the Soviet government is "of course interested" in receiving more information on the proposal of United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall, but thus far has received insufficient data on the plan.

The agency declared that while the American press had described the plan as involving several billion dollars, it had remained silent "about the conditions of the credits or about the relation of the United Nations to this question."

Bevin Assures U. N.

(At Lake Success, N. Y., today, Secretary-General Trygve Lie of the United Nations received a message of assurance from British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin that Anglo-French talks on the Marshall plan were in no way an attempt to bypass the United Nations. However, Bevin made no promises of a strong U. N. role in the program, a spokesman indicated, nor did he make any suggestions for bringing the U. N. into the picture.)

Tass quoted a French note to the Kremlin as saying that the initiative in considering the Marshall proposal "in the opinion of the British and French governments must belong to the three chief European powers."

The delivery of the British and French notes followed verbal representatations to the Soviet government by British Ambassador Sir Maurice Peterson and M. P. Charpentier, French charge d'affaires, the broadcast said, at which neither was able to satisfy the request of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov for more information concerning the plan.

Others Remain Cautious

The notes said, in effect, that no more information was available, but that Britain and France wished to point out, in the words of the French government:

"Both governments consider the economic situation of Europe makes the rapid drafting of joint programs absolutely essential."

The Tass broadcast was the first inkling to the world that the Soviet government would consider the Marshall proposal as invited to do so by Bevin and Bidault.

Meanwhile, hopes for Soviet participation in the plan brightened here, but Scandinavian and Central European countries remained cautious in committing themselves.

An Associated Press survey of European capitals indicated the proposal would run into difficulties and might come to nothing unless Soviet participation were forthcoming.

HouseUnit toProbe Continuing Oil Exports to Russia

By International News Service

A House Armed Services Subcommittee decided yesterday to investigate continuing petroleum exports to Soviet Russia and other countries despite the domestic oil shortage now facing the United States.

The group decided to act following renewed demands in the House that oil exports to Russia be halted.

Representative Shafer (R. Mich.), chairman of the group, summoned Thomas C. Blaisdell, of the Office of International Trade, to appear before the subcommittee today.

The Commerce Department official will be questioned on why controls have not been restored on the export of oil and gasoline in view of reports that a shortage is threatened in this country.

Death Sentence Mandatory

Wilson Jury Finds Him Guilty, Strongly Recommends Mercy

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Floyd Wilson, 32-year-old Riverdale carpenter, yesterday was found guilty of first-degree murder.

The conviction was for the slaying of Milton E. Lowe, 48, in an attempted holdup outside the Giant Food Market, 3924 Minnesota ave. ne., last February 8.

Although the verdict carries a mandatory sentence of death, the District Court jury of nine men and three women gave Wilson a ray of hope by making a "strong recommendation for mercy."

Defense Attorney Charles E. Ford said he would file a petition for commutation immediately after Wilson is sentenced, probably next Friday. He said he would not ask a new trial.

After the jury gave its verdict at 3:50 p. m., following 4 hours and 10 minutes of deliberation, Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff said, "The Court will take cognizance of the recommendation for mercy. The death sentence is mandatory and I must impose it. But I'll convey the recommendation to the Attorney General of the United States and to the President. I have no doubt your strong recommendation will be given a good deal of weight by the President."

Wilson walked into court to hear the verdict, his face gaunt and haggard. He has lost 22 pounds since his arrest February 10. He turned and gave a commiserating glance toward his wife who sat sobbing on a spectators' bench. His facial muscles remained taut as the word "guilty" was pro-

Over Procedure

Reds Leave U. N. Meeting But Return

Lake Success, N. Y., June 20 (INS).—Russian representatives walked out of a United Nations meeting on a world police force today, and tried unsuccessfully to block another meeting on Trieste.

But by the end of the day, the Soviets were back in the fold, with Russian Delegate Andrei Gromyko attending the Trieste meeting to which he objected.

The sensitive and unpredictable Russians kept other delegates jittery throughout a day which brought these developments:

1. The Russian delegates walked out of a meeting of the U. N. Military Staff Committee, which is composed of Big Five representatives. The Russians objected to procedure set by American Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, chairman. Representatives of the four other nations on the committee finished their work without the Russians and the incident appeared closed.

2. Gromyko tried to keep the Security Council from discussing the appointment of a governor of Trieste. He argued that this problem should not be tackled until all the Big Four ratify the Italian

176 Millions Added to Navy Expense Fund

Senate Unit Revisions Bring Actual Reduction In '48 Appropriation

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Senate Naval Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday granted the Navy an additional 176 millions for operating expenses next year—restoring most of the cuts in the active fleet voted by the House.

At the same time, however, the group canceled previously appropriated naval funds and took other action to reduce actual expenditures in 1948 even below the House total.

Would Increase Personnel

Chairman Saltonstall (R., Mass.) told reporters the bill now will provide for:

1. An average of 43,000 officers and 395,000 enlisted men next year—an increase of 1000 officers and 40,000 men over the House allowance.

2. Maintenance of 265 combatant ships with full complements and 28 others with reduced-strength crews in the active fleets. The House had allowed money for 269 operating ships—20 without full crews.

3. A total of 5893 operating

Bad for Labor And Employers, President Tells Radio Audience

By The Associated Press

President Truman followed up his veto of the Taft-Hartley Labor Control bill last night with an assertion to the people that the measure is "bad for labor, bad for management, bad for the country."

In a radio speech he repeated his assertion that he would sign a good bill but that the proposal sent him by the Republican-controlled Congress is a "shocking piece of legislation."

"Under no circumstances could I have signed this bill," he declared.

"Unfair to Working People"

The President described the measure which the House approved over his veto as "unfair to the working people of this country.

"It clearly abuses the right, which millions of our citizens now enjoy, to join together and bargain with their employers for fair wages and fair working conditions," he said.

Asserting that "this is no innocent bill," he said its restrictions against labor "gor far beyond what our people have been led to believe."

He emphasized in his broadcast over all the maor networks that he had hoped Congress "would send me a labor bill I couuld sign."

Says Legislation Needed

"We need legislation to correct abuses in the field of labor relations," he said.

Turning again to the Taft-Hartley measure he recalled a statement he sid was made on the floor of the House June 4 by Representative Hartley, coauthor of the bill: "You are going to find there is more in this bill than may meet the eye."

"That is a revealing description of this bill by one of its authors," the President said.

"There is so much more in it than the people have been led to believe, that I am sure that very few understand what the Taft-Hartley bill would do if it should become a law."

Mentions Coal Walkout

He declared that his purpose in speaking last night was to disclose "the real meaning of this bill."

As for the threatened coal walkout, he said the most the bill could do "would be the postponement of a strike from July to October."

"Many people are under the impression that this bill would prevent or settle a strike in the coal industry," the President declared.

"Under this bill a work stoppage in the coal mines might be prevented for 80 days and then, if agreement had not been reached, the miners would be free to strike, and it would be mandatory for the President to refer the whole matter to the Congress.

"Postponing a strike in the coal industry until the approach of winter, when our need is acute, certainly is not the way to protect

Taylor, Pepper Lead Democratic Fight to Delay Action on Veto

BULLETIN

Republican leaders decided last night to hold the Senate in session "continuously" until they can force a vote on President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

Senator Taylor (D., Idaho) had launched out on a long speech. He and Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) were trying to keep the debate going, if possible, until the country has time to react to President Truman's veto message and his radio appeal.

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

After listening to the most scorching message ever sent to Capitol Hill by President Truman, the House of Representatives yesterday proceeded, without debate, to override his veto of the labor bill.

The vote was 331 to 83, or 36 votes in excess of the two-thirds majority necessary to override.

The bill went at once to the Senate, but early attempts to obtain unanimous consent to vote on overriding this afternoon were not successful. It was immediately apparent that the Senate had a real fight on its hands.

Democrats Have Chance

Some days ago the consensus had been that a veto would be beaten handily. But yesterday, despite an optimistic statement by Senator Taft (R., Ohio), coauthor of the bill, that the measure would be passed over the veto by "a safe margin," it was clear that the Demeratic supporters of Mr. Truman's position still believed they had a fighting chance.

So, apparently, did the President. He scheduled a Nation-wide appeal over all radio networks for 10 o'clock last night. He also brought into a White House lunch 12 Senators, who, it was conceded, were the most likely to switch from their original position in favor of the bill, to a vote to sustain the veto.

Mr. Truman told them, it was learned, that he was not fooling in his veto message; he meant for the veto to stick. But he specifically disclaimed any attempt to put heat or pressure on his guests. He told them he would not "insult" them by asking them to vote against their consciences.

Departments Urge Veto

His only request was that they read his message again and think about it. He said that he had submitted the bill to four Federal departments for analysis and received four reports urging a veto. He also read the bill section by section. Declaring that he had

Senate Passes District Tax, Revenue Bill

$14,000,000 Measure Goes to House, Then To Conference Study

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday unanimously approved a 14-million-dollar Washington revenue program.

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) won passage of the bill by a unanimous voice vote. The measure now goes back to the House and from there to a joint conference on disputed plans for District income tax extension.

The Senate backed up Cain in voting to make all persons who live in Washington seven months or more in the year file District income tax returns. The District, however, would not collect the local tax from individuals who had to pay a higher income or intangible property tax to a State.

The House adopted a plan by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) to bar the District from collecting income taxes from all Federal employes who have a legal domicile in a State. The present law permits collection only from those only with a legal domicile in the District.

World Clipper Has Second Touch Of Engine Trouble

Karachi, June 20 (INS).—The Pan American World Airways clipper "America," carrying a group of 21 prominent Americans on a round-the-world inaugural flight, left Karachi for Calcutta at 12:11 p. m. (EDT) today after one false start.

The huge four-engined plane originally left Karachi at 8:25 a. m., but put back into the western India city after 90 minutes, due to engine trouble. This was the second case of such trouble. When the plane landed at London Wednesday on the short lap from Shannon Airport in Eire, one engine was dead.

(A dispatch from Calcutta said the clipper arrived there early Saturday.)

Senate Votes Pay Increase For Teachers

Measure Providing Minimum $150 Hike Goes Back to House

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday approved by voice vote a $2,400,000 pay raise for the District's public school teachers.

The measure, revising the teachers' salary system, gives virtually all instructors a minimum raise of $150 for the next year beginning July 1.

Although previously approved by the House, legislation must go back to the House for agreement on minior differences in the two bills before the final measure is sent to the White House for the President's signature.

Absorbed in Labor Veto

Most of the Senators in the chamber at the time were deeply absorbed in the newly arrived copies of the President's labor bill veto when Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) rose to present and explain the pay bill.

However, some of the Senators looked up and listened to a spirited debate that broke out between Senator Cain on the one hand, and Senators Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.,) on the other.

The House-approved bill, espoused by Cain, would set up the single-salary principle for all teachers, so that they would receive equal pay for equal educational qualifications. Under terms of the bill, teachers with master's degrees would be paid $3000 to $4500 annually; teachers without the extra degree would be paid $2500 to $4000.

Experience Considered

Johnston, backed by Sparkman, proposed an amendment to make a group of long-experienced teachers without master's degrees, who have "superior" ratings, eligible for the maximum $4500 salary.

The South Carolina Senator said he had been informed by Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District superintendent of schools, that 196 "superior class" teachers would be benefited by his amendment.

Truman, Invited By Brazil, 'Hopes' To Make Journey

President Truman, with trips to Mexico and Canada already completed this spring, received an official invitation yesterday to visit Brazil and he "hopes" to go.

Brazilian Ambassador Carlos Martins formally extended the invitation during a White House call. Later he told reporters that Mr. Truman accepted the bid with the remark that he was very pleased to go to Brazil and hoped to make the trip "as soon as possible."

The invitation came from President Eurico Gaspar Dutra.

Checked for further details, White House aides gave this version to newsmen:

"The President told the Ambassador he was happy to receive the invitation and hoped he would be able to come."

Budapest Cathedral Damaged by Flames

Budapest, June 20 (AP).—Damage estimated at $50,000 was caused today by fire which almost destroyed the dome of St. Stephen's Basilica, Budapest's famous Catholic cathedray.

Catholic circles said very old and highly prized frescoes were heavily damaged. The cause was not determined, but fire department officials speculated it might have been started by faulty electrical wiring.

Knutson Planning 'Veto-Proof' Tax Bill for February

By the United Press

Chairman Harold Knutson said yesterday his House Ways and Means Committee had set February 1 as the date to complete legislation revising the entire Federal tax structure.

The Minnesota Republican said there would be no "quickie" tax bill in this or the next session along the lines of the personal income tax reduction plan vetoed by President Truman. The presidential veto was sustained by the House.

"We'll send him a tax bill he can't veto," Knutson said.

Some Republicans have discussed revival of the vetoed Knutson bill which would have cut individual taxes from 10.5 to 30 per cent. But Knutson said there was no likelihood of that.

"We're going to deliver it to Mr. Truman in one package," he said.

Supreme Soviet Opens Sessions

London, June 20 (AP).—Prime Minister Stalin, Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and other top Soviet government and Communist Party leaders attended tonight the first session of the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Soviet Federal Socialistic Republic, the Russian News Agency Tass said in a dispatch from Moscow.

Mikhail Tarassov was elected president of the governing body of the largest of the Soviet Union's 16 constituent republics. Tass said.

Senate Group Allows 12 Million For Limited Overseas 'Voice'

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A Senate subcommittee yesterday added 12 million dollars to the State Department appropriation bill to keep alive the overseas information program in a curtailed form.

Meanwhile, the House put over until Monday the Mundt bill to give legislative authorization to the State Department's Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs.

Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), Appropriations Subcommittee chairman, said $10,500,000 had been allowed to operate OIC next year. The sum of $1,500,000 was added for terminal leave payments and other expenses involved in curtailment of the program.

Ball said the United States short wave frequencies and all other services of the office would be maintained on a stand-by basis.

The committee allocated the budget as follows: International Broadcasting, $6387; daily wireless bulletin, $300,000; overseas information libraries, $700,000 (about the same as this year); United Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, $100,000; press and publications, $800,000; movies, $800,000; student exchange, $250,000; foreign service, $812,450; office of the director, $100,000; area division, $200,000, and cultural council, $50,000.

The House refused to grant any funds for OIC in the State Department appropriation bill on the ground that there is no legislative authority for it.

Dutch, Indonesia Relations Broken; War Threatens

The Hague (Saturday), June 21 (INS).—The Dutch commissioner general for the East Indies broke off relations today with the Indonesian republic, increasing the threat of widespread civil war.

The rupture occurred despite an eleventh-hour offer by Premier Sutan Sjahrir's government to discuss the May 27 proposals of the commission for an interim federative administration in all Indonesia.

The Aneta news agency quoted Dutch authorities as saying the republic's offer did not contain "sufficiently substantial concessions" to warrant halting the decision to sever relations.

The commission's letter charged the republic with a lack of desire to cooperate in trying to work out a United States of Indonesia.

Indonesian government leaders have accused the Dutch of being mainly concerned with recovering foreign-owned assets in Indonesia and trade matters rather than independence and sovereignty for the natives.

Truman Denounces Labor Bill In Radio Speech to People

the Nation against the dangers of a shortage of coal."

As he had said in his veto message yesterday morning, the President reiterated:

"There is still time to enact progressive, constructive legislation during the present session. We need such legislation to correct bauses and to further our advance in labor-management relations."

He expressed the hope that the Taft-Hartley bill "will not become law."

He also denounced claims by Taft and Hartley that the measure was favorable to wage earners, charging that it was designed deliberately to weaken labor unions.

Repeats Scorching Words

"A bill which would weaken unions would undermine our national policy of collective bargaining," he said. "The Taft-Hartley bill would do just that. It would take us back in the direction of the old evils of individual bargaining. It would take bargaining power away from workers and give more power to management."

This was a repetition of the scorching words he used in his veto message.

And tonight he took full notice of the possibility of a strike by John L. Lewis' soft coal miners.

He challenged the idea that the bill would prevent or settle a strike in the coal industry, and coupled this with an expression of trust that the operators and the owners would soon reach an agreement that would prevent a crippling stoppage.

Expires June 30

The mine leader's contract with the Government expires June 30. A "no contract, no work" walkout appears certin unless the miners and the operators can be brought together.

"But if the miners and the operators do not reach agreement, and if this bill should become law," the President said, " it is likely that the most that could be accomplished under the complicated procedures of the bill would be the postponement of a strike from July until October."

He said flatly that claims in behalf of the Taft-Hartley bill—that it would protect the country from Nation-wide strikes in vital industries—were not valid and that the measure would add to, rather than reduce, industrial strife.

He again attacked the measure for its "dangerous challenge to free speech and our free press" and repeated that it ignored the progress of years in the field of labor-management relations.

Senate Remains in Session; GOP Tries to Force Veto Vote

some knowledge of the subject, he said that he, too, came to the same conclusion—the bill must not become law.

Whether his appeal had or would change any of the Senators' votes was not immediately known. To sustain a veto, at least seven Senators must change their vote from that which they cast when the final version of the bill cleared the Senate on the way to the White House.

The Senators Mr. Truman urged to reconsider their position were Young (N. Dak.), the only Republican, and Democrats George (Ga.), Maybank (S. C.), Connally Tex.), Russell (Ga.), Hatch (N. Mex.), Umstead (N. C.), O'Conor (Md.), Fulbright (Ark.), McClellan (Ark.), Overton (La.), and Sparkman (Ala.).

When the President's guests returned to the Capitol they found a situation of mighty confusion. Democratic leaders were unwilling to vote until they could muster their full strength or else obtain "pairs" for those Senators out of town.

Reluctant to "Pair"

At first the Republicans appeared unwilling to grant such pairs—an admission that they were not too sure themselves of a sufficient margin to override.

Later, however, some arrangements appeared to have been completed, for Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) indicated he was willing to agree on 5 p. m. today as a time for the vote.

But immediately Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) one of the few Republican opponents of the bill, objected. He admitted frankly that he wanted time for Mr. Truman's strong message to "sink in" on the American public. There should be no vote until after the weekend, he argued. Senator Taylor (D., Idaho) took the same line.

For the time being, then, a unanimous consent agreement was unobtainable and the Senate went on into a night session of debate. The argument is scheduled to continue today.

The President's veto message, which one of the Senators lunching with him yesterday said "should have been written on asbestos," attacked the Taft-Hartley bill from two approaches.

The first was a broad one—the bill's philisophy of labor relations and the Government's role in them. Under this count he found the measure "would reverse the basic direction of our national labor principles of our democratic policy." It would "inject the Government into private economic affairs on an unprecedented scale." It would "conflict with important society."

Sees "Seeds of Discord"

Further, it was unfair, in that it provided unequal penalties against employers and employes. It contained "seeds of discord" and would "encourage distrust, suspicion and arbitrary attitudes."

The claim that the bill would simply equalize the position of labor and management is "unfounded," the President flatly proclaimed.

The second approach Mr. Truman took was a technical one. He found 35 specific objections, all of them of weight and moment. These were what he considered to be evil effects of the bill's provisions, contributing to a worsening of labor relations and productive of "more strikes, not fewer."

Applies Four Tests

In considering the bill, Mr. Truman said, he applied to it four basic tests:

1. Does it "result in more or less Government intervention in our economic life?"

The answer is "more," for it would require the Government "to become an unwanted participant at every bargaining table." It would nullify "thousands of agreements" already obtained and mutually satisfactory. It would "superimpose bureaucratic procedures on the free decisions of local employers and employes."

2. Would it improve human relations between labor and management?

The answer: The National Labor Relations Act would be converted from an instrument with the major purpose of protecting the right of workers to organize and bargain collectively into a mass of pitfalls and complex procedure. As a result of these complexities employers and workers would find new barriers to mutual understanding."

3. Is the bill workable?

The answer the President found was in the negative. "Undue restrictions" on the NLRB would so greatly increase its backlog of cases that the parties to disputes would "turn in despair from the peaceful procedures it is supposed to provide and would resort to economic force: i. e., strikes. The bill's "emergency procedure" for Nation-wide strikes would require an immense amount of governmental effort but would "result almost inevitably in failure."

4. Is it fair?

No, said Mr. Truman, for it "prescribes unequal penalties for the same offense . . . It would discriminate against workers by arbitrarily penalizing them for all critical strikes."

Objects to Injunctions

To illustrate these points, the President devoted nearly three-fourths of his 6000-word message. The discussion was detailed and dwelt with almost every one of the 40 or 50 highly technical major provisions in the bill.

Mr. Truman reserved his most devastating attack for the section of the bill providing for injunctions against emergency strikes likely to endanger national health and safety. It was precisely this provision which the bill's proponents considered would be the most compelling reason why Mr. Truman would have to accept the legislation, in view of an impending coal strike.

But the Chief Executive found it "ineffective" and, indeed, "certain to do more harm than good" when viewed as a whole.

"One could scarcely devise a less effective method of discouraging critical strikes," he wrote. It would "increase rather than diminish widespread industrial disturbances."

When the red-hot message reached the House and was read, Chairman Hartley (R., N. J.) of the House Labor Committee and co-author of the bill, moved for its immediate consideration.

On the roll call vote, 225 Republicans and 106 Democats voted for passage. Eleven Republicans, 71 Democrats and 1 American Laborite voted against it.

The ratio was one vote less than 4 to 1. This compares with a one vote more than 4-to-1 majority for passage when the final version passed the House on June 4. In other words, the vote was practically identical.

Arrests Reveal Stolen Car Ring

Baltimore, June 20 (U.P.).—The FBI today announced the arrest of three local men charged with operating an East Coast stolen car ring which shanneled the cars to Columbia, S. C., to be registered and sold under fictitious names.

The men, arraigned before United States Commissioner James K. Cullen and ordered held on $5000 bail each, were identified as Isadore Goodman, Herbert Prince and Emanuel Hoffman. FBI Agent Fred Hallford said the trio were charged with stealing cars in Baltimore, Wilmington, Del., and Philadelphia.

200 Bushy Faces From Waynesboro Arrive Tomorrow

Two hundred of the bushiest faces this side of a hair mattress will arrive in Washington from a little Pennsylvania town tomorrow morning for a look around.

The collection of beards, goatees and mustaches, belonging to young and middle-aged men of the Waynesboro (Pa.) Whiskers Club, will debark from six large chartered buses at the Capitol about 11 a. m.

Ready to greet them officially will be Congressman Chester H. Cross (R., Pa.), who will present Waynesboro's goateed mayor, Harry C. Funk, with an oversize "key to the Capitol."

The 200 men are part of the Waynesboro male population who last February decided to let their "spinach" grow in anticipation of the town's 150th anniversary, July 6 to 11.

D. C. Man Is Strong Candidate For AVC National Chairman

Special to The Post

Milwaukee, Wis., June 20.—The "big name" speakers formally opened the second annual national convention of the American Veterans' Committee here today. However, their inspirational messages were almost anticlimactic to the amazing demonstration during the past day and night by 1500 delegates intent on lining up new leaders and policies.

Out of night-long caucuses on half a dozen floors a three-way factional split has developed today as by-products of members' eagerness to snow under the small extremist group they hold responsible for the Communist tag that has plagued AVC progress during the past year. This preliminary skirmishing has also greatly enhanced the prospect that Chat Paterson, 27, of Washington, the AVC's national legislative representative, may emerge as its new national chairman Sunday.

Chances Skyrocket

Paterson's chances skyrocketed early this morning when Richard Bolling of Kansas City, the other leading contender for national chairman, withdrew from the race on the ground that his work as an organizer for the Americans for Democratic Action might be "embarrassing" both to ADA and AVC if he were elected. At the same time, Gil Harrison of New York, AVC's national vice chairman and generally regarded as the founder of the organization, also withdrew, thus spiking a strong "draft Harrison" movement that sprang up during the night hours. Paterson's principal opponent now is Robert White, former Washington lawyer, who moved recently to Akron, Ohio, to open a law practice. White is a former chairman of AVC's Washington Chapter No. 1, which is supporting him.

The three-way split has resulted in organization of the Independent-progressive caucus, led by AVCs present anti-Communist administration and embracing an apparent majority of delegates; the Unity Caucus, labeled left-wing by its opponents, and the Central Fusion caucus allegedly middle-of-the-road. None has yet formally announced which candidates it will back.

Bradley Assails Fears

General Omar N. Bradley, administrator of Veteran's Affairs, who made a flying trip from Washington to open the formal sessions, had a capacity audience in Municipal Auditorium to hear his warning that the security of the Nation and the world are threatened by doubt, timidity, confusion and fear among Americans.

"Three weeks ago," Bradley said, "on the third anniversary of D-Day, I could not help but contrast the certainty we felt then with the uncertainty that troubles so many of us now. I thought it strange that soldiers could face the ordeal of invasion with confidence in their ability to complete the job, and now confess uncertainty in their ability to gain security."

Asserting that the people need a stronger faith in themselves while striving for the greater good, along with the confidence and assurance that comes from youth, the VA Administrator called also for support of "a bold foreign policy equal to our responsibilities in a world from which we cannot retreat."

The Most Rev. Bernard T. Shiel, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, who shared the platform with Bradley, told the AVC that "the Communist affiliation is the kiss of death" to any organization to which they attach themselves. He said there could be no compromise between communism and democracy and added that while he opposed "witch hunts and hysterical rantings" he did believe in an intelligent appraisal of realities and men and that Communists had proved themselves unworthy of trust and respect.

Tonight, delegates are back in caucus again while others are working on the final draft of a policy platform to be reported to the convention tomorrow which will include domestic, international and veterans' issues.

During today's session, the national planning committee paused long enough to adopt a resolution offered by Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., urging Congress to sustain President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

Catholic Veterans Ask Firing of U. S. Reds

Cleveland, June 20 (AP).—The National Convention of Catholic War Veterans today demanded the dismissal of Communists in the employ of the United States and asked Congress to authorize admission into this country of 100,000 displaced Europeans annually.

The convention also adopted a resolution calling for severance of all relations between the United States and Russia until Archbishop Alojzije Stepanic, head of the Catholic Church in Yugoslavia, is released from prison and his property restored. The archbishop was sentenced to 16 years' imprisonment and his property confiscated last October 11 after his conviction of collaboration with the Axis during the war.

Another resolution asked adoption of the Catholic War Veterans' program if universal military training is not established in the United States.

Merit Promotions Favored for Army

Navy Expense Funds Upped

planes—252 more than the House.

In addition, the subcommittee allowed the Navy an additional 78 millions in contract authorization for additional new-type anti-submarine and reconnaissance planes. The action will aid America's declining aircraft manufacturing industry.

Saltonstall said the Navy would have 10 Essex and Midway type aircraft carriers operating with full crews in 1948, plus one other with a reduced complement. One battleship will be maintained with a full peacetime allowance of men, with three others operating with lowered strength.

As approved by the subcommittee, the bill carries $3,462,000,000 in appropriations for 1948. This is 310 million less than recommended by President Truman.

The President's budget, however, contemplated actual naval expenditures in 1948 of $4,510,000,000. Saltonstall says this figure will be cut to $4,106,000,000 by rescinding carryover funds and other action.

"Fighting Navy"

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), a member of the subcommittee and chairman of the full Appropriations Committee, said their action will put the burden of the budget reductions on shore establishments and leave the active, operating forces largely intact.

"We're giving them a full, working and fighting Navy," said Saltonstall, "though every ship won't have all the most modern radar, or all the me nor paint they'd like for it to have."

Bridges said his full committee will act on the bill this morning. Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.), chairman of the Military Appropriations Committee, will start hearings on the 1948 Army supply bill on Monday.

House Unit Would End Traditional Seniority System

A new system of promotion for Army officers—aimed at weeding out the unfit—was recommended to the House yesterday by its Armed Services Committee.

The plan to supercede the traditional Army method of advancement by seniority was carried in a lengthy bill providing sweeping revisions in Army, Navy and Marine Corps personnel laws.

Recommended early this session by the War and Navy Departments, the measure was rewritten in part by a subcommittee headed by Representative Dewey Short, (R., Mo.).

Major change was the elimination of the ranks of five-star general and admiral in peacetime. Present top leaders holding those ranks, however, will not be affected.

Other Limitations

Other limitations placed on the amount of "top brass" were: four-star generals and admirals, 11; three-star, 62; one and two-star, 710.

The new system of Army promotions will require all first lieutenants, captains and majors to be recommended for advancement by a selection board before being promoted. Qualified officers would go up, those considered unqualified would be eliminated.

Only the best fitted lieutenant colonels and above would be selected—not merely those deemed "qualified."

The committee said that later—after the Army has more experience with promotion by merit—Congress may substitute selection of the best fitted in the lower ranks for mere elimination of the unfit.

Provisions for Navy

A number of refinements in the Navy system of promotion by selections are provided in the bill. Main points are:

Provision for advancement of outstanding officers ahead of their contemporaries.

An increased number of officers in the grades of lieutenant commander, commander and captain.

Introduction of selection among flag officers.

Opportunity for men to advance from the ranks up to the grade of commander by qualifying only in one specialty.

Marshall Plan Interests Reds

tional neutrality, has not yet held any official discussions of the plan.

Dispatches from Oslo said Norwegian officials displayed a genuine interest, but clearly indicated their reaction would be reserved until the outcome of deliberations among the large powers has been completed. Informed sources said it seemed certain Norway would decline to take part in the plan unless it is organized through the United Nations or is given full U. N. support. These sources said in all probability the plan would be unacceptable to Norway if Russia refuses to cooperate.

In Stockholm the Swedish Foreign Minister, Osten Unden, said in his opinion Marshall's "generous offer" could best be entrusted to the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe in Geneva.

Dispatches from Copenhagen said the Danish government has not yet taken up the aid-for-Europe program.

All three powers obviously were loath to be drawn into one European economic bloc against another bloc.

Warsaw dispatches said Poland's official circles felt that victims of the Nazis should be given priority in aid and that assistance must be free of "political pressure."

Italian Foreign Minister Carlos Sforza told reporters that the Marshall offer was "one of the noblest attempts yet to save the peace." Clearly Italy would eagerly accept foreign help. Palmiro Togliatti, leader of the powerful Italian Communist Party, warned in a Constituent Assembly speech, however, that the United States must not practice a policy of "interference in the internal affairs of our country."

Communists sat silent and disapproving in the French National Assembly today when Foreign Minister Bdiault said Marshall's offer was the "decision of a great mind" and "must no go unanswered."

Although official pronouncements have said there were no political conditions attached to the American offer, some observers have expressed the opinion that a motivating factor behind the project was to establish a stable Europe which could hold communism in check.

Regardless of the final Soviet stand, Bevin has announced Britain will push forward in efforts to launch the program. The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg also have announced their general approval of the idea.

Sugar Futures Trading Will Resume on July 1

New York, June 20 (AP).—The board of managers of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange announced today resumption of trading in sugar futures for domestic consumption July 1, beginning with the May, 1948, delivery, with delivery months extended through December, 1948.

Minimum margins will be $750 a contract and the daily trading limit will be 75 points or ¾ of a cent a pound. When trading was suspended late in 1941 the margin was $625 and trading limit 25 points.

Graham-Paige to Have Tiller Plant in York, Pa.

York, Pa., June 20 (AP).—Joseph W. Frazer, chairman and president of the Graham-Paige Motors Corp., said today his company plans to manufacture its farm power tiller in a plant leased here from the York Industries, Inc. Production will begin here in August.

The tiller now is being made at Willow Run, Mich. The plant here will employ 500, Frazer told industrial and civic leaders who welcomed him to York.

Union Officials Are Sentenced For Contempt

Milwaukee, June 20 (AP).—Circuit Judge Roland J. Steinle today found 26 members of Local 248, UAW-CIO, and the union itself guilty of contempt of court in an action growing out of Allis-Chalmers strike picketing, and sentenced three union officers, including President Robert Buse, to terms of five months each in the House of Correction.

The other union officers sentenced were Joseph Dombek, vice president, and Fred McStroul, recording secretary.

Judge Steinle imposed a fine of $250 on Local 248 for violation of a previous court order upholding the ruling of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board which banned mass picketing at the Allis-Chalmers plant last fall during the 280-day strike which ended in March.

Nineteen other defendants, including Owen Lambert, independent Communist candidate for the State Assembly in the fall of 1946, were sentenced to serve three months each in the House of Correction. The other four defendants each were fined $200. The union will appeal.

Walsh Estate Lists $50,000 For Charities

Worcester, Mass., June 20 (U.P.).—More than $50,000 in bequests to Catholic organizations and charities were provided in the will of former U. S. Senator David I. Walsh of Clinton, filed for probate here yesterday.

The veteran politician, who died at a Boston hospital June 11 at the age of 74 after a cerebral hemorrhage, left $10,000 to Holy Cross College of Worcester, his alma mater, "for whatever purposes the trustees believe will best promote its educational aims."

The will also established a $10,000 trust fund for the poor of Clinton "regardless of creed." Servants and aides were left a total of $3000. Half of the residue of his estate will go to his sisters, Mary and Julia, and the other half to his nieces and nephews.

District Judge Thomas H. Connelly of Boston, who was named executor, was left $5000.

Army Boosted UMT Illegally, Says Harness

Chairman Harness (R., Ind.) of a House Executive Expenditures investigating subcommittee charged yesterday that the War Department had illegally attempted to influence Congress on pending legislation.

He made the statement after a two-hour hearing at which evidence was presented regarding Army efforts to win public support for universal military training.

Dr. Ralph McDonald of Winston-Salem, N. C., an official of the National Association, contended the War Department had violated laws barring Federal officials from using public funds to attempt to influence Congress.

Two Charges

McDonald, stating that he was testifying as an individual, charged:

1. The Army had employed two civilians to travel about the country, lining up support of universal training among civic groups, women's clubs and other bodies.

2. Army planes had been used to fly civilians to Fort Knox, Ky., to see the experimental UMT unit in training there.

The two civilians were identified as Mrs. Helen Hamilton Woods, former deputy commander of the WAC, of 1248 30th st. nw., and Alan Coutts, a former Army officer. McDonald said that Coutts' job was to line up local radio forums on UMT, dominated by supporters of the program.

Petersen Testifies

Assistant Secretary of War Howard C. Peterson, who followed McDonald to the stand, acknowledged that Mrs. Woods and Coutts had been employed in connection with the UMT program. Coutts, however, has left the department.

He granted that their job was to encourage the organization of groups to support UMT, but said he saw "no impropriety in this."

"We make no apology for our efforts to obtain the understanding and support of the public for our program," Petersen declared.

Representative Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) observed that it was difficult to "draw the line between proper public relations and improper action" and added that he hoped the War Department "would lean over backwards" in the future.

"On the evidence presented," declared Harness, "it appears that it was improper and a violation of the la wfor the War Department to employ these people to organize groups to influence Congress and use Army planes to fly visitors to Fort Knox."

He said further hearings on the matter will be held next week.

Social Justice Necessary to Win Peace, Pope Says

Ottawa, June 20 (AP).—The Catholic hierarchy said today the world must turn its face from Godless materialism and social injustices if it is ever to find lasting peace for which the Marian Congress now meeting here is praying.

Pope Pius XII, who in a letter naming the Papal legate yesterday called on Christians everywhere "to strive and contend against those who would destroy and debase liberty," reiterated the theme in a broadcast message today.

He asked listeners to open their eyes and recognize that in today's problems "social justice" imposes itself.

James Charles Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto, Papal legate, warned that the "atomic bomb hangs like a sword of Damocles" over the world.

Los Angeles Firm Plans Bamboo Newsprint

Los Angeles, June 20 (AP).—Newsprint from bamboo, banana stalks and other Mexican vegetation—that's the plan announced today by a Los Angeles engineering firm.

The nine-million-dollar factory, designed to produce 200 tons of pulp daily, should be in full operation within two years near Tampico, Mex., said Robert A. Trumpis, head of Trumpis-Collar and Associates and president of the American Society of Industrial Engineers.

Both Parties' Leaders Like Jones for FCC

Leaders of both parties in the House yesterday expressed approval of President Truman's nomination of Representative Robert F. Jones (R., Ohio) to the Republican vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission.

The Chief Executive originally sent up the name of FCC Commissioner Ray C. Wakefield of California to succeed himself for the seven-year term which begins next July 1. The White House subsequently withdrew the Wakefield nomination without explanation.

Both Speaker Joseph Martin of Massachusetts and House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn expressed satisfaction with the Jones' appointment.

Came as Surprise

At Commissioner Wakefield's office, a spokesman said the withdrawal of his name had come as a complete surprise, and added that the Commissioner knew of no reason for the White House reversal.

Rayburn said he did not ask the President to withdraw the Wakefield nomination. It was widely believed on Capitol Hill, however, that the Chief Executive had taken into consideration the reasons why the seven-year Washington post was being sought for the Ohio Congressman and had therefore made the switch.

Jones, who is a resident of Lima, Ohio, came to Washington eight years ago. He has expressed distaste for congressional life and a desire to stay in Washington permanently. As chairman of the Interior Department Appropriations Subcommittee, he led the fight to slash the department's budget.

Jensen to Succeed

He will be succeeded by Representative Ben F. Jensen (R., Iowa) described by House leaders as an even more economy-minded Republican, so that the appointment will not assure gentler handling of any appropriation measure.

Although he has consistently followed the Republican Party line in Congress, Jones is as well liked on one side of the aisle as on the other.

Jones is married to the former Ida Marie Spreen. They have two children, Robert Franklin, jr., and Jeraldine.

Bengal Split Authorized By Ballot

Calcutta, June 20 (AP).—Hindu and Moslem representatives, meeting in one joint and in two separate sessions, cast a series of ballots today which had the effect of partitioning Bengal a province twice the size of Indiana with a population of 60 million.

There are 25 million Hindus and 33 million Moslems in the province.

At the joint meeting, Hindu and Moslem representatives in the provincial assembly voted 126 to 90 to join the new constituent assembly which will write a charter for a new Moslem state, Pakistan.

Under the British procedural plan, Moslem and Hindu sections then met separately.

The Hindu secton voted 58 to 22 to secede and by the same vote agreed to join the present assembly at New Delhi which will write the constitution for Hindustan. The Moslems voted 126 to 35 against partition, but the action of the Hindu section had the effect of splitting the province.

Country Life Officers

Dubuque, Iowa, June 20 (AP).—Joseph Ackerman, associate managing director of the Farm Foundation, Chicago, was reelected president of the American Country Life Association today.

Other officers included Roger Corbett, University of Maryland, vice president; Orion Ulrey, Michigan State College, executive secretary; Louis M. Clark, National Education Association, Washington, D. C., recording secretary.

peace treaty which sets up the former Italian city as a free territory.

Gromyko's stand indicated that he would use the same no-action-until-the-treaty-is-signed argument to block a possible United States request for an investigation of the situation in Hungary, where Communists recently seized control. The United States has ratified the Hungarian and Italian peace treaties, but Russia has not.

3. The Security Council ignored Gromyko's objections and—after approving noncontroversial principles for a proposed international police force—met in secret to discuss the Trieste governorship. Despite Gromyko's objections to the meeting, he was the first delegate to show up.

U. N. veiled the Trieste meeting with extraordinary secrecy. The 11 members of the Security Council met behind closed doors with only four members of the U. N. secretariat attending.

The meeting had before it Russia's nomination of Maurice Degant, French ambassador to Prague, to be the Trieste governor. Today's meeting was to let smaller powers have a say. At the end of a two-hour meeting, no decision had been reached.

The Russian walkout from the military staff meeting came after a tiff over a letter from Security Council Chairman Alexander Parodi of France. He had asked the military committee to clarify some sections of its recommendations on a proposed international police force. The Russian delegation, however, argued that only the Security Council itself could order such a clarification, and that the committee did not have to comply with a leter from Parodi.

General, Admiral in Lead

When McNarney ruled against the Russians, they left. Soviet Gen. A. P. Visiliev in olive drab, and Vice Admiral V. L. Bogdenko, in resplendent white, led the way.

They declined to talk, but Gromyko said it was just an "incident." He obviously did not consider it in the same class as his own historic walkout from the Security Council more than a year ago.

McNarney sent to the Security Council the technical opinions which Parodi requested.

In the Security Council, the Big Five, sitting as the military committee, drew up the principles and asked the rest of the Council to approve.

Approve 15 Sections

Skipping over all items that faced heavy debate, the Council approved 15 sections including these points:

1. The size of the forces which individual nations will contribute will be set by the Security Council and the states themselves, and both must approve before changes can be made. Some nations may contribute facilities such as ports and airfields instead of manpower.

2. Individual states would keep their contributions at a high degree of readiness. They would be employed only by the Security Council.

3. Each nation will equip its own force and provide a reserve of replacements in manpower and materiel.

4. Individual nations would have their own commanders for their units, but the Security Council would have over-all "control."

5. "Contingents will retain their national character . . . the commanders of national contingents will be entitled to communicate directly with the authorities of their own country on all matters."

Major Sought in Kdnaping Of Member of Stern Gang

Jerusalem, June 20 (AP).—Palestine authorities used police dogs today in a vain attempt to track down Maj. Roy Alexander Farran, who escaped from Allenby Barracks last night shortly after it was announced he would be brought before a court-martial.

He had been held on unspecified charges in connection with the disappearance of 16-year-old Alexander Rubowitz, claimed by the Stern Gang to be one of its members.

Farran was arrested in Syria 10 days ago and returned here at the request of Palestine police. Unverified reports at the time said there was a secret organization within the British forces in Palestine pledged to "fight the Jews in their own way."

The Stern Gang threatened reprisals unless Rubowitz was released alive and unharmed. He has not been seen since he was forced into an automobile last May 11 by three English-speaking men in civilian clothes.

Meanwhile the United Nations Special Commission on Palestine visited ancient Jericho today in its tour of the Holy Land prior to resuming hearings in Jerusalem.

The committee viewed excavations, one section of which exposed a wall which Palestine authorities claim collapsed about the same time the Bible tells of Jericho's walls falling at the blast from Joshua's trumpet.

The committee visited a potash plant on the Dead Sea and toured the Jewish settlement of Beth Haavara.

They returned to Jerusalem tonight, and will visit southern Palestine tomorrow.

Favorite for Top Police Job Is 'Policemen's Policeman'

Detective Chief Robert J. Barrett, policemen's policeman, last night headed the list of possible successors to the post of Superintendent of Washington Metropolitan Police.

The post is expected to be filled as soon as Superintendent Harvey G. Callahan's retirement recommendation is officially accepted by District Commissioners, possibly by Monday.

Inspector Barrett, balding 45-year-old veteran of nearly 22 years on the local police force, has a record of 101 commendations from police officials, citizens and members of Congress to stack up against a two-year suspension and four appearances before the police trial board for rough treatment of prisoners.

Best and Worst Marks

Most noteworthy commendation for valor in the line of duty was tendered him on July 8, 1931, for his courage in routing with tear-gas bombs a wanted man who had barricaded himself in a home and had fired on arresting officers. Blackest mark against him followed this episode a little over four months later when, on October 16, he was suspended from the force without pay after grand jury indictment for alleged brutality to prisoners.

Barrett, then a sergeant, was tried by jury and found guilty of beating up a suspect in a slaying. The Court of Appeals ordered a new trial on a legal technicality. A second jury could not agree and the charge was nolle prossed.

Sergt. Barrett was restored to duty with restitution for loss of pay during the suspension period, on September 26, 1933. His police record from that point to today shows nothing but upgradings and commendations.

Promotion Defended

When Barrett became police captain last October without benefit of Civil Service examination, he again made some unfavorable headlines. But Superintendent Callahan stepped forward to defend the promotion.

"He (Barrett) threw his hands around in the early days, but he's all right now," declared his superior officer.

As Acting Police Inspector on September 1, 1943, Barrett was sworn in for his present post of detective chief, the youngest man to head the local detective bureau.

Inspector Barrett, the records show, has long been a frontline police officer, battling crime on crime's doorsteps. His measures brought him the glories and the headaches of a crusader, and charges by his enemies today that he lacks the administrative experience of other contenders to the superintendency.

Bureau Efficiency Cited

Friends, however, point to efficiency of operation of the detective bureau since he took over as proof that he can match his excellence at the crime's scene with administration behind a desk.

Yesterday, District Commissioner John Russell Young, known to favor Barrett's elevation to superintendent, declared:

"We want the best man, regardless of any personal feelings."

Barrett is married, has one daugher, Joanne, 18, and only recently adopted an eight-year-old boy. He lives with his family at 5811 7th st. nw.

Highlights of Record

His record, briefed to highlights, follows:

Appointed to police force as patrolman in Sixth Police Precinct July 1, 1925.

September 2, 1925—Severely reprimanded for unwarranted use of revolver.

July 1, 1926—Promoted to patrolman, second class.

July 1, 1927—Assigned duty as prohibition officer, No. 6 Precinct.

July 11, 1928—Appointed precinct detective, after promotion to private, third class.

April 18, 1929—Tried for willfully mistreating and unnecessary violence. Charles dismissed.

May 13, 1930. First commendation, for arrest of housebreaker.

November 14, 1930—Commended for work in arresting three men charged with 76 cases of housebreaking.

There follows a series of commendations for police work, including the arrest of a murder suspect, on August 18, 1931. Then came suspension from duty and reinstatement 23 months and 10 days later.

Commendations, mainly from superior officers for excellence of detective work, follow at almost regular intervals, interspersed with promotions in grade to September 1, 1943, when he was made permanent inspector in command of the Detective Bureau.

His latest two commendations were on April 2 for heading the investigations that brought arrests in the murders of Patrolman Raymond Padgett, shot to death by a bandit suspect on March 16, and the hold-up slaying of Frank C. Kelly, who resisted robbery, March 11.

$410,000 Bid For Capitol Park Hotel

Federal Works Agency yesterday opened five bids for the seven-story Capitol Park Hotel, North Capitol and E sts. nw.

Tuesday the Senate voted to turn the one-time United States Service Center into a District Court Annex. The House Public Buildings Subcommittee, however, tabled action on the legislation, and told Federal Works Administrator to sell the building to the highest bidder.

Capitol Parks Hotel Corp., Washington, submitted the top bid of $410,000 through Attorney Lewis H. Shapiro. Investors in the corporation plan to operate it as a hotel.

In 1943, the Government paid $400,000 for the building and a nearby parking lot. It later spent $67,000 for renovatons and service center equipment.

Wilson was convicted of murder during the perpetration of an attempted holdup of Lowe after the latter had emerged from the food store carrying $10,000 in store receipts.

The defendant had testified he was in debt because of unemployment and illness of two of his five children.

Flood Crests Bearing Down On Key Levees

Hannibal, Mo., June 20 (AP).—A tense battle to save key levees continued tonight as new crests bore down on this area in a continuation of June floods that Army engineers reported had inundated 1295 square miles in the upper Mississippi River Valley.

The most critical areas in the flood-weakened barriers were across the Mississippi in Pike County, Ill., where the 60-mile-long Sny Levee was endangered, and in the Elsberry, Mo., district south of here.

The Army engineers' office at St. Louis announced that 829,100 acres had been flooded this month.

The engineers estimated 20,000 had been made homeless and 30 million dollars damage wrought in the post two weeks.

Coast Guard Unit Ready

As the Government Weather Burau at Burlington, Iowa, forecast new rains in northeast Missouri and northeastern Iowa in the next 24 to 48 hours, the United States Coast Guard unit at St. Louis sent a task force of 25 men and 10 18-foot boats for the removal of families from the threatened Elsberry district. Emergency radio facilities were established in the area.

The situation in the area in Pike County was described as critical with one third of the 120,000 acres protected by the levee already covered by backwaters from the Sny River which empties into the Mississippi at the southern end of the weakened, rain-soaked barrier.

All persons living in the district were ordered to leave by local officials and most of the 600 residents of Hull, Ill., about 10 miles inland, took refuge in nearby Kinderhook.

One hundred families previously had evacuated South Quincy which was hit by last week's floods.

Missouri Towns Inundated

On the Missouri side of the Mississippi, Alexandria, Mo., (population 600) remained completely deserted and inundated and half of Canton (population 2500) was still under water from the river's earlier rampages.

Police Chief Due to Retire

the retiring chieftain's home at 4018 21st st. ne.

Mrs. Callahan received the minimum number of visitors to carry out the proceedings, cautioning them to remain only as long as necessary in the bedroom of her husband. She specifically warned them not to let her husband keep them in tiring talk.

"He is very sick," she said in apology.

Only Police Inspectors Walter Thomas, acting superintendent, and Ira Keck visited with their bedridden chief. They brought with them a prepared waiver for his signature, made out in advance at Commissioner Young's request by Dr. John Reed, chief of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons.

Others Waiting Outside

Outside, and probably unbeknownst to the sick man, waited Assistant Corporation Counsel Stanley DeNeale, whose assignment it was to speed the retirement; Deputy Fire Chief John Werheim, of the retirement board, and Dr. Sager.

The retirement board of three men, Inspector Keck, Attorney DeNeale and Fire Chief Werheim, then drove to Police Headquarters where they conferred on Major Callahan's qualifications for retirement and heard his medical case history from Dr. Sager. They then made their recommendations.

DeNeale explained that the waiver of personal appearance before the board was a police courtesy and was especially applicable in the present instance.

"The Superintendent is a very sick man," he declared. "To subject him to a hearing is unthinkable."

His Fifty-Second Birthday

Major Callahan's retirement request yesterday was made on his fifty-second birthday. He was born June 20, 1895, in Brooklyn, N. Y., and "drifted" into police work here as a patrolman, on May 26, 1920.

Major Callahan and his family have lived for years in their comfortable, Colonial brick home in Twenty-first st. ne. The Callahans have three children, Patricia, 21; Barbara, 19, and Mrs. Mary Schwartz, 26.

Before starting his police career, "'cause a guy must eat," he was a first lieutenant with the Twelfth Artillery, in World War I. Discharged at Fort Myer, Va., he took a job as railroad fireman, didn't like it, and applied for police work.

He rose through the ranks elevating himself largely by taking advantage of every opportunity to school himself in police work. He studied criminal law at Columbia University, traffic law at the University of Maryland, and attended one 90-day school of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

He was director of the Police Department's rookie school, and instructor in its advanced school, the Washington Police Academy. His studious intent kept him off ordinary beat-pounding activities and soon brought him desk and administrative work.

By March 1, 1928, he was made sergeant in the Fifth Police Precinct; then night inspector at the Eighth Police Precinct; then inspector at the police school. By July, 1935, he was a police captain.

Six years later he was appointed inspector and executive officer attached to headquarters, August 21, 1941. And in another three months was named assistant superintendent.

When the late Col. Edward J. Kelly resigned in January, 1946, he recommended Callahan's appointment to succeed him. District Commissioners made the appointment, effective February 1, 1946.

Short Interest In Stocks Shows 5th Monthly Gain

New York, June 20 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange today reported the short interest existing as of June 17 increased to 1,540,493 shares, highest since November, 1945, and the fifth month-to-month increase in a row. The total on May 15 was 1,314,391 shares.

Largest short interest on record was reported for May 25, 1931, when the total climbed to 5,589,700 shares.

Of the 1355 individual stock issues listed on the exchange there were 92 in which a short interest of 5000 or more shares existed, or in which a change in the short position of 2000 or more shares occurred during the month.

Increases in short holdings of stocks of railroad companies accounted for a substantial part of the total expansion. Gains were reported for Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore & Ohio, Denver & Rio Grande, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and Texas Pacific Land Trust.

Lower, however, was the short interest in Chesapeake & Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad.

$14,000,000 District Revenue Program Passed by Senate

spells a two-million-dollar difference in the amount of revenue that would be raised annually. District officials estimated that O'Hara's amendment would cut down the revenue by that amount. One part of the income tax program, adopted by both House and Senate, applies a 5 per cent franchise tax to the income of unincorporated businesses over $10,000.

With Senate passage of the bill, Congress has now completed approval of these features:

1. A four-million-dollar increase in the present eight-million-dollar annual Federal contribution to District expenses.

2. A boost in the property tax rate from the present $1.75 to a new rate of $2 per $100 of assessed valuation. This would raise an estimated $4,500,000 per year.

3. A four-cent per gallon tax on gasoline in place of the current three-cent rate, raising $1,600,000 a year for the highway fund.

4. A $1 fee for automobile inspections, double the present rate, to make the service self-supporting with an extra $65,000 a year.

5. A 25 per cent increase in present water rates to add $800,000 a year to the water fund. This fund also would get one million dollars of the increased Federal payment.

Senator Cain told the Senate "we think the program is sound; we think it is reasonable; we think it will maintain and develop essential services so badly needed in this great community."

In discussing the Federal payment, Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) said in his opinion the Federal Government should assume every cent of the tax increase.

Senators Cain, Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) and J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) were assigned to represent the Senate in the District tax conferenses with the House.

Before passage, Senator Cain won approval for an amendment to make clear that all veterans' disability pensions would be kept free from the District income tax. The House had voted a $2000 limit on the tax-free portion of pensions.

Mercy Deaths Are Opposed By Majority of U. S. Public

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 20.—A bill to legalize mercy death was introduced recently in the British Parliament, but in the United States the weight of public sentiment is against permitting mercy deaths, or euthanasia, as the procedure is called.

There was considerable publicity on the subject early this month, when a British physician, Dr. Edwin Alfred Barton, frankly stated that he had on several occasions helped put hopeless invalids out of their misery when they were in pain.

To see how the American people would react to the idea of mercy killings, the Institute put the following issue before a cross-section of voters from coast to coast.

The vote:

|---|---|
| Yes | 37% |
| No | 54 |
| No opinion | 9 |

With the no opinion excluded, the vote would be 41 per cent in favor, 59 per cent opposed. This is in line with attitudes expressed by the American public in two previous surveys on euthanasia. In 1937 and again in 1939, the Institute found 46 per cent in favor of mercy killings, 54 per cent opposed, among people who expressed an opinion on the subject.

A slightly larger number of men are in favor of mercy killings than women, the latest survey finds. Among men the vote of approval is 39 per cent, among women only 35 per cent. A sharp difference was found in attitude by ages. The older people become, the less likely they are to favor mercy killings.

When a person has a disease that cannot be cured, do you think doctors should be allowed by law to end the patient's life by some painless means if the patient and his family request it?

The vote by age:

| | Yes | No | No opin. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 21-29 | 46% | 47% | 7% |
| 30-49 | 36 | 54 | 10 |
| 50 & over | 33 | 58 | 9 |

Dr. Barton, the British physician who admitted having put some patients out of their misery, described his first case as follows:

"The man was about 50 and his case needed very constant care. How the poor man prayed to die! How he implored me to end it all to help him out of it! At 5 o'clock on a Sunday June morning, my night bell rang. I guessed what was wrong. I rushed around to the house . . . He was all but dead and . . . I poured some chloroform onto a corner of a towel and let him go."

A Chicago Presbyterian pastor, Rev. Clinton C. Cox, recently supported euthanasia, saying that if a judge can sentence a person to death because of moral wrong, a doctor, because of his scientific knowledge, should be permitted to determine whether a mercy death would be desirable.

Judge Decides

'Anti-Fascist' Testimony Admissible

Testimony of members of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee at a hearing of the House Committee on Un-American Activities may be legally used against them in their District Court trial for contempt of Congress.

This was the opinion handed down yesterday by Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech in overruling a motion by Defense Attorney O. John Rogge to bar the testimony.

Rogge had cited a congressional act of 1857 which specified testimony given at a congressional hearing cannot be used against the witness in any subsequent criminal proceedings except that involving perjury.

Cites Court Decisions

"Are we to hold Congress has given the committee the right to inquiry . . . (and) . . . has by another section deprived the Government of the very evidence by which it may attempt to prove a concentrated effort to frustrate the basic intent of the legislation?" Keech asked in his typewritten opinion.

"A prosecution for contempt is but the continuation of the proceedings before the committee," he held.

The jurist cited Supreme Court decisions, which he said, had recognized the right of the court in interpreting a statute, even though it be unambiguous in its terms to so construe any section thereof so as not to defeat the true purpose of the enactment as a whole."

Holds Evidence Sufficient

In another opinion Keech held that the evidence secured by the House committee was sufficient to provide a basis for its investigation of the Anti-Fascist group.

Dr. Edward F. Barsky and 15 others on the executive committee of the Anti-Fascist committee are also charged with conspiracy to commit contempt.

The contempt charges grew out of alleged refusal of the defendants to turn over records of the organization to the House committee.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay said it was probable the Government would rest its case after two more days of testimony.

Trumans Greet 823 Disabled U. S. Veterans

Some 823 men and women, many in wheel chairs, on crutches and canes, or wearing bandages or dark glasses, were greeted by their President and Mrs. Truman yesterday.

They were some of the maimed and ailing veterans of the Nation's wars, invited to the south lawn of the White House for a reception in their honor.

They came from Mount Alto Hospital of the Veterans' Administration, from the U. S. Soldiers Home, from St. Elizabeths of the U. S. Public Health Service, from the Army's Walter Reed and from the Naval Hospital at Bethesda.

Mrs. Wilson Present

Many of them accompanied by their nurses, filed down the receiving line of military and Government leaders, which was headed by the Trumans and by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the World War I President who inaugurated the custom of inviting disabled veterans to the White House.

As they moved down the line on the carpet of grass, the Marine Band played a continuous concert. They were greeted by Secretary of State and Mrs. George C. Marshall; Secretary of War and Mrs. Robert P. Patterson; Attorney General and Mrs. Tom C. Clark; Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. James Forrestal; Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Julius A. Krug; Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson; Chief of Staff and Mrs. Dwight D. Isenhower; Admiral of the Fleet and Mrs. Chester W. Nimitz; Marine Corps Commandant Gen. and Mrs. Vandegrift; Gen. Omar N. Bradley, head of the Veterans' Administration and Mrs. Bradley; Undersecretary of Labor and Mrs. Keen Johnson, First Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs.e Jesse M. Donaldson, Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs. William C. Foster, and Mrs. Hazel Whitaker Vandenberg, wife of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan.

Refreshments Served

All these shook hands not only with the 823 former service men and women, but also with 740 officials who were invited. The Canteen Corps of the D. C. Red Cross served ice cream, cakes and cookies, lemonade and cigarettes.

First to reach Mr. and Mrs. Truman and the others in the reception line was Ercill Mabe, 37, of Starr, N. C., a wheelchair patient from Mt. Alto. A veteran of 19 months in the European theater during the recent war, he served as a technician fifth grade, in the 101st Airborne Division. He is the father of a 6-month-old girl, Brenda Lane, who was home in Starr with her mother.

Second in line was Joseph Forrester, a veteran of the First World War from Phoenixville, Pa., who wsa also in a chair. He served as private in the Evacuation Hospital of the Thirty-fourth Division. He is 51 and single.

Park Board Approves Changes In Fort Drive Project Plans

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday reviewed its plans for Fort Drive and approved modifications that it hopes will make the project more satisfactory to District officials.

Details of the modifications were not revealed by the planners, but Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, commission chairman, said that they included deferring construction of sections of the drive until needed, using where possible streets already built, and eliminating at present certain grade crossings.

Modifications, Grant said, will bring down the cost of the drive, which city officials have called useless and prohibitive.

Grant said the commission decided that the section of the drive from 14th and Missouri ave. nw., to 42d and Benning rd. ne., is needed and should be the first section built.

The revised plans for the drive, a dual-lane parkway following the line of the city's Civil War forts, will be referred to the Joint Highway Committee for study, Grant said.

The commission, at the concluding session of its two-day meeting, also suggested that the restored Francis Scott Key mansion be relocaed on a site on Canal rd. west of 37th st. The building, now badly in ned of repair, is located on the canal west of Key Bridge and in line with the proposed K st. elevated highway. A Senate bill authorizing $65,000 for restoring the home would place it east of the bridge at 34th and M sts. Grant said the commission thought the 37th st. site preferable from the point of view of appearance and access by the public.

The commission considered three sites for a proposed landing field for small planes but took no action pending further study, Grant said. The sites were the Kingman Lake area of the Anacostia River, National Training School land on Bladensburg rd., and the dump at Kenilworth.

Foreign Silver Hits Low Since 1945

New York, June 20 (AP).—A 5-cent drop in foreign silver today brought New York quotations down to 59¾ cents an ounce. London prices fell 3 pence to 39 pence (66 cents) an ounce.

The New York price was 11 cents lower than a week ago, and a new low since September, 1945, when the OPA hiked the price ceiling from 44¾ cents to 70⅝ cents.

Withdrawal of industrial users from the market, with many silver and jewelry companies taking inventory and preparing for the usual vacation shutdown, caused foreign supplies to accumulate on the market.

Domestic mined silver is taken by the U. S. Treasury at 90½ cents by statute.

April Tire Stocks Gained Over 1946

New York, June 20 (AP).—Inventories of passenger car tires rose to 4,399,795 by April 30, compared with 2,411,595 a year before, but were still below normal prewar levels of seven to eight million units, the Rubber Manufacturers Association reported today.

Passenger car tire production in the first four months totaled 27,002,089 against 20,113,196 in the similar 1946 period. Output in April was 6,711,133, a drop of 3.76 per cent from the 6,937,234 in March.

Text of Message On Labor Bill Veto

President Truman's message vetoing the Labor-Management Relations bill:

I RETURN herewith, without my approval, H. R. 3020, the "Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947."

I am fully aware of the gravity which attaches to the exercise by the President of his constitutional power to withhold his approval from an enactment of the Congress.

I share with the Congress the conviction that legislation dealing with the relations between management and labor is necessary. I heartily condemn abuses on the part of unions and employers, and I have no patience with stubborn insistence on private advantage to the detriment of the public interest.

But this bill is far from a solution of those problems.

When one penetrates the complex, interwoven provisions of this omnibus bill, and understands the real meaning of its various parts, the result is startling.

The bill taken as a whole would reverse the basic direction of our national labor policy, inject the Government into private economic affairs on an unprecedented scale and conflict with important principles of our democratic society. Its provisions would cause more strikes, not fewer. It would contribute neither to industrial peace nor to economic stability and progress. It would be a dangerous stride in the direction of a totally managed economy. It contains seeds of discord which would plague this Nation for years to come.

Because of the far-reaching import of this bill, I have weighed its probable effects against a series of fundamental considerations. In each case I find that the bill violates principles essential to our public welfare.

I. The first major test which I have applied to this bill is whether it would result in more or less Government intervention in our economic life.

Our basic national policy has always been to establish by law standards of fair dealing and then to leave the working of the economic system to the free choice of individuals. Under that policy of economic freedom we have built our Nation's productive strength. Our people have deep faith in industrial self-government with freedom of contract and free collective bargaining.

I find that this bill is completely contrary to that national policy of economic freedom. It would require the Government, in effect, to become an unwanted participant at every bargaining table. It would establish by law limitation on the terms of every bargaining agreement, and nullify thousands of agreements mutually arrived at and satisfactory to the parties. It would inject the Government deeply into the process by which employers and workers reach agreement. It would superimpose bureaucratic procedures on the free decisions of local employers and employes.

At a time when we are determined to remove, as rapidly as practicable, Federal controls established during the war, this bill would involve the Government in the free processes of our economic system to a degree unprecedented in peacetime.

THIS is a long step toward the settlement of economic issues by Government dictation. It is an indication that industrial relations are to be determined in the halls of Congress, and that political power is to supplant economic power as the critical factor in labor relations.

II. The second basic test against which I have measured this bill is whether it would improve human relations between employers and their employes.

Cooperation cannot be achieved by force of law. We cannot create mutual respect and confidence by legislative fiat.

I am convinced that this legislation overlooks the significance of these principles. It would encourage distrust, suspicion, and arbitrary attitudes.

I find that the National Labor Relations Act would be converted from an instrument with the major purpose of protecting the right of workers to organize and bargain collectively into a maze of pitfalls and complex procedures. As a result of these complexities employers and workers would find new barriers to mutual understanding.

The bill time and again would remove the settlement of differences from the bargaining table to courts of law. Instead of learning to live together, employers and unions are invited to engage in costly, time-consuming litigation, inevitably embittering both parties.

The Congress has, I think, paid too much attention to the inevitable frictions and difficulties incident to the reconversion period. It has ignored the unmistakable evidence that those difficulties are receding and that labor-management cooperation is constantly improving. There is grave danger that this progress would be nullified through enactment of this legislation.

III. A third basic test is whether the bill is workable.

There is little point in putting laws on the books unless they can be executed. I have concluded that this bill would prove to be unworkable. The so-called "emergency procedure" for critical Nation-wide strikes would require an immense amount of Government effort but would result almost inevitably in failure. The National Labor Relations Board would be given many new tasks, and hobbled at every turn in attempting to carry them out. Unique restrictions on the board's procedures would so greatly increase the backlog of unsettled cases that the parties might be driven to turn in despair from peaceful procedures to economic force.

IV. The fourth basic test by which I have measured this bill is the test of fairness.

The bill prescribes unequal penalties for the same offense. It would require the National Labor Relations Board to give priority to charges against workers over related charges against employers. It would discriminate against workers by arbitrarily penalizing them for all critical strikes.

Much has been made of the claim that the bill is intended simply to equalize the positions of labor and management. Careful analysis shows that this claim is unfounded. Many of the provisions of the bill standing alone seem innocent but, considered in relation to each other, reveal a consistent pattern of inequality.

The failure of the bill to meet these fundamental tests is clearly demonstrated by a more detailed consideration of its defects.

1. The bill would substantially increase strikes.

(1) It would discourage the growing willingness of unions to include "no strike" provisions in bargaining agreements, since any labor organization signing such an agreement would expose itself to suit for contract violation if any of its members engaged in an unauthorized "wildcat" strike.

(2) It would encourage strikes by imposing highly complex and burdensome reporting requirements on labor organizations which wish to avail themselves of their rights under the National Labor Relations Act. In connection with these reporting requirements, the bill would penalize unions for any failure to comply, no matter how inconsequential, by denying them all rights under the act. These provisions, which are irrelevant to the major purposes of the bill, seem peculiarly designed to place obstacles in the way of labor organizations which wish to appeal to the National Labor Relations Board for relief, and thus to impel them to strike or take other direct action.

(3) It would bring on strikes by depriving significant groups of workers of the right they now enjoy to organize and to bargain under the protection of law. For example, broad groups of employes who for purposes of the act would be classed as supervisors would be removed from the protection of the act. Such groups would be prevented from using peaceful machinery and would be left no option but the use of economic force.

(4) The bill would force unions to strike or to boycott if they wish to have a jurisdictional dispute settled by the National Labor Relations Board. This peculiar situation results from the fact that the board is given authority to determine jurisdictional disputes over assignment of work only after such disputes have been converted into strikes or boycotts.

IN addition to these ways in which specific provisions of the bill would lead directly to strikes. The cumulative effect of many of its other provisions which disrupt established relationships would result in industrial strife and unrest.

2. The bill arbitarily decides, against the workers, certain issues which are normally the subject of collective bargaining, and thus restricts the area of voluntary agreement.

(1) The bill would limit the freedom of employers and labor organizations to agree on methods of developing responsibility on the part of unions by establishing union security. While seeming to preserve the right to agree to the union shop, it would place such a multitude of obstacles in the way of such agreement that union security and responsibility would be largely cancelled.

In this respect, the bill disregards the voluntary developments in the field of industrial relations in the United States over the past 150 years. Today over 11 million workers are employed under some type of union security contract. The great majority of the plants which have such union security provisions have had few strikes. Employers in such plants are generally strong supporters of some type of union security, since it gives them a greater measure of stability in production.

(2) The bill would limit the freedom of employers and employes to establish and maintain welfare funds. It would prescribe arbitrary methods of administering them and rigidly limit the purposes for which they may be used. This is an undesirable intrusion by the Government into an important matter which should be the subject of private agreement between employers and employes.

(3) The bill presents the danger that employers and employes might be prohibited from agreeing on safety provisions. Rest-period rules, and many other legitimate practices, since such practices may fall under the language defining "feather-bedding."

3. The bill would expose employers to numerous hazards by which they could be annoyed and hampered.

(1) The bill would invite frequent disruption of continuous plant production by opening up immense possibilities for many more elections, and adding new types of elections. The bill would invite electioneering for changes in representatives and for union security. This would harass employers in their production efforts and would generate raiding and jurisdictional disputes. The National Labor Relations Board has been developing sound principles of stability on these matters. The bill would overturn these principles to the detriment of employers.

(2) The bill would complicate the collective bargaining process for employers by permitting—and in some cases requiring—the splitting up of stable patterns of representation. Employers would be harassed by having to deal with many small units. Labor organizations would be encouraged to engage in constant interunion warfare, which would result only in confusion.

(3) The bill would invite unions to sue employers in the courts regarding the thousands of minor grievances which arise every day over the interpretation of bargaining agreements. Employers are likely to be besieged by a multiplicity of minor suits, since management necessarily must take the initiative in applying the terms of agreements. In this respect, the bill ignores the fact that employers and unions are in wide agreement that the interpretation of the provisions of bargaining agreements should be submitted to the processes of negotiation ending in voluntary arbitration, under penalties prescribed in the agreement itself. This is one of the points on which the National Labor-Management Conference in November, 1945, placed special emphasis. In introducing damage suits as a possible substitute for grievance machinery, the bill rejects entirely the informed wisdom of those experienced in labor relations.

(4) The bill would prevent an employer from freely granting a union shop contract, even where he and virtually his entire working force were in agreement as to its desirability. He would be required to refrain from agreement until the National Labor Relations Board's workload permitted it to hold an election—in this case simply to ratify an unquestioned and legitimate agreement.

EMPLOYERS, moreover, would suffer because the ability of unions to exercise responsibility under bargaining agreements would be diminished. Labor organizations whose disciplinary authority is weakened cannot carry their full share of maintaining stability of production.

Text of Truman's Message To House Vetoing Labor Bill

4. The bill would deprive workers of vital protection which they now have under the law.

(1) The bill would make it easier for an employer to get rid of employes whom he wanted to discharge because they exercised their right of self-organization guaranteed by the act. It would permit an employer to dismiss a man on the pretext of a slight infraction of shop rules, even though his real motive was to discriminate against this employe for union activity.

(2) The bill would also put a powerful new weapon in the hands of employers by permitting them to initiate elections at times strategically advantageous to them. It is significant that employes on economic strike who may have been replaced are denied a vote. An employer could easily thwart the will of the employes by raising a question of representation at a time when the union was striking over contract terms.

(3) It would give employers the means to engage in endless litigation, draining the energy and resources of unions in court actions even though the particular charges were groundless.

(4) It would deprive workers of the power to meet the competition of goods produced under sweatshop conditions by permitting employers to halt every type of secondary boycott, not merely those for unjustifiable purposes.

(5) It would reduce the responsibility of employers for unfair labor practices committed in their behalf. The effect of the bill is to narrow unfairly employer liability for anti-union acts and statements made by persons who, in the eyes of the employes affected, act and speak for management, but who may not be "agents" in the strict legal sense of that term.

(6) At the same time it would expose unions to suits for acts of violence, wildcat strikes and other actions, none of which were authorized or ratified by them. By employing elaborate legal doctrine, the bill applies a superficially similar test of responsibility for employers and unions—each would be responsible for the acts of his "agents." But the power of an employer to control the acts of his subordinates is direct and final. This is radically different from the power of unions to control the acts of their members—who are, after all, members of a free association.

5. The bill abounds in provisions which would be unduly burdensome or actually unworkable.

(1) The bill would erect an unworkable administrative structure for carrying out the National Labor Relations Act. The bill would establish, in effect, an independent general counsel and an independent board. But it would place with the board full responsibility for investigating and determining election cases—over 70 per cent of the present case load—and at the same time would remove from the board the authority to direct and control the personnel engaged in carrying out this responsibility.

(2) It would invite conflict between the National Labor Relations Board and its general counsel since the general counsel would decide, without any right of appeal by employers and employes, whether charges were to be heard by the board, and whether orders of the board were to be referred to the court for enforcement. By virtue of this unlimited authority, a single administrative official might usurp the board's responsibility for establishing policy under the act.

(3) It would straitjacket the National Labor Relations Board's operations by a series of special restrictions unknown to any other quasi-judicial agency. After many years of study, the Congress adopted the Administrative Procedures Act of 1946 to govern the operation of all quasi-judicial agencies, including the National Labor Relations Board. This present bill disregards the Procedures Act and, in many respects, is directly contrary to the spirit and letter of that act. Simple and time-saving procedures, already established and accepted as desirable by employers and employes, would be summarily scrapped. The board itself, denied the power of delegation, would be required to hear all jurisdictional disputes over work tasks. This single duty might require a major portion of the board's time. The review function within the board, largely of a nonjudicial character, would be split up and assigned to separate staffs attached to each board member. This would lead to extensive and costly duplication of work and records.

(4) The bill would require or invite Government-supervised elections in an endless variety of cases. Questions of the bargaining unit, of representatives, of union security, of bargaining offers, are subject to election after election, most of them completely unnecessary. The National Labor Relations Board has had difficulty conducting the number of elections required under present law. This bill would greatly multiply this load. It would in effect impose upon the board a five-year backlog of election cases. If it handled them at its present rate.

(5) The bill would introduce a unique handicap, unknown in ordinary law, upon the use of statements as evidence of unfair labor practices. An antiunion statement by an employer, for example, could not be considered as evidence of motive, unless it contained an explicit threat of reprisal or force or promise of benefit. The bill would make it an unfair labor practice to "induce or encourage" certain types of strikes and boycotts—and then would forbid the National Labor Relations Board to consider as evidence "views, argument or opinion" by which such a charge could be proved.

(6) The bill would require the board to "determine" jurisdictional disputes over work tasks, instead of using arbitration, the accepted and traditional method of settling such disputes. In order to get its case before the board, a union must indulge in a strike or a boycott and wait for some other party to allege that it had violated the law. If the board's decision should favor the party thus forced to violate the law in order that its case might be heard, the board would be without power over other parties to the dispute to whom the award might be unacceptable.

(7) The bill would require the board to determine which employes on strike are "entitled to reinstatement" and hence would be eligible to vote in an election held during a strike. This would be an impossible task, since it would require the board arbitrarily to decide which, if any, of the employes had been replaced and therefore should not be allowed to vote.

6. The bill would establish an ineffective and discriminatory emergency procedure for dealing with major strikes affecting the public health or safety.

THIS PROCEDURE would be certain to do more harm than good, and to increase rather than diminish widespread industrial disturbances. I am convinced that the country would be in for a bitter disappointment if these provisions of the bill became law.

The procedure laid down by the bill is elaborate. Its essential features are a presidential board of inquiry, a waiting period of approximately 80 days (enforced by injunction) and a secret ballot vote of the workers on the question of whether or not to accept their employer's last offer.

At the outset a board of inquiry would be required to investigate the situation thoroughly, but would be specifically forbidden to offer its informed judgment concerning a reasonable basis for settlement of the dispute. Such inquiry therefore would serve merely as a sounding board to dramatize the respective positions of the parties.

A strike or lockout might occur before the board of inqury could make its report, and perhaps even before the board could be appointed. The existence of such a strike or lockout would hamper the board in pursuing its inquiry. Experience has shown that fact-finding, if it is to be most effective as a device for settlement of labor disputes, should come before the men leave their work, not afterwards. Furthermore an injunction issued after a strike has started would arouse bitter resentment which would not contribute to agreement.

If the dispute had not been settled after 60 days of the waiting period, the National Labor Relations Board would be required to hold a separate election for the employes of each employer to find out whether the workers wished to accept the employer's last offer, as stated by him. Our experience under the War Labor Disputes Act showed conclusively that such an election would almost inevitably result in a vote to reject the employer's offer, since such action amounts to a vote of confidence by the workers in their bargaining representatives. The union would then be reinforced by a dramatic demonstration, under Government auspices, of its strength for further negotiations.

After this elaborate procedure the injunction would then have to be dissolved, the parties would be free to fight out their dispute, and it would be mandatory for the President to transfer the whole problem to the Congress, even if it were not in session.

Thus, major economic disputes between employers and their workers over contract terms might ultimately be thrown into the political arena for disposition. One could scarcely devise a less effective method for discouraging critical strikes.

This entire procedure is based upon the same erroneous assumptions as those which underlay the strike-vote provision of the War Labor Disputes Act, namely, that strikes are called in haste as the result of inflamed passions, and that union leaders do not represent the wishes of the workers. We have learned by experience, however, that strikes in the basic industries are not called in haste, but only after long periods of negotiation and serious deliberation; and that in the secret-ballot election the workers almost always vote to support their leaders.

Furthermore, a fundamental inequity runs through these provisions. The bill provides for injunctions to prohibit workers from striking, even against terms dictated by employers after contracts have expired. There is no provision assuring the protection of the rights of the employes during the period they are deprived of the right to protect themselves by economic action.

IN SUMMARY, I find that the so-called "emergency procedure" would be ineffective. It would provide for clumsy and cumbersome Government intervention; it would authorize inequitable injunctions; and it would probably culminate in a public confession of failure. I cannot conceive that this procedure would aid in the settlement of disputes.

7. The bill would discriminate against employes.

(1) It would impose discriminatory penalties upon employers and employes for the same offense, that of violating the requirement that existing agreements be maintained for 60 days without strike or lockout while a new agreement is being negotiated. Employers could only be required to restore the previous conditions of employment, but employes could be summarily dismissed by the employer.

(2) The bill would require the board to seek a temporary restraining order when labor organizations had been charged with boycotts or certain kinds of jurisdictional strikes. It would invite employers to find any pretext for arguing that "an object" of the union's action was one of these practices, even though the primary object was fully legitimate. Moreover, since these cases would be taken directly into the courts, they necessarily would be settled by the judiciary before the National Labor Relations Board had a chance to decide the issue. This would thwart the entire purpose of the National Labor Relations Act in establishing the board, which purpose was to confer on the board, rather than the courts, the power to decide complex questions of fact in a special field requiring expert knowledge. This provision of the bill is clearly a backward step toward the old abuses of the labor injunction. No similar provision directed against employers can be found in the bill.

(3) The bill would also require the board to give priority in investigating charges of certain kinds of unfair labor practices against unions, even though such unfair labor practices might have been provoked by those of the employer. Thus the bill discriminates, in this regard, in the relief available to employers and unions.

(4) It would impose on labor organizations, but not on employers, burdensome reporting requirements which must be met before any rights would be available under the act.

(5) In weakening the protections afforded to the right to organize, contrary to the basic purpose of the National Labor Relations Act, the bill would injure smaller unions far more than larger ones. Those least able to protect themselves would be the principal victims of the bill.

8. The bill would disregard in important respects the unanimous convictions of employer and labor representatives at the National Labor-Management Conference in November, 1945.

(1) One of the strongest convictions expressed during the conference was that the Government should withdraw from the collective bargaining process, now that the war emergency is over, and leave the determination of working conditions to the free agreement of the parties. This bill proceeds in exactly the opposite direction. In numerous ways the bill would unnecessarily intrude the Government into the process of reaching free decision through bargaining. This intrusion is precisely what the representatives of management and labor resented.

2. A unanimous recommendation of the conference was that the Conciliation Service should be strengthened within the Department of Labor. But this bill removes the Conciliation Service from the Department of Labor. The new name for the service would carry with it no new dignity or new functions. The evidence does not support the theory that the conciliation function would be better exercised and protected by an independent agency outside the Department of Labor. Indeed, the service would lose the important day-to-day support of factual research in industrial relations available from other units of the department. Furthermore, the removal of the Conciliation Service from the Department of Labor would be contrary to the praiseworthy policy of the Congress to centralize related governmental units within the major Government departments.

9. The bill raises serious issues of public policy which transcend labor-management difficulties.

(1) In undertaking to restrict political contributions and expenditures, the bill would prohibit many legitimate activities on the part of unions and corporations. This provision would prevent the ordinary union newspaper from commenting favorably or unfavorably upon candidates or issues in National elections. I regard this as a dangerous intruusion on free speech, unwarranted by any demonstration of need, and quite foreign to the stated purposes of this bill.

Furthermore, this provision can be interpreted as going far beyond its apparent objectives, and as interfering with necessary business activities. It provides no exemption for corporations whose business is the publication of newspapers or the operation of radio stations. It makes no distinctions between expenditures made by such corporations for the purpose of influencing the results of an election, and other expenditures made by them in the normal course of their business "in connection with" an election: Thus it would raise a host of troublesome questions concerning the legality of many practices ordinarily engaged in by newspapers and radio stations.

(2) In addition, in one important area, the bill expressly abandons the principle of uniform application of national policy under Federal law. The bill's stated policy of preserving some degree of union security would be abdicated in all States where more restrictive policies exist. In other respects the bill makes clear that Federal policy would govern insofar as activities affecting commerce are concerned. This is not only an invitation to the States to distort national policy as they see fit, but is a complete forsaking of a long-standing constitutional principle.

(3) In regard to communism in unions, I am convinced that the bill would have an effect exactly opposite to that intended by the Congress. Congress intended to assist labor organizations to rid themselves of Communist officers. With this objective, I am in full accord. But the effect of this provision would be far different. The bill would deny the peaceful procedures of the National Labor Relations Act to a union unless all its officers declared under oath that they were not members of the Communist Party and that they did not favor the forceful or unconstitutional overthrow of the Government. The mere refusal by a single individual to sign the required affidavit would prevent an entire national labor union from being certified for purposes of collective bargaining. Such a union would have to win all its objectives by strike, rather than by orderly procedure under the law. The union and the affected industry would be disrupted for perhaps a long period of time while violent electioneering, charges and countercharges split open the union ranks. The only result of this provision would be confusion and disorder, which is exactly the result the Communists desire.

THIS provision in the bill is an attempt to solve difficult problems of industrial democracy by recourse to oversimplified legal devices. I consider that this provision would increase rather than decrease, disruptive effects of Communists in our labor movement.

The most fundamental test which I have applied to this bill is whether it would strengthen or weaken American democracy in the present critical hour. This bill is perhaps the most serious economic and social legislation of the past decade. Its effects—for good or ill—would be felt for decades to come.

I have concluded that the bill is a clear threat to the successful working of our democratic society.

One of the major lessons of recent world history is that free and vital trade unions are a strong bulwark against the growth of totalitarian movements. We must, therefore, be everlastingly alert that in striking at union abuses we do not destroy the contribution which unions make to our democratic strength.

This bill would go far toward weakening our trade union movement. And it would go far toward destroying our national unity. By raising barriers between labor and management and by injecting political considerations into normal economic decisions, it would invite them to gain their ends through direct political action. I think it would be exceedingly dangerous to our country to develop a class basis for political action.

I cannot emphasize too strongly the transcendent importance of the United States in the world today as a force for freedom and peace. We cannot be strong internationally if our national unity and our productive strength are hindered at home. Anything which weakens our economy or weakens the unity of our people—as I am thoroughly convinced this bill would do—I cannot approve.

In my message on the State of the Union which I submitted to the Congress in January, 1947, I recommended a step-by-step approach to the subject of labor legislation. I specifically indicated the problems which we should treat immediately. I recommend that, before going on to other problems, a careful, thorough and nonpartisan investigation should be made, covering the entire field of labor-management relations.

The bill now before me reverses this procedure. It would make drastic changes in our national labor policy first, and would provide for investigation afterward.

There is still a genuine opportunity for the enactment of appropriate labor legislation this session. I still feel that the recommendations which I expressed in the State of the Union message constitute an adequate basis for legislation which is moderate in spirit and which relates to known abuses.

For the compelling reasons I have set forth, I return H. R. 3020 without my approval.

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

The White House,
June 20, 1947.

Kansas Town Wages Total War on Flies

Olathe, Kans., June 20 (AP).—There's an all-out war on flies and other insects in this town of 4500 today and every man, woman and child is armed with free fly-swatters as the first line of attack.

Backing the fly-swatters are 10 trucks loaded with DDT and ready to spray the whole town if necessary for a total victory by next Tuesday night.

Everybody has been enlisted in the blitz on insects with the fly marked down as the No. 1 target and the mosquito close behind.

One of tae main purposes of the campaign is to fight the possibility of infantile paralysis later in the summer. Tom Poor, president of the Chamber of Commerce and co-chairman of the clean-up campaign has more than a passing interest. His 11-year-old daughter died from polio last summer.

The war on insects followed a week of intensive clean-up of trash and anything else where insects might find a breeding place.

The campaign is patterned after similar drives last summer in Cedar Rapids and Charles City, Iowa, reported to be the only two Iowa cities without cases of polio during the season.

Tug Crewmen's Families Given $73,000 Damages

Philadelphia, June 20 (U.P.).—Federal court today awarded $73,000 damages to the families of three crewmen killed when a German submarin sank the tug Menominee while it took a "more dangerous but cheaper route."

Damages were assessed against the Southern Transportation Co., Philadelphia, by Judge William H. Kirkpatrick, who held the tug owners "negligent" in ordering the master to use the Atlantic route rather than the Chesapeake and Delaware canal.

Under today's ruling, Mrs. Annie E. Tatem, Norfolk, Va., widow of Cecil V. Tatem, 30, first engineer, was awarded $40,000; Mrs. Lucy Lawson, Burlington County, Va., widow of Cook Isaiah Lawson, 56, was awarded $10,000; Mrs. Glenbrook Lawson, wife of Isaiah's son, Messboy George A. Lawson, 23, was awarded $12,000; her four-year-old son, George, jr., was awarded $10,000, and an additional $1000 was given to young Lawson's estate for "pain and suffering."

Rent Decontrol

The spurious rent and housing bills passed by the House and Senate have been melded by their conferees into a measure precisely described by Senator Glen Taylor as the "Rent Decontrol and Dehousing Act of 1947." Sired by the real estate lobby and spawned by the Republican majority in Congress through the midwifery of Representative Jesse Wolcott, this bill would inflict a dual duplicity on the American public. First, by the subterfuge of authorizing a "voluntary" 15 per cent rent increase, it would automatically lift the rent bill of tenants all over the country by at least this percentage even in the housing over which it maintains a semblance of control. Second, by removing from all control large areas of the country's housing, it makes a mockery of the public protection it pretends to provide.

This bill, we predict, will prove a boomerang even to the landlords it is designed to benefit. It will bedevil their relations with tenants for years to come. As Representative Spence put it, "this act makes duress legal." It invites extortion by allowing landlords to hold over the heads of tenants the threat of eviction or of an outright gouge when the law expires entirely next March. It invites evasion by establishing a complex congeries of technicalities under which landlords can escape the 15 per cent limitation. And evasion is made virtually inevitable in view of the fact that the housing expediter has already been denied the funds necessary for enforcement of the controls he is supposed to administer. This kind of fraud entails a consequence even more dangerous than the economic dislocations it provokes. It invites a tragic disillusionment. By promising a protection it cannot provide, it tends to diminish the confidence of the people in their Government as an instrument for promoting the general welfare.

These considerations make a presidential veto of the measure seem almost desirable. A veto would at least spare the country this congressional hypocrisy. But a veto would mean, of course, the complete abolition of rent control at the end of this month when the existing control law expires. That would produce a condition of chaos, involving intolerable hardships for innumerable families. The best that can be said for the law Congress has now framed is that it is not quite so bad as no law at all. It should be said also, however, that in presenting to the President such alternatives, Congress is very far from having discharged its duty to the public interest. We hope that in the event he signs the bill the President will make this altogether plain.

FCC Nomination

The President's withdrawal of his own nomination of Commissioner Wakefield for reappointment to the Federal Communications Commission is a mystery that demands explanation. The nomination was sent to the Senate some six weeks ago. It was indorsed alike by the Democratic Senator and the Republican Senator from California, Mr. Wakefield's home State. It was referred to an Interstate and Foreign Commerce Subcommittee which, judging from every available indication, was prepared to report it favorably. On Wednesday, however, before any hearings had been held by the subcommittee and in the absence of any open opposition, the President suddenly withdrew the nomination and substituted the name of Representative Robert F. Jones of Ohio. This change of mind, unprecedented so far as we know, is the more astonishing since it was made without any prior notification to Mr. Wakefield himself or to the Senators from California and without any expressed reason.

Commissioner Wakefield's record during his first term on the FCC thoroughly entitled him to reappointment. Indeed, on the grounds of merit and general qualification, he seems immeasurably superior to Representative Jones. In addition to his seven years of direct experience with national communications problems as a member of the FCC, Mr. Wakefield had admirable training for this regulatory post as chairman of the California Utilities Commission. Mr. Jones has no comparable background. An Ohio county prosecuting attorney, he has been in Congress since 1939 with a record distinguished only by the consistency of its conservatism and opposition to nearly every major measure desired by the Administration.

In the absence of explanation, it is difficult to escape the suspicion that it was Mr. Jones' nuisance value that won him preferment over Mr. Wakefield. Opposition seems the normal avenue to advancement nowadays. But the FCC is far too important an agency to be made a mere repository for the removal of obstructionists from Congress. If President Truman does not want this construction to be put upon his choice of Mr. Jones, then he owes it to himself to offer a more satisfactory explanation. In any case, as a matter of common courtesy, he owes an explanation to Mr. Wakefield whom he has subjected to extreme embarrassment. And, above all, he owes an explanation to a public perplexed by what appears to be thoroughly capricious conduct.

The Ruhr

The World Bank's expression of interest in a development scheme in the Ruhr is an event of considerable significance. President McCloy is reported as saying that the Ruhr is the key to European reconstruction. Such a statement from the World Bank head indicates that if the nations concerned could get together in the establishment of a Ruhr coal authority, finance would be forthcoming. A feature of the new suggestion is that the authority should give ample operating powers to one man. It is evidently the feeling that the coal czar should be an American who could introduce modern methods of mining operation.

The suggestion should spur action in Europe. There are several hurdles to overcome, and they are not all European. Our occupation authorities in Berlin think of the Ruhr as within their jurisdiction and Ruhr development as within their competence. As to jurisdiction, they are correct, but the governments could and should remove it. As to competence, the Ruhr is still staggering along at 40 per cent of capacity. Enough opportunity has been given to the present men on the spot to revive the Ruhr, and they must now step down. The development of the Ruhr is the condition precedent of success for any continental scheme of reconstruction in response to the Marshall initiative. What is the good of modernizing European industries if the coal is lacking to sustain them?

Give Them Light!

The House must be aware of the tributes to the Voice of America program that are coming directly from abroad or from travelers arriving from abroad. In the blacked-out areas of the world the program as such is an event. In Romania, for example, where all kinds of skullduggery is going on under cover of newspaper censorship, it is true to say, we are told, that the peasant listens to the priest on Sundays and to the Voice of America every other day. All the villagers turn out at 11:30 every night to listen to it. Some of our correspondents, of course, criticize the material, but only out of a desire to improve the program, which they all regard as the only light that remains in a darkening world.

Veto Of The Labor Bill

"The first major test which I have applied to this bill," President Truman wrote in his message vetoing the labor bill, "is whether it would result in more or less Government intervention in our economic life." He found that it would entail more such intervention—that it would run contrary to what he calls our "national policy of economic freedom." This argument has often been made by industrialists and labor leaders. We did not expect it to be brought forward as the chief justification for the President's veto of the labor bill. For if it is taken seriously, it would not only seem to close the door to any comprehensive legislation dealing with labor-management relations but would also call for repeal of the Wagner Act.

The Government became "deeply injected" into the relations between employers and their employes when it set up the National Labor Relations Board. It did so on the theory that governmental intervention was essential to protect the rights of workers and to promote the peaceful settlement of disputes burdening interstate commerce. The NLRB has corrected a great many abuses. Under its protection organized labor has become a great and powerful force in the Nation—so great and so powerful that it is now trampling under foot some of the rights of employers and individual workers, which, in any democratic society, ought to be protected. But when Congress now legislates to correct these abuses, the President rejects the measure as an interference with our economic system. We think that is a shabby resort to sophistry.

If the President really believed that the Government should not "superimpose bureaucratic procedures on the free decisions of local employers and employes," he ought to call for repeal of the Wagner Act. But he makes no such suggestion. On the contrary, he agrees with Congress that some sort of labor legislation is necessary. His message refers specifically to his request of last January for legislation to prevent strikes from crippling the entire country. He also asks for a "thorough and nonpartisan investigation . . . covering the entire field of labor-management relations." What would be the point of such an investigation if the Government were going to withdraw from the labor relations field? In other words, the President's chief argument against the bill simmers down to a careless use of emotionally charged words.

Another test applied by the President is that of fairness. He finds that the bill applies unequal penalties for similar offenses. Perhaps the bill errs in making the penalty for some unfair labor practices on the part of employes too severe. They could be fired for failing to abide by the rules of fair bargaining. Of course, it is impossible to fire an employer. He can only be ordered to cease and desist from unfair practices, the order being enforced by the courts if necessary. Would the President prefer similarly to use court injunctions against employes violating the rules of fair bargaining? That would, of course, run contrary to his objection to further use of the injunction, and it would substitute governmental action for direct employer-employe action, which he also opposes. But the major point here is the insignificance of the unfairness to which the President refers beside the gross unfairness of prosecuting only employers for offenses against the collective bargaining code and giving unions blanket exemption. That is the situation that the President would perpetuate by his veto.

We think that some of the President's detailed objections to the bill are well founded. The bill would deny supervisory employes all protection of the NLRB. It was not necessary to go that far to prevent rank-and-file unions from encroaching upon the functions of management. The tendency of the bill to substitute damage suits for grievance machinery, to which he points, must also be deplored. We think the President makes some telling points, moreover, about the weakness of the provisions designed to cope with national emergencies of the type that John L. Lewis is wont to inflict upon the country. Even this inadequate section, however, would enable Mr. Truman to use the fact-finding and public-pressure technique during the 75-day period in which strikes imperiling the national health and safety could be halted by injunction. If the veto is sustained, it will leave him stripped of any statutory power to cope with such emergencies.

One other disturbing fact about the message is that the President was not satisfied to object to the real weaknesses of the Taft-Hartley bill. He lambasted even such reasonable provisions as that for the regulation of union welfare funds. And he stooped to the technique of putting the most extreme interpretation on some provisions of the bill in order to make them appear obnoxious. Some experts say there is no warrant for his assumption that the bill would force unions to strike or to boycott if they wished to have a jurisdictional dispute settled by the NLRB. Mr. Truman saw danger of safety provisions and rest-period rules being thrown out under the provision making "feather bedding" an unfair labor practice. He says the way would be open for dismissal of employes on the pretext of a slight infraction of shop rules. But these complaints seem to us an insult to the NLRB which would administer the act. One has to assume that any measure will be administered intelligently and not in the most arbitrary fashion conceivable.

If the President's views, particularly on the section of the bill dealing with national emergencies, had been expressed months or even weeks ago in a conference with Senate leaders, they might have resulted in some improvement in the bill. But the President did not initiate such a conference, and congressional leaders did not seek his cooperation. Not until yesterday did he call a group of legislators to the White House for a frank discussion, and that eleventh-hour bid for support can have little bearing upon the outcome. For even Senators who may be amenable to persuasive arguments before they have publicly voted can scarcely afford to reverse themselves after a visit to the White House.

We cannot escape the conclusion that the President has played his cards with singular lack of skill. The weakness of his position was indicated when the House voted nearly 4 to 1 to override his veto. We think the Senate will be well advised to do likewise. It is apparently impossible now to keep this economic issue out of 1948 politics. But we suspect that the fight will be less turbulent and less damaging to our economy and our position of democratic leadership in the world if the labor bill becomes law.

Hoover Dam

I will not impose upon your courtesy to reply in detail to the communication that you published from Mr. Northcutt Ely under date of June 9, on the subject of "Hoover Dam." To do so would require a more than cursory glancing at that communication and I do not believe that it is worth that. The subject has already been unduly belabored and I have already, through your columns, acknowledged that "no one could properly dispute the legal power of the Congress to change the name of Boulder Dam." I would not even have taken issue with your editorial of May 4 ("attacked your fine editorial of May 4," as Mr. Ely ingratiatingly puts it) if it had not seemed to me that in this editorial you had drawn unjustified conclusions from misunderstood facts.

When I think of Mr. Northcutt Ely and his long-delayed insistence upon the name of "Hoover" in connection with dam, there naturally comes to my mind the nursery doggerel involving "Little Jackie Horner." When I went to Interior, Mr. Ely's father was mayor of Boulder City (or should it be Hooverville?) and Mr. Ely himself was on the payroll of Interior. I had a feeling that I did not want to have Mr. Northcutt Ely on my staff, but I was as happy, as the son was pleased, to retain the father as mayor of Boulder City. He had done a first-rate job and so I resisted considerable pressure to retain him for several years until, it seemed to me, he really should retire on account of his age.

During my incumbency, Mr. Northcutt Ely became the legal representative of several utilities, public and private, which did not always see eye to eye on public power and other matters. The job was largely a lobbying one, as is attested by the fact that, at this moment, Mr. Ely is registered as a lobbyist for some nine clients. As a lawyer-lobbyist, there were a number of occasions when he appeared before me personally and always, as I thought, especially while his father was still officiating efficiently as mayor of Boulder City, he treated me with a courtesy that seemed to me to border on deference. Certainly he never raised the question of the name of the dam that everyone can agree is located in Black Canyon, Ariz. But he did his best to roar like a lion as soon as I had resigned from Interior. Even that is all right with me, although I prefer a chow to a pekingese.

And this is all that I have to say about the valorous Mr. Northcutt Ely, who, so far as I am concerned, can go on woofing to his heart's desire. If he is looking for further fields to invade with his mighty pen, he might tilt his lance against the editor of the Boulder City News for an editorial that appeared on May 7, last.

HAROLD L. ICKES.
Washington.

Taxes And Prices

In response to the President's recent statement that a tax cut at this time would lead to higher prices, let us examine the contention that a reduction in taxes should force a reduction in all prices.

Under the present income tax withholding system, employes soon are lulled into the false conclusion that the salary they receive is their real salary. If, or instance, a man continues week after week to receive $75, he budgets himself to that amount. He soon forgets that he is paying $320 per year to the Federal Government in income taxes. As living costs rise, he argues that $75 a week is not sufficient to provide for himself and his family. He contends that he needs at least $85 per week to keep out of the red. He doesn't argue that he is receiving $85 per week and needs $97 to cover both his taxes and the cost of living. He forgets the taxes. He is only interested in his take-home pay; the amount needed to support himself and family. The employer meets his demand and, to cover the increased payroll, raises the prices of his products.

The persons who pay their income taxes in a lump sum, quarterly, semiannually or annually, such as doctors, lawyers, dentists, etc., can raise their fees to take care of their tax bills. And so on down the line.

It may be reasoned therefore that a reduction in taxes will lead to a corresponding decrease in prices. JANE SIMPSON.

Hoover's Service

The June 17 letter of C. M. Gilpin, who signs himself Secretary of the Society for the Prevention of World War III, in New York, must come from a very distorted mind. He seems to forget that we have just come through World War II, in which this country, as well as the rest of the world, paid in blood, sweat and tears (as he said about World War I). Now, he seems to be trying to blame Herbert Hoover for this second war.

How is it (if these false accusations are true), that Mr. Hoover has been called on by the powers that be in the Democratic Party ever since he left the White House to help them straighten out their foreign affairs pertaining to welfare and food problems? If we had more honest, right-thinking Herbert Hoovers in the country, the country and the world would be a better place in which to live.

Blue Ridge Crash

The article published in The Post of June 15 under my "by line," entitled, "Washington Doctor Describes Arrival at Airliner Wreckage," does not give full credit where credit is due. I tried to impress your reporter with the wonderful work done by the Red Cross and the countless others that took part in the search and disaster work. This was not mentioned in the article, nor was the horror and tragedy of the disaster which I felt and am sure others on the scene also felt deeply.

A second point that does a grave injustice to all the men on the scene is the statement that "I left because there was no need for doctors there." There was great need for doctors to care for any injured members of the rescue parties, and to supervise the removal, care and identification of the victims. The physicians that stayed on the scene, some for two or three days, were much needed and no doubt overworked. I left as I had to be on duty in Washington Saturday night.

I feel that the men on the scene should get all the credit in the world for the wonderful job they did in getting the dead down the mountain in such a short time.

Relief Lottery

If the present Congress wishes to make a hit with practically all of us, let it get busy and enact the relief-lottery law, as suggested recently over the radio.

This proposal constitutes one of the best solutions to the problem of world suffering that has as yet been offered, carrying, as it does, the promise of around three billions of dollars worth of relief to a war-weary world and costing not a penny to anybody in taxes. Moreover, this is a lottery to which no one can object, not even the most Puritan-minded of the ministers.

If I had my way about it the lady who thought up this plan of relief would get a medal of merit!

Wallace At The Watergate

The report of your Mary Spargo on the Wallace meeting is torn between the desire to present a straight news story and the desire to camouflage the fact of a large and enthusiastic turnout. Miss Spargo writes that "there were many elderly people, many persons who had obviously come out of curiosity, and here and there little groups of Wallace rooters whose voices were isolated in the apathy that hung over the gathering."

Granted that this was no Nuremberg rally or Wagner festival, there were many young people present, many total strangers who shared seats in view of the confusing overflow, and large groups of Wallace rooters whose voices were lost in the general air of friendliness that hung over the gathering. A capacity crowd was seated at 8 o'clock, two hours before Wallace appeared, and remained seated on stone steps through an evening of political speeches until 11.

Some $8000 worth of tickets was sold before the night of the meeting, and seating arrangements broke down because of a last-minute overflow. A spontaneous collection of $8000 was made, which is an average of approximately $1 per person, although most of the audience paid only 60 cents a ticket. Wallace's chief applause came when he declared his stand on a third party, which was an indication of personal rather than political approbation.

I sympathize with Miss Spargo's problem in slanting this story, but The Post owes an apology to the 10,000 Washingtonians who were present at the Wallace meeting in spite of coercion and congressional threats. JEAN KUDLAK.
Washington.

Your comment on the ovation at the Wallace rally which may have been short of thunderous, brought back to my mind the feeling of uneasiness with which I left the Watergate Monday night. There seemed to be an atmosphere of general let-down and dissatisfaction. The crowd had expected something more.

Then I knew why. Is this the man derided by the papers as a dangerous Communist and subversive? Are these the speeches which the Administration denies, the State Department attacks, and Congress attempts to repress? Perhaps the national press has done too good a job on Wallace, and when Monday night's audience got calm words of logic instead of fiery hysteria, it left feeling like the proverbial country cousin who has just been taken by a city slicker. GERTRUDE CHAP.
Washington.

Mary Spargo's description of the Wallace meeting at the Watergate seemed to me inadequate, for it looked stupendous to me. Instead of a mere "2000" standing outside, I counted within a few feet 100 people standing three deep, and that could be multiplied by 500 yards.

I thought the applause was too frequent for the continuity of the speech—and was that a roar or a whisper when Wallace threatened a third party? The "8500" paid admissions was probably correct, but I wonder if 8500 could be gathered who would pay a nickel to hear any one of Wallace's leading opponents. G. L. REES.

Trainees' Morals

LIVELY ARGUMENT over how good a guardian the Army can be to an 18-year-old boy is in the offing as opponents of universal training prepare for their day in court.

The President's Advisory Commission on Universal Training has kept this issue out of its report, on which its members are being heard by the House Armed Services Committee. It has recommended a universal training program wholly on the grounds of defense urgency.

Its foes will answer it on this issue—but also on others. The point that comes closest to American parents, "What will barracks life do to my boy?" figures most prominently, at least among women, in the Nation-wide argument that the commission's report has set off.

The report proposes safeguards for trainee morality and provision for "spiritual exercises." The Army has been trying to demonstrate through its Fort Knox experiment that these can be provided. It has given wide publicity to this project, has taken legislators, heads of organizations and leading citizens to the camp to get first-hand knowledge.

WHILE MOST visitors have been impressed, most foes of universal training remain unconvinced. They call the experiment an attempt to sugar-coat militarism. They point out that 560 handpicked officers and men, including two chaplains and a psychiatrist, are supervising 664 men, all Army volunteers. Such conditions, they say, couldn't be duplicated in training a million conscripts. They also charge the rosier phases of camp life have been presented to the public, that profanity, drinking, other misconduct, have not been eliminated, and that the training goal is the regimented military mind.

Those having such skepticism of the Fort Knox plan are not likely to have much faith in the commission's proposals for a better moral and mental climate for trainees. There is widespread, deep-seated feeling, among women particularly, that the pattern of Army life demoralizes and mentally stifles teenagers.

Some exponents of training attribute this feeling to "momism," to the prolonged adolescence of American youth, to the effect of soft and sheltered living. Others admit it is natural to the American social and religious tradition, but say the dangerous living of today demands that boys put on men's shoes—and meet their temptations—earlier in life than formerly. All Americans, they say, will have to grow up faster.

Also this natural American repulsion to the price of making this country an armed camp now comes up against what a commission that has been studying the problem for five months regards as a necessity for national defense—and survival. While the argument for and against this conclusion centers publicly around whether or not universal training makes for effective defense in atomic war, yet most parents continue to think of the personal aspects of the problem.

THE ARMY feels that the moral grounding of a youth should come long before he is 18, and that if parents have done their job adequately, they need not worry about what he faces as a trainee. Parents reply that youths at an impressionable age, taken from accustomed surroundings and normal contact with girls and given the anonymity of a uniform, are subject to temptations they may succumb to no matter what their rearing.

Though the Army apparently is doing what it can to make defense training of youth a decent and beneficial business, yet anything connected with war is likely to be somewhat ruthless, regimented, even immoral. However, the way the world is now drifting, the Nation either has to prepare for war, or else mobilize its entire thought, energy and resources to prevent it.

Some general dramatic awakening to both national and world responsibility is needed for all ages, but especially for youth, which in recent decades has come up with little sense of obligation for the privileges it enjoys. Unless the Nation can be enlisted in a truly sacrificial crusade to stop war, and there is little sign of this now, the present argument over universal training may soon become entirely academic.

"Religion In The Schools"

The chairman of the Committee for the Defense of Civil and Religious Liberty made the statement in his letter of June 18 that the teaching of religion in schools would bring about an era of "medieval persecution and civil repression." No proof of either fact or logic substantiated this statement.

We will not "return" to medieval religion merely by teaching religion, any more than we will "return" to medieval government merely by teaching history and law. The teaching of music in schools does not mean subservience to Petrillo. The teaching of health and hygiene does not mean subservience to the American Medical Society.

Religion is essentially hope and its function is to give meaning to life, to overcome the modern sensation of utter futility and human worthlessness, to halt the ancient, pagan belief in fatalism, and to teach children respect for other people's life, property and dignity. Can this be persecution?

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Revision Of U. S. Policy

IF ITS fundamental conception is respected and followed, Secretary Marshall's Harvard speech will mark the beginning of a more natural and normal relationship between the United States and the European world. Mr. Marshall insisted that the plan of European rehabilitation should be made in Europe, not in America, and that our role is to support, assist, and encourage but not to initiate and lead, or to compel the European nations to adopt an American plan.

Lippmann

For we have realized, as the gravity of the impending crisis has become better understood, that if Europe is to become less dependent upon us economically, it must become less dependent politically. Thus, as long as Mr. Bevin and Mr. Bidault look first to Washington on European questions, they will not come together as Europeans. The fantastic fact that there is not yet a common Franco-British-Belgian-Dutch policy about Germany and the Ruhr has almost certainly been due mainly to an excessive deference to and preoccupation with Washington.

The Harvard speech is, I believe, intended to change this false relationship among the European nations and with this country. It says in effect that instead of each of them seeking agreement with us separately, they should agree among themselves. For we cannot govern Europe and do not want to have to try. The European nations must govern themselves in order that we may be able to help them effectively over the transition from war to peace. To become self-supporting they must begin by being self-reliant.

THIS DOES NOT mean that we are withdrawing from Europe. We shall continue to maintain the balance of power along the Stettin-Trieste line and in the Middle East, and we are offering to support a program of European recovery. This is in no sense isolationism. But we shall have to draw back from too intimate entanglement, from excessive intervention, in the interior life of the European continent.

The agreement just made with the Greek government is a concrete example of this too intimate entanglement and excessive intervention. Even if we admit that in the case of Greece there was no alternative, what we have gotten into in Greece is a clear and striking example of what we cannot afford to let ourselves in for in other countries. If what we have to do in the way of governing Greece is the "Truman doctrine" in practice, then it is out of the question that we should apply it elsewhere in Europe.

Imagine trying to do anything resembling the Greek operation in Italy, or the Netherlands, not to speak of France or Great Britain! The Greek entanglement illustrates perfectly the necessity for the basic change in our European policy which the Marshall speech signalized.

THE NEW WORLD can, as Canning said more than a century ago, redress the balance of the Old World. But it cannot govern, administer, direct or, except in limited amounts and temporarily, subsidize, the Old World.

If Europe is threatened by Soviet imperialism, the United States cannot save Europe by confronting Russia alone. Europe must save itself. The United States can assist Europe to save itself only if the main effort of salvation is made in Europe.

The deep wisdom of the Harvard speech is that it rests upon a true estimate of our relationship with Europe, avoiding both the fallacy of isolation and its no less fallacious alternative, which is universal unilateral interventionism, or what Theodore Roosevelt used to call the policy of "meddlesome Mattie."

THE NEEDS of Europe are urgent. Nevertheless, now that we have made the right start, we shall do well to make haste slowly, to let the seeds planted in the Harvard speech germinate and bear their fruits in Europe.

For we can help effectively only as fast in Europe as a whole, or in any part of it, for example the Ruhr, as the nations most concerned are able and willing to act together.

Nor can we move any faster than that at home. If Congress and the people are to support a European program on the scale which the situation requires, it will have to be very clear to them that this is in fact a program of recovery and of peace, and not just another way of doling out relief that cures nothing. Only a program made in Europe by agreement among Europeans will carry with it a reasonable hope that it is the real thing.

Washington Calling

New England Conscience

THE NEW ENGLAND conscience is a wonderful and a fearful thing. It has contributed immeasurably to American character.

Childs

A generous measure of that conscience belongs to Senator Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire. Like so many other New Englanders before him who have fought the battles of conscience, Tobey does not hesitate to champion unpopular causes.

He was one of the very few Republicans and the only Senator from the industrial East to oppose actively the Reed-Bulwinkle bill. He opposed it because he believes it gives to the railroads the kind of economic power that no private company or group of companies should possess. In permitting the roads to agree on rates outside the scope of the antitrust laws, the bill, as Tobey sees it, gives to private corporations a greater power than Government.

When the Senate passed the Reed-Bulwinkle bill, Tobey could not be present to have his final say against it. He was called back to New Hampshire by the serious illness of his wife, who has been his lifelong helpmate and partner.

His presence in the Senate would, of course, have made no difference in the outcome. The vote on adoption was 60 for and 27 against. Most of the opposition came from Southern Senators, including conservative Democrats who believe that higher freight rates in the South are part of a pattern of discrimination that holds their region and the West in colonial dependence.

WESTERN Senators opposed it, too. Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, whose opposition to monopoly controls is unremitting, succeeded in adding several amendments which would put Government restraints on the private rate agreements. His chief amendment would have required submission of the agreements to Congress before they could be approved. When this was rejected, he voted against the bill.

In a narrow, regional sense, this was not Tobey's fight. New England is in the favored freight rate zone. But the Senator from New Hampshire has a sense of righteousness—a conscience—that makes him take on fights even though they may not immediately serve the special interest of his own State.

He stepped into another fight in the same way. That was when he stopped the confirmation of the President's friend, Edwin W. Pauley, to be Undersecretary of the Navy. Tobey believed that Pauley was disqualified by his efforts to get the vast tideland oil reserves turned over to the States and thereby taken away from the Federal Government.

THERE WAS no political animus in this. Tobey had fought in behalf of Democratic nominees when he thought they were being unfairly attacked. One of them was New Dealer Aubrey Williams, whose nomination to a Government bureau brought up the familiar charge of communism. Tobey went back to a Democratic hero, Grover Cleveland, to find a powerful statement to rebuke those who were raising the Communist charge:

"Communism is a hateful thing and a menace to peace and organized government. But the communism of combined wealth and capital, the outgrowth of overweening cupidity and selfishness which insidiously undermine the justice and integrity of free institutions, is not less dangerous than the communism of oppressed poverty and toil which, exasperated by injustice and discontent, attacks with wild disorder the citadel of rule."

Tobey, the blunt-spoken New Hampshireman, is opposed to both those communisms. A deeply religious man, he draws inspiration and strength from the Bible. His political opponents have often been laid low by an apt passage from the Scriptures intoned in Tobey's resounding basso profundo.

There is something about Tobey of an earlier America. For nearly 40 years, he and his wife have held an interdenominational hymn festival on their farm near Temple, N. H., on the last Sunday in August. In late years, thousands have come from the surrounding countryside.

Tobey's fight on Pauley made President Truman angry. He wrote Tobey a curt, contemptuous letter. But Tobey is not one to bear a grudge. If and when the President vetoes the the Reed-Bulwinkle bill, he find Tobey fighting to sustain the veto. Tobey represents not just New Hampshire but the entire United States. A few more Senators like him would be useful just now.

Coal Is King

By Barnet Nover

The World Bank And The Ruhr

JUST AS the essential corollary to the Truman doctrine is the Marshall plan, so the indispensable supplement to the Marshall plan is the proposal for the immediate expansion of the Ruhr's coal production made, among others, by President John J. McCloy of the World Bank.

NOVER

This country would be frittering away its substance if, in the case of every country threatened by Russian pressure tactics, we had to rush in with large-scale emergency aid, just as we did in the case of Greece and Turkey.

Such palliative action may be necessary and unavoidable in some cases. To get at the root of the present European disorder, it is essential that measures be taken to speed the recovery of Europe as a whole.

This is the point and the purpose of the Marshall plan. And it is precisely because they see in this plan a means, possibly the only means, of their salvation that the statement of the American Secretary of State has aroused such enthusiasm in Great Britain and elsewhere.

IN HIS SPEECH in the House of Commons, following his talks with Premier Ramadier and Foreign Minister Bidault of France, Foreign Secretary Bevin made it clear that so far as Britain's attitude toward the Marshall plan is concerned, the emphasis will be on quick action.

"The guiding principle I shall follow in any talks I have on the matter," he said, "will be speed."

He added, significantly, and with Russian tactics at past international conferences clearly in mind, that he "would not be a party to holding up the economic recovery of Europe by means of procedure, terms of reference, or all the paraphernalia which may go with it."

Yet even with the best will in the world, and even with Russia cooperative rather than obstructionist, the carrying out of the intent of the Marshall proposal is bound to be slow.

THAT IS WHY it is essential, first of all, that something be done right away to take care of Europe's immediate and pressing needs. Among the greatest and most urgent of these is coal.

If France had all the coal needed by her factories, her power plants, her railroads, her homes, she would be much further along the road to recovery than she is. The same is true of Great Britain, of Italy, of the Netherlands and other countries.

In 1946 the United States shipped around 18 million tons of coal to Europe. Our coal exports this year may reach the incredible total of 36 million tons as against prewar exports of only a million tons a year.

American coal has been indispensable to many a European nation. But, at around $22 a ton, the cost to the purchasers has been tremendous. For Europe as a whole it has meant a vast drain on wholly inadequate dollar balances.

FOR THIS and for other reasons, the rehabilitation of Europe's coal production and the restoration, so far as possible, of prewar lines of distribution is one of the first essentials of European recovery.

We can expect only limited cooperation in this regard from the countries, such as Poland, within the Russian sphere of influence. But much can be done to expand the coal production in western Europe and particularly in the Ruhr.

This is where the proposal made by Mr. McCloy and also, in somewhat different form by former Gov. Harold Stassen, by John Foster Dulles and others, comes in.

Mr. McCloy has suggested that a Ruhr Coal Authority be set up to direct expansion of the Ruhr coal production. To aid in that direction a World Bank loan would be made available, the loan to be guaranteed by Great Britain and the United States, as the countries in occupation of the Anglo-American zone and by the countries receiving Ruhr coal.

The immediate objective would be the stepping up of production to 350,000 tons a day. At this rate exports of Ruhr coal to France, for instance, would be twice what they were during the first quarter of this year. The drain on France's dollar exchange would thus be eased. Moreover, western Germany would have made available to it funds out of which to pay for food and other essential imports.

Mr. McCloy's plan is believed to have the enthusiastic approval of General Marshall. It is now the subject of important talks in Berlin between Lewis Douglas, our Ambassador in Great Britain, Gen. Lucius Clay, commander of the American zone in Germany, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, commander of the British zone.

Certainly it is high time that the scandalous lag in Ruhr coal production which has been allowed to continue for many months and which has done so much to hold back Europe's recovery, be ended rapidly.

Price of Corn Goes Over $2 For First Time in History

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Corn futures went above $2 a bushel yesterday for the first time in history; and then before the close slumped off to $1.97⅜, off 1⅝ from the Thursday close.

Yesterday high for July corn was $2.00¾. The previous all-time high was registered on July 10, 1919, when July futures went up to $1.99⅛.

Cash corn reached $2.15, only 2 cents a bushel below the all-time high for cash corn of $2.17 set in May, 1920.

Some observers saw one possible result from the higher corn prices—a further reduction in meat supplies. Even at present high prices for livestock, farmers will hesitate about feeding $2 corn, and will sell their animals at lighter weights.

While corn was setting new records, wheat, which three months ago crashed above $3 a bushel for the second time in history, was slumping.

The July wheat close last night at $2.15½ left it unusually close, in price, to corn. The wheat price was 2½ cents below Thursday's close.

Last March, when wheat reached a high of $3.05 a bushel, corn was selling for $1.79.

None of the market experts around the Department of Agriculture would offer an explanation of the market's maneuvers.

Chiefly they attributed the rise in corn to floods and cold weather throughout the corn belt, particularly Iowa. Much corn has not yet been seeded, much corn land has been under water, and much was seeded late and is in danger of an early freeze this fall.

The slump in wheat is seasonal, experts say. The huge harvest has started in the Southwest, and wheat is overflowing the market.

Corn Products Go Up

New York, June 20 (AP).—Corn Products Refining Co. announced today price advances of 20 to 35 cents a hundredweight, effective tomorrow, on all products except corn sugar, due to the sharp rise in corn prices.

Pork Production Prospects Improve Little Over Last Year

The pork shortage which the United States has been experiencing the last year shows little promise of improving for another year, a report of the little pig crop for this year indicates.

The spring crop totaled 53,151,000, the Department of Agriculture reported, compared with 52,392,000 a year ago, or only 1½ per cent larger.

However, the Bureau of Agricultural Economic predicated a fall pig crop (between now and December) of 32,500,000, or 6 per cent better than a year ago.

These figures compare unfavorably with the record crop of 1943, when the count was above 74 million. In 1942 the crop was above 61 million.

Both Maryland and Virginia showed larger than average increases.

The spring pig crop in Maryland was estimated at 198,000 against 181,000 a year ago and prewar average of 170,000.

The Virginia crop was estimated at 538,000, compared with 525,000 in 1946, and a prewar average of 519,000.

Meanwhile, a report on the livestock market by the department showed choice beef selling in the New York wholesale market at $43.50 per 100 pounds, against $22.30 a year ago under price ceilings.

Fresh pork loins averaged $54 against $26.62 a year ago; hams $58 against $30.62; bacon $57 against $27.88 a year ago.

Bill Brewing to Let 30,000 Poles Into U. S., Says Robsion

Representative Robsion (D., Ky.) said yesterday that "a number of representatives" are preparing legislation to permit immigration to the United States of approximately 30,000 battle-toughened Polish troops.

These Poles are in Britain and have refused to return to their homeland, which is now under Communist domination.

Robsion's statement came while Immigration Commissioner Ugo Carusi and Rabbi Philip Bernstein were testifying before a House Judiciary Subcommittee in support of a bill to allow admission of 400,000 of Europe's homeless war refugees over a four-year period.

Rabbi Bernstein, adviser on Jewish affairs to Gen. Lucius Clay, United States commander in chief in Europe, told the subcommittee that not more than 25 per cent of the Jewish refugees, or approximately 60,000, would, if given the opportunity, choose to come to this country. He said:

"There is no question that the great majority of Jewish displaced persons strongly desire to settle in Palestine."

He said in a prepared statement that about a third of the 60,000 Jews who would like to enter the United States are children.

The majority of the adults are tailors, carpenters, painters, textile workers and shoemakers, he said.

5 Rail Unions Renew Demand For Operating Rule Changes

Chicago, June 20 (AP).—Five railroad unions, representing about 350,000 operating employes, today renewed demands for 44 changes in the so-called working rules, the issue that precipitated the Nationwide railroad strike 13 months ago.

Earlier this week conferences started between carrier representatives and officers of 17 nonoperating unions on demands for a 20 cents an hour wage increase for approximately one million nonoperating employes.

Railroads have estimated the wage demands would increase transportation costs 569 million dollars annually. D. P. Loomis, chairman of the Western Carriers Conference Committee, said the 44 rule changes proposed by the five operating unions would add an additional billion dollars annually to railroad costs.

Loomis said the rule demands "constitute the biggest featherbed threat that ever menaced private industry. Twenty-eight of the proposed rules would compel the railroads to pay more wages for the same or less work. Seven would require additional and unnecessary men to do the same thing, and three would interfere with work assignments and the appointment of supervisory personnel."

Loomis said the "most costly" of the 44 rule demands was the one to limit the length of freight trains to 70 cars and passenger trains to 14 cars.

Last year's two-day rail strike ended by acceptance of a compromise settlement proposed by President Truman which added 2½ cents per hour, in lieu of rule demands, to a 16-cent-an-hour hike in basic pay previously awarded the unions by the President's fact-finding board.

Military Costs Bear Watching, Gen. Marshall Tells Leaders

By the United Press

Secretary of State George C. Marshall told the Nation's military leaders yesterday that they have not put enough effort into the problem of reducing military costs.

The former Army Chief of Staff said that military men must watch expenses more closely as they try to give the country adequate national defense.

In an address before the National War College's first graduating class, he noted that military leaders usually protest when Congress slashes their budget, but:

"We erred with dogmatic requirements. It is useless to say political leaders fail unless we assure the public we did our best with keeping down the cost."

Admiral William D. Leahy, President Truman's chief of staff, presented diplomas to the 100 graduates.

The college was organized by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to improve relations among the high commands of the State, War and Navy Departments.

Marshall warned that it will be "more and more difficult to get Congress to approve military appropriations that swell the budget."

He said the War College general staff never had put sufficient effort into preparing staff studies on the budget which made military requirements clear to civilians.

Four District Students Attend Youth Meeting

Four Washington high school students are attending the first national YMCA-YWCA conference on modern youth problems at Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa this week. They are Pat Mann, Western High School; Dorothy DeVore, Roosevelt High School; Art Horsman, Eastern High School, and Henry Buck, Eastern High School.

Job Discrimination Aids Reds, Says Jewish Labor Unit

The Jewish Labor Committee declared yesterday that job discrimination in the United States "is doing more for the spreading of communism than can hordes of totalitarian agents."

Adolph Held, chairman of the committee, appealed for enactment of legislation which would set up a national commission against discrimination in employment because of race or creed.

Held said his committee speaks for 500,000 Jewish workers.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, urged enactment of the legislation as a safeguard against "a subtle subversive attack upon our way of life."

Douglas Officials Are Called in Air Safety Inquiry

President Truman's special Air Safety Inquiry Board called the first witnesses yesterday in its search for new means to reduce aviation accidents.

Chairman James M. Landis of the five-man board let it be known that the meeting would be closed, and that no statement could be expected afterward.

The first experts summoned were Arthur Raymond, engineering vice president of Douglas Aircraft Co., and his No. 1 aide, Ed Burton, the company's chief engineer. It was three Douglas aircraft—all DC4S—which figured in three crashes costing 146 lives between May 29 and June 13.

The special board may make its first recommendations next week.

Gram Seated As New Head Of Bond Club

By S. Oliver Goodman

Harvey B. Gram, jr., was installed last night as president of the Bond Club of Washington at the conclusion of the group's field day at the Manor Club in Norbeck, Md.

Gram

Gram, general partner in Johnston, Lemon & Co., succeeds Edson B. Olds of Goodwyn & Olds.

Gram, a lieutenant colonel in the Air Corps during the war, has been associated with his present firm since 1932. He was awarded the Legion of Merit for his work in organizing, equipping and moving of four air commando groups. A graduate of Wesleyan College in Connecticut, he is married and has three sons.

Other officers installed were Fenton Cramer of Ferris & Co., vice president; William C. Coe of Mackall & Coe, secretary-treasurer. Named to the board of governors were Austin Rohrbaugh of Robinson, Rohrbaugh & Lukens, and Edgar B. Rouse of Robert C. Jones & Co., chairman of this year's outing.

More than 275 local investment dealers and guests participated in the day's fun, which involved "trading" on a mock stock exchange, golf tournaments and horseshoe pitching.

15th Street Personality

No stand-offish person is David S. Hendrick, senior partner in W. B. Hibbs & Co. Has private office but more often you'll find him in boardroom, where he can mingle with the tape-studlers.

Hendrick

Distinguished looking with piercing blue eyes, he's watching his weight but can't resist a medium-rare T-bone steak or lobster.

Entered investment business in 1939 after long career as auto dealer. Was pioneer in latter field and sold the four-cylindered graduate of Georgetown University Law School (class of 1909). Crawford auto back in 1910. A he's proud of affiliation with Delta Chi fraternity. Recently was named chairman of board of Lanston Monotype Machine Co., but refused remuneration for that work.

Likes to vacation in mid-winter down in Florida and gloat over Washington weather idiosyncrasies.

New Woodward Officers

J. W. Anderson, whose election as vice president and treasurer of Woodward & Lothrop was announced Thursday night, is a native of Brunswick, Ga. He joined the Washington department store in 1922, worked through the ranks and became treasurer and a director in 1942. He is married and lives at 4341 Verplanck pl. nw.

Anderson

W. W. Everett, jr., the new assistant vice president, is son of Woodward's retiring president. Except for two years naval service, he has been employed at the store since 1934. He is married, has three children and lives at 107 Westmoreland st., Westmoreland Hills, Md.

Sales Gain Narrows Here

Washington department store sales in the week ended June 14 continued to show a narrowed gain over the like 1946 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. The latest increase was 2 per cent.

For the four weeks ended June 14, local sales were 5 per cent more than in the same 1946 period.

1946 Traffic Fatality Rate Shows Drop

The 1946 traffic fatality rate of 9.8 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles was the lowest recorded in the country's automotive history, according to the President's Highway Safety Conference.

This rate also represents more than one third the distance toward the conference's three-year goal set a year ago, conferees were told yesterday by Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker Corp. and chairman of the public support advisory group.

The three-year program aimed to cut the fatality rate from 12 to 6 deaths pere 100 million vehicle miles, which would save 19,000 lives annually as well as 650,000 injuries and well over a billion dollars in property damage, accordin gto Hoffman, who was the final speaker of this year's three-day conference, hel dat the auditorium of the Department of the Interior.

Warns of Early Success

Hoffman, who is also chairman of the Automotive Saftey Foundation, warned that the one third of the goal attained was the "easy third of our journey." The very novelty of a nationwide attack on accidents, spearheaded by the President himself, was bound to produce measurable results, he pointed out, and the initial enthusiasm will tend to dissipate.

He declared the "Action Program for 1947" should be based on full-scale adoption of the past year's program, which, he said, must have been on the right track. The 14 states which applied one-fourth or less of the "Action Program" last year had an average fatality rate some 21 per cent hgiher than the 13 states which complied substantially with all of the basic recommendations of the Conference, he asserted.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Conference chairman, said the Federal Government, with a multi-million dollar stake in highway safety, has taken the lead in a Nationwide campaign to cut down traffic accidents.

The War Department has re-examined 100,000 of its drivers since last July, he said, while the Navy has established a compulsory standard procedure for testing, selecting and licensing its drivers. The Interior and Postoffice Departments have improved their safe driving practices, the Federal Works Administrator added.

Otto F. Messner, Harrisburg, Pa., chairman of the State Officials National Highway Safety Committee, reported that 21 States have adopted vehicle standards sponsored by the American Association of State Highway Officials, and that South Dakota is now the only State without a driver license law.

"We accept it as a fact," he said, "that the battle for safe highways will finally be won on the main streets of America, not in police court, schoolroom or at the drafting table or in the meeting hall."

Auto Tour Set To Birthplace Of Washington

National Capital Parks Superintendent Irving C. Root has announced a number of weekend events of interest to Washingtonians.

Park Naturalist W. Drew Chick, jr., will be in charge of an auto caravan to George Washington Birthplace National Monument on Sunday morning. Autos joining the caravan will meet at the parking area at the shrine at 11:30 a. m. The route to this area is via Waldorf and La Plata, Md., over the Morgantown Bridge to Oak Grove, Va., where a road leads to the first President's birthplace.

The return trip will include visits to Washington's boyhood home, Ferry Farm, and the home of his sister and mother. Chartered buses will leave 1416 F st. nw. at 9 a. m. Sunday for those who are not driving.

At 2:30 p. m. Sunday, Stanley W. McClure, park historian, will conduct a tour of Lafayette Park. This group will meet at the Jackson statue in the center of the park for a tour of the monuments in the park and McClure's lecture on the Blair, Decatur and Dolly Madison houses.

Major Ralph W. Frence will conduct a camera stroll in Dumbarton Oaks Gardens at 2:00 p. m. Sunday. He will meet participants at 31st and R sts., nw.

Cultivated trees on the Capitol Grounds will be discussed by Ranger Naturalist James A. Fowler and Chick during a walk from 3 to 5 p. m. tomorrow. It will begin at the Grant Memorial at the east end of the Mall, 1st and Pennsylvania ave., n. w.

Pointers on the planting and care of garden trees will be given during a walk to be held 3 to 5 p. m. Sunday. Fowler will meet this group at the Chevy Chase Circle bus terminal on Connecticut ave.

Woman Challenges Another to Duel

Paris, June 20 (U.P.).—Middle-aged Mme. Madeleine Finidori has challenged Mme. Madeleine Jacobs, crack police reporter of the newspaper Franc Tireur, to a duel, it was reported today.

Mme. Finidori told French newspapers she had sent two women seconds to challenge Mme. Jacobs. She complained that Mme. Jacobs wrote recently that she led a courtroom demonstratoin during a trial, and that she refused to publish a correction.

Mme. Jacobs said she had no intention of meeting Mme. Finidori in a duel or of changing her report.

100 Reported Killed In China River Wreck

Conroy Summoned to Explain Charges Against Fire Chief

The Commissioners yesterday summoned Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy to appear before them next Thursday to substantiate or retract his charges that Fire Chief Clement Murphy has demoralized the department.

Captain Conroy, head of No. 19 Engine Company and president of the Firemen's Association, made the charges Tuesday while testifying before a House District Subcommittee on a bill to set up a five-day work week for local firemen.

The bill was subsequently approved by the subcommittee and sent to the House District Committee, which gave its approval yesterday and forwarded the bill to the House floor.

Commissioner John Russell Young, who was present at the subcommittee hearing when the attack was made Tuesday, said the "Commissioners cannot ignore" such charges.

"If there is anything to these charges," Young said, "we will naturally want to talk to Chief Murphy."

But if Captain Conroy can't back up his statements, the Commissioners will ask for a public retraction, Young added.

Further action might also be taken against Captain Conroy "if his charges have hurt the efficiency and effectiveness of the fire department," Young said.

He said either Chief Murphy or Captain Conroy could be brought before an "impartial trial board" if the Commissioners found evidence to warrant such action.

Captain Conroy said Chief Murphy, who opposed the five-day week, would "occupy the same place in the hearts of firemen that Judas Iscariot does in the hearts of Christians."

Chief Murphy refused to answer the personal attack, telling the subcommittee he would stand on his record of nearly 29 years of fire department service.

Royall Sees Struggle Between Two Systems

Greensboro, N. C., June 20 (U.P.).—Undersecretary of War Kenneth C. Royall said tonight that either Communism or democracy eventually will rule the world.

He told the annual convention of North Carolina Disabled American Veterans that one of the two systems must finally prevail. He said it was not enough for America to show that democracy works within our own borders, adding that "we must prove that it can grow and thrive in other nations which are beset by perplexing problems. . . ."

Curley Is Directed to Appear Here Thursday for Committal

Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, under Federal sentence to serve 6 to 18 months for mail fraud, was directed yesterday to appear next Thursday in District Court for committal.

The 72-year-old former Congressman and one-time Massachusetts Governor is in a Cohasset, Mass., hospital suffering from diabetes and high blood pressure.

He was convicted here in January, 1946, on charges relating to his activities as president of Engineers Group, Inc., an organization the Government charged was formed to obtain war contracts for private firms.

He was accused of sending fraudulent securities through the mails.

James G. Fuller, a Boston and Washington associate of the Boston mayor in Engineers Group, Inc., in New York General Sessions Court, meanwhile, was sentenced yesterday to 5 to 6 years in Sing Sing on a grand larceny charge. United Press said he left immediately to begin serving the sentence.

Fuller was accused of passing a worthless check for $883.20. He was arrested in the New York case less than a month after he drew a sentence of eight months to two years here in the Curley case.

Curley is to appear in District Court here at 10 a. m. Thursday, according to a directive sent to his attorneys, William R. Leahy and Nicholas J. Chase, by Assistant U. S. Attorney Sidney S. Sachs.

Leahy said Curley would be in court Thursday if his condidtion permitted the trip here. Otherwise, Leahy said, the court would be told officially of Curley's illness.

Leahy said that at this time, he was contemplating no further legal steps.

In Cohasset, Dr. Edward H. Schott told United Press Curley is "definitely on the mend" at the private hospital he entered a week ago but that it was uncertain whether he will be able to come to Washington Thursday.

His last chance to avoid the sentence faded Monday when the Supreme Court here turned down his appeal for the second time.

North Washington Lions Elect Noble S. Shilt

North Washington Lions Club yesterday announced the election of Noble C. Shilt to succeed Jack Blank as president of the organization.

Other officers are: Stanley F. Holland, first vice president; Robert W. Davis, second vice president; Dr. Julius J. Radice, third vice president; H. C. Phillips, secretary-treasurer; William F. Dismer, jr., lion tamer; and Elton H. Brown, tail twister. Newly elected directors are Dr. William D. Curtis and Gilbert N. Keller.

Syrian Plane Crash Survivor Saw 1 Engine Out, 1 Ablaze

Damascus, Syria, June 20 (U.P.).—A survivor said today that one engine was out and another burning fiercely when the Pan American World Airways Constellation, Eclipse, crashed early yesterday at Meyadin on the Euphrates River, killing at least 15 of the 36 passengers aboard.

Official figures on the casualties were seven members of the crew of 10 and 8 passengers killed, and 10 others injured. There were unofficial reports that seven crew members and seven passengers were killed outright and that four died later.

Eustace Varsamis, a Greek businessman who was aboard, said that the far engine on the left quit 30 minutes before the crash. Five minutes before the accident, he said, the second engine on the left caught fire with a "tremendous flash."

"We were almost 18,000 feet high and the pilot almost succeeded in making a forced landing in the dark," he said.

But the plane split in two and "flames from the engines came right into the cabin."

"Some managed to crawl out and the rest burned to death," Varsamis said.

Besides the crew, there was only one other American aboard, Charles Shoman of the State Department. He was not hurt.

Dr. J. R. Reuling Heads Tuberculosis Society

San Francisco, June 20 (U.P.).—Dr. James R. Reuling of Bayside, N. Y., was elected president of the National Tuberculosis Association last night. Dr. Herbert Mantz of Kansas City, Mo., was named president-elect, making him the association's first choice for the 1948 presidency.

President Truman and Dr. Charles J. Harfield, Philadelphia, were chosen honorary vice presidents. Dr. H. Stuart Willis, Sanatorium, N. C., was named secretary.

Reds Say Norway Has Atomic Research

Moscow, June 20 (AP).—The Soviet army newspaper Red Star said today that atomic research was being carried on in Norway under the supervision and leadership of American scientists.

"Norwegian scientists recently visited the United States, acquainting themselves with the work of atom splitting in scientific research organizations in the United States of America," Red Star said.

They will present a sacred musical and preaching program at a "Youth for Christ" rally today at 8 p. m. at Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne. Frank Freed, a war veteran who earned the Purple Heart, is speaker for the group.

The Crusaders will conduct services tomorrow at 10:45 a. m. at Cherrydale (Va.) Baptist Church, Lee Highway and North Quebec st., Arlington.

The Young Adult Fellowship Class of National City Christian Church will present Mrs. Elva Merideth of Denver, Colo., in a piano recital tomorrow at 6:30 in the social hall, 1308 Vermont ave. nw.

Rev. Beckwith to Preach

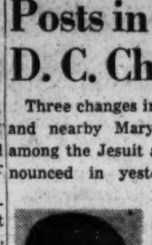
"A People With a Mind to Work" will be the Rev. Hubert Beckwith's sermon theme tomorrow at 11 a. m. at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

Three Jesuit Posts in Md., D. C. Changed

Three changes in the Washington and nearby Maryland area were among the Jesuit appointments announced in yesterday's Catholic Review by the Very Rev. David Nugent, S. J., provincial of the Maryland Province, Society of Jesus.



Fr. Pitts

The Rev. Francis J. Bradley, for a number of years on the faculty of Loyola College High School at Blakefield, Baltimore, comes to the faculty of Gonzaga High School, N. Capitol and K sts.

The Rev. Samuel R. Pitts, assistant director of the Manresa-on-the-Severn Retreat House near Annapolis, and a Washington native, was appointed principal of St. Joseph's College High School, Philadelphia. The Rev. John J. Brady of Gonzaga faculty will succeed Father Pitts at Manresa.

The Rev. Vincent L. Keelan, former provincial of the Maryland Province of the Society of Jesus, was assigned as minister and assistant prefect at Georgetown Preparatory School, Garrett Park, Md.

2 Ex-Servicemen Supervise School at Transfiguration

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Transfiguration Episcopal Church Sunday School is supervised by former servicemen.

They are Adrian Tolley, 21, the superintendent, and John Chaconas, 27, assistant superintendent.

Tolley served in four campaigns with the Third Army 179th Combat Engineers, and is now a student in economics at George Washington University.

Chaconas

Tolley

"My life was once saved by a split second by jumping into a German church while a shell demolished the square outside," Tolley recalls.

Chaconas Was Wounded

Chaconas served with a submarine squadron for two years after Pearl Harbor. He was in many engagements and was wounded.

Tolley lives with his parents at 4916 Illinois ave. nw. His father, Adrian Barclay Tolley, is chief of the social bureau of the White House. The family has attended Transfiguration Church more than 20 years. Young Tolley was baptized and confirmed there.

Chaconas lives with his wife and their 2½-year-old daughter, June Marie, at 5101 13th st. nw. Mr. and Mrs. Chaconas were baptized, confirmed and married at Transfiguration Church and their child was baptized there. Chaconas is now employed with the Washington Gas Light Co. He teaches a boys' class at Transfiguration Sunday School, 1419 Gallatin st. nw.

Both Active in Church

The former servicemen have taken an active role in the Young People's Forum at Transfiguration Church. Through the forum, boys and girls of high school age have heard men of experience from many fields of endeavor, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, civic government, psychiatry, entomology, geodetics and travel.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington Episcopal Diocese, will make his annual visit to Transfiguration Church tomorrow at 8 p. m., when he will confirm a class and preach.

Class to Meet in Open

The Hartwell Class of Bethesda Methodist Church will hold an outdoor meeting at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Broadhurst, 25 Lone Oak dr. There will be a picnic supper cooked at an open fireplace.

Missouri Services Set at Cathedral

President Truman's home State of Missouri will be honored at services tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. at the Washington Cathedral. The State flag will be borne in the processions and prayers offered for the State and its people. Canon W. Curtis Draper will address the morning service, and Canon George J. Cleaveland, the afternoon rites.

St. Paul's Picnic

St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday School will hold a picnic Thursday at Marshall Hall, Md.

Lutheran Rites For Centennial Set Tomorrow

Washington area Lutheran churches of the Missouri Synod will hold a service tomorrow marking the centennial of the Synod's founding.

A Sunday School children's chorus will sing at the service at 4 p. m. at Christ Lutheran Church, 16th and Gallatin sts. nw.

The Rev. O. C. Hoffman, teacher at the Concordia Collegiate Institute in Bronxville, N. Y., will address the adult program. Children will have a service at the same hour in the church basement, where the speaker will be the Rev. H. von Spreckelsen, associate pastor of Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Baltimore.

What is still known as the "Missouri Synod" today has churches in every State of the Union and also in foreign lands. The Synod started in St. Paul's Church, Chicago, in 1847 with 12 congregations and 4000 members. It now has 4700 congregations and 1,500,000 members. Its pioneer work was carried on by circuit riders traveling through the Middle Western States. The Synod's largest institution is Concordia Theological Seminary at St. Louis, Mo.

Pontifical Mass Slated Wednesday For Archbishop

A pontifical requiem mass for the repose of the soul of the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, late Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, will be offered Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. at St. Patrick's Church, 10th and G sts. nw. It will be a "Month's Mind Mass."

The Most Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, Auxiliary Bishop of Washington and Baltimore, and former rector of St. Patrick's, will pontificate.

Other officers of the mass will be the Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, assistant priest; the Very Rev. Bernard Ransing, CSC, superior of Holy Cross College, deacon, and the Rev. Joseph Kennedy, pastor of St. John's, Forest Glen, sub-deacon. A choir of priests from the two Archdioceses will chant under direction of the Very Rev. George A. Gleason, SS, president of St. Charles College. The Right Rev. Msgr. John J. Russell, pastor of St. Patrick's, will preach.

Augustana Lutheran Plans Lawn Festival

Augustana Lutheran Church, New Hampshire ave. and V sts. nw., will hold a midsummer lawn festival there Tuesday at 8 p. m. Proceeds will buy a motor bicycle for a Lutheran pastor abroad.

Miss Karin Eldred, appearing in Swedish dress, will sing folk songs. Representatives of the Swedish Legation will attend.

Hymn Festival to Present Group of 1000 Singers

The first annual Municipal Hymn Festival will highlight outdoor religious events scheduled for the Washington area tomorrow and in the coming week. Sunday School picnics, a ground-breaking and other open-air events also are slated.

More than 1000 singers from 20 choral groups will participate in the hymn "sing" at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Sylvan Theater, Washington Monument Grounds. Justin

Springman

Lawrie

Lawrie, choir director of the Foundry Methodist Church, is general chairman, and Charles Dana Beaschler, minister of music at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will be master of ceremonies.

The program will open with a concert by the Salvation Army Band, led by Capt. Leslie S. Hall. Dr. Robert Howe Harmon will lead community singing which will be followed by the invocation by Dr. Robert W. Brooks, pastor of Lincoln Temple Congregational Church.

There will be selections by the First Congregational Choir, directed by Whitford L. Hall; by the Cooperating Concert Choir Association, directed by Earle F. Lowder, Edward A. Carey and John W. Travis; by the Washington Community Chorus, conducted by Dean Warner Lawson, head of Howard University's music department, and by the New York Avenue Presbyterian Choir.

The latter part of the program will include solos by Margaret Montgomery, contralto; a brief message from Dr. Alfred Bilmanis, Minister from Latvia, where he was interested in community singing; and two selections by the New York Avenue Presbyterian Choir—"The Ballad for Americans," by Robinson, and "One World," by O'Hara. Fague Springman, young Washington baritone, will have the solo lead in the compositions of O'Hara and Robinson.

In the grand finale, the 1000-voice chorus will sing "God So Loved the World," from "The Crucifixion," by Stainer, with Travis conducting; "Gloria in Excelsis," from Mozart's "Twelfth Mass," with Dean Lawson directing, and "The Hallelujah Chorus," from Handel's "The Messiah," with Beaschler conducting. Woodley Kalehoff will be organist. The Rev. C. C. Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, will give the benediction.

Chairman Lawrie said he got his inspiration for the Municipal Hymn "Sing" while visiting Denver, Colo., several years ago, and witnessing a throng of 30,000 at an outdoor songfest. In event of rain tomorrow, the local event will be held on June 29 at the same time.

MOONLIGHT CRUISE

The D. C. Organized Bible Class Association will sponsor its twenty-fifth anniversary moonlight cruise on the SS Mount Vernon, Wilson Line, at 8:30 p. m., June 26. Harold S. King, association vice president, is general chairman.

NEW MINISTER OF MUSIC

Harold W. Dickensheets has accepted a call to become minister of music at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, effective in late August. He is a graduate of the Westminster Choir College, at Princeton, N. J. At present he is head of the voice department of Lenoir-Rhyne College, Hickory, N. C., and minister of music at the Hickory First Methodist Church.

TRACT PRIZE-WINNER

Milton Chase, member of Fourth Presbyterian Church, 13th and Fairmont sts. nw., is among the eight national winners in a tract-writing contest sponsored by the American Tract Society, New York City. His tract, which will eventually be nationally circulated, is on the theme "Why Worry." Chase was active in the District Christian Endeavor Union before entering the service. He is now back with his former employer—John F. Donohoe & Sons, realtors, 314 Pennsylvania ave. se.

DR. WILLIAMS HONORED

Dr. Robert M. Williams, pastor of Asbury Methodist Church, 11th and K sts. nw., has been selected for the second time to make a summer tour with the World Study Tours of Columbia University. He will visit England, France and other countries. He will leave by plane July 16, joining in London members of his group who sailed July 2.

CHAPLAIN REASSIGNED

Col. George F. Rixey, formerly deputy chief of Army chaplains and assistant inspector general, has been assigned as Twenty-fourth Corps Chaplain, the Associated Press reports from Seoul, capital of Korea. He replaces Lieut. Col. Vernon P. Jaeger, Port Townsend, Wash., who is returning to America. Chaplain Rixey lives at 3831 Macomb st. nw.

McCartneys Return to Capital, Recognition Comes to Dr. Elson

Dr. Albert J. McCartney, former pastor of the National (Covenant-First) Presbyterian Church and now director of the Chicago Sunday Evening Club, and Mrs. McCartney are spending part of the summer here.

The clergyman will speak tomorrow at 9 a. m. and 11 a. m. at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

Dr. and Mrs. McCartney are occupying their former apartment at 1302 18th st. nw., where they recently were visited by their son, Lieut. Albert Noble McCartney, a student at Harvard Law School. Dr. McCartney will be acting chaplain at the Lake Placid (N. Y.) Club for two weeks in August, and will return to Chicago about October 1.

Meanwhile, Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of the National Presbyterian Church, this week received an honorary degree of doctor of divinity from Occidental College, Los Angeles, Calif. Dr. Elson delivered the baccalaureate address.

Dr. Elson's citation was in recognition of his "preaching talents, administrative leadership and church statesmanship" while serving as Army chaplain and director of the Presbyterian restoration fund. He will return to his pulpit to preach tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Seminarian Accepts Call

Lawrence Williams, student at Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, has accepted a call to Immanuel-on-the-Hill Episcopal Church, Alexandria. He will preach his last sermon as seminarian tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw. He will be ordained to the diaconate June 26.

Vacation Schools Planned

Additional churches yesterday announced plans for summer Daily Vacation Bible Schools.

A National City Christian Church and Luther Place Memorial Church, both of Thomas Circle, will sponsor a school June 23 to July 11, Mondays through Fridays from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. Sessions will be held in annex 2, the National City social hall, 1308 Vermont ave. nw. Children from 4 to 12 years of age, irrespective of their religious faith, are invited to attend.

The Chevy Chase Community Vacation Bible School will open Monday at 9 a. m. Kindergarten and primary departments will meet at All Saints' Episcopal Church and the Juniors at Chevy Chase Baptist Church.

Procession Opens School

A procession through the Mount Pleasant area yesterday opened the annual Summer Vacation Bible School of National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd., nw. More than 100 youngsters, with flags and gayly-decorated wagons, took part. The school will operate Mondays through Fridays, from 9 a. m. to 12 p. m. There will be a young people's school at 7:30 p. m., June 19 and 20, and June 23, 24 and 25.

Call for Greater Spiritualism Stressed at Adventist Meeting

A warning that there must be no uncertainty in the voice of the church as it leads the way to home and salvation was given last night by Elder Louis K. Dickson, vice president of the General Conference World Headquarters of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Takoma Park.

Speaking on "a call to greater spiritualism" he preached before 1500 Adventists from 50 churches in the Washington, Virginia and Maryland portion of the Potomac Conference on the second day of its annual camp meeting at Sligo Church.

Despite abundant facilities the chure has to accomplish its objectives; it will fail, he asserted, if there does not arise sufficient men and women who are spiritually fitted to lead multitudes to safer ground.

Earlier in the day at another service, Dickson described conditions in Europe where he recently spent six weeks. Thirty million children are wandering over the face of Europe, hungry, homeless and without parents, he declared.

They have nothing but hopelessness before them, Dickson said. Plans for a half-million-dollar collection in a one-day contribution in September by Adventist churches toward Europe's food relief program were revealed by Dickson.

Highlight of the afternoon service was a talk by Elder Garland Hoag, a missionary in India for seven years, who said he was told by Mahatma Gandi that a religious crusade must dominate the world scene.

A calendar revision meeting will be hel dtoday at 8 p. m., with Elder Carlyle B. Haynes, chairman of the committee on calendar revision of the Religious Liberty Assocviation, as speaker.

Gen. Jackson's VMI Cannon Removed for Use in New Movie

Stonewall Jackson's cannon have been packed in cotton and moved from his statue at VMI to go back into action in a forthcoming Hollywood production

Stonewall Jackson's cannon—his personal battery at the first battle of Manassas—will fire in action again.

The four field pieces, long revered by generations of cadets at Virginia Military Institute, will recoil to black powder in the filming of "Tap Roots," a Universal-International picture.

The cannon, never before moved from the campus, have been dismantled and packed in cotton and sent to Asheville, N. C. By special arrangements with Gov. William Tuck of Virginia and Maj. Gen. Richard J. Marshall, VMI superintendent, the old chains which anchored them on the campus were severed by chisels.

They will appear in a movie version of James Street's novel of a Southern county which refused to secede with its State.

One of the cannon fatally injured a VMI student late last year when he applied a lighted torch to it after two other students had loaded it as a prank.

Firemen Close Md. Conclave With HighJinx

Frostburg, Md., June 20 (AP).—Maryland's volunteer firemen wound up their hilarious fifty-fifth annual convention today with a big parade of bands, drum corps and red wagons.

Some estimators guessed there were as many as 4000 marchers and fire trucks in the line. They guessed again that another 6000 watched it.

Frostburg (1940 population 7659) bulged at the seams.

Although the firemen left their best apparatus at home in case of emergency, there were plenty of bell-clanging, siren-blowing vehicles in the procession, including about $100,000 worth of new models which had been displayed by manufacturers.

A final piece of convention business before the parade started rolling was the fire chiefs' club election of officers.

Joseph A. Gammatteo of Glen Echo got the presidency. He's a vice president of the International Volunteer Firemen's Association and a director of the Eastern association.

Named along with him were William Turner of Church Hill, vice president; J. H. Brown of Sandy Spring, treasurer; James W. Dean of Preston, secretary, and the Rev. James M. Minter of Baltimore, chaplain.

Senate Group Allows 12 Million For Limited Overseas 'Voice

committee recommendation, however, and the funds are approved by a conference committee, they cannot be struck out in the House from a conference report on a parliamentary point of order.

Ball told reporters that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will not have time to consider the Mundt bill during this session.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall made a last minute plea to Congress yesterday to give legislative authority to the OIC program.

"Peace cannot be served by any rationing of American facts," Marshall said. He pointed out that it is "almost impossible to recruit additional highly trained personnel" here or abroad without legislative backing for the program.

His plea was voiced in a letter to Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) who is steering the bill through the House.

House leaders predicted final approval of the Mundt bill on Monday. The Senate stand, however, seems to make it certain that the OIC will receive at most the limited appropriation recommended by the Senate Appropriations group.

Hogan, Locke, Snead, Demaret Eliminated in PGA

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE TWO SUDDEN-DEATH rounds of 18-hole match play are out of the way in the PGA title tournament, and so are Ben Hogan, Bobby Locke, Sammy Snead and Jimmy Demaret, who are now spectators. Four of the biggest names in the tournament, including the defending champion and medalist, didn't survive the first day.

POVICH

They're out of the money like Assault would be if dropped into a four-furlong sprint. The 18-hole round is no true test of golf in the championship bracket and the games of such as Hogan, Locke, Snead and Demaret aren't geared to such brief consistency. There's not the chance for recovery offered over the 36-hole route, and the annals of the PGA are choked with the upsets achieved by obscure pros with hot sticks for 18 holes.

Tony Penna's victory over Hogan was the least surprising, perhaps. Penna is one of the top-drawer pros, dangerous in every tournament, but Demaret was spilled by Earl Martin, of Inglewide, Calif., only one day after Demaret outshot him by nine strokes in qualifying rounds. Locke, who was only two strokes back of Medalist Demaret with a qualifying card of 139, was sidelined by Henry Ransom, Ravinia, Ill., pro of no great fame who shot a 146 to qualify. Snead fell before the grand old war horse, Gene Sarazen.

THE PGA IS THE ONLY remaining major tournament that offers the high spectator interest of match play with its man-to-man aspects that always delight the galleries in contrast to the grim medal competition against par. The pros themselves prefer medal play and would like the PGA title decided on that basis, but are hesitant about interrupting the match play history of their most famous tournament.

When the battling swings into the 36-hole rounds starting today for the sixteen survivors of the 18-hole match play, the tournament will reach the exciting stage. The par busters of the medal play circuit are no sure shots to be at their best when stared in the eye by match-play competition, and few are the pros who excel at both.

The notable exception was, of course, Walter Hagen, who won the National Open five times at medal play and also won the PGA five times at match play. But Hagen not only had the shots to win under both conditions, but he was gifted with the temperament so important in man-to-man competition.

I'D SAY HAGEN was the Ty Cobb of the golf business, with his calculated attempts to rattle the opposition and make the fullest of the state of mind he achieved. Just as Cobb argued with pitchers and deliberately provoked his opponents to anger, Hagen played on the nerves of his opposition while maintaining a superb calm of his own when the test came.

One of Hagen's tricks was to unsettle his competition by arriving late on the first tee, and on one occasion he kept Abe Mitchell waiting for an hour and a half before a match. When Hagen did put in an appearance it was scarcely with an apology as he explained, "Sorry, but I couldn't get a taxi." The hopping-mad Mitchell was a soft touch when they did get under way.

The USGA caught up with Hagen and his stalling tactics, but he had other tricks, notably that of conceding long putts until he came to a crucial hole. At that point, on a short putt, Hagen would refuse to concede, and his bewildered opponent as likely as not would blow the putt and Hagen would walk away the winner.

FORMER OPEN CHAMPION Ralph Guldahl once disposed of Johnny Bulla with as clever a bit of knavery on the green as you ever did see. Both men were faced with moderately short putts, with Guldahl a couple of inches farther away and putting first. Instead of merely lining up his putt, Guldahl walked around the fringes of the entire green, surveying it ridiculously from every angle, and then putted it. Bulla, in a fret, missed his.

It was much the same sort of psychology that probably won Lew Worsham his National Open title last week when with a bit of audacity he insisted that Sammy Snead's putt and his own be measured on the last green at a time when Snead was preparing to hole out. Snead, unnerved by Worsham's act, blew the putt and the title.

It was the first indication, incidentally, that Worsham is given to practicing psychology along with his golf, and in the four days of match play he now faces at Detroit, he has that going for him along with the beauty of the game he shoots.

Lew also has what looks like easy going the rest of the way in his half of the bracket with many of the seasoned players eliminated. It's a wonderful opportunity for Worsham to bring the PGA trophy back to Washington along with the big National Open cup he picked up at St. Louis.

Masterson Shuts Out Browns on 2 Hits, 3 to 0

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Walter Masterson held the Browns to two hits and extended his shutout pitching streak to 34 consecutive innings last night, delivering a 3-0 victory to the Nats before 13,645 fans.

The tall right-hander, who in his previous two starts blanked the White Sox for 16 innings, and then shut out the Tigers, struck out eight Browns and permitted no man to reach second base.

In eight of the nine innings, Masterson disposed of the Browns in one-two-three order.

Rookie Third Baseman Eddie

Yost a Co-Hero

Yost was Masterson's co-hero. He scored the Nats' first run after opening the game with a two-bagger, and drove in the other two with a single in the next inning against Fred Sanford, Browns' Right-hander.

Sanford steadied and pitched one-hit ball against the Nats after the second inning, but the Browns never had a man in scoring position against Masterson.

Yost Drives in Two

Yost swung a big bat again in the second inning when the Nats moved into a 3-0 lead. They filled the bases with none out on Christman's single, a walk to Ferrel and a tardy throw by Judnich on Masterson's bunt. Yost moved two runs home with a line single to left.

Masterson meanwhile breezed through the first three innings, holding the Browns to one hit, striking out three, and facing only nine batters.

Not until the fifth did the Browns get their second man on base against Masterson, but he maintained his record of facing no more than three men in any inning. Heath who opened the fifth with a walk, was snuffled on an Vernon -to-Christman-to-Vernon double play on Judnich's grounder.

Masterson didn't yield the Browns their second hit until the seventh when Dillinger opened with a single to left, but again the Browns failed to get a man to second. Dillinger was out stealing on a pitch that struck out Zarilla. Lehner later drew a walk but Heath took a third strike.

Meanwhile Sanford was making a brave attempt to keep the Browns in the ball game, holding the Nats scoreless and allowing only one hit from the third to the sixth inclusive.

Masterson stretched his scoreless inning streak to 33 when he disposed of the Browns in one-two-three order in the eighth, fanning Hitchcock for his eighth strikeout of the game.

Lew Worsham Stays In With Two Wins

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Detroit, Mich., June 20.—Plum Hollow, scene of the Professional Golfers Association championship, became a veritable Death Valley today, burying the hopes of six of golfdom's elite in the most shocking first-day massacre in the 29-year history of the event.

The pillage started with the very first match of the initial round when Defending Champion Ben Hogan was knocked out by Toney Penna, 36-year-old Cincinnati stroker.

Following Bantam Ben to the sidelines in the opening round were Masters Champion Jimmy Demaret, medalist; Bobby Locke, highly regarded South African, and Sammy Byrd, the host pro.

Two more big-name players fell in the second round when Three-Time Champion Gene Sarazen bowled over Sammy Snead, 1942 PGA king, and Jim Ferrier snuffed out All-America Tournament Champion Herman Barron.

With the fairways strewn with the exploded hopes of the prime favorites, the name of Washington's Lew Worsham, 1947 United States Open ruler, was foremost among the 16 survivors who tomorrow square off in the grueling 36-hole eliminations which continue through Tuesday.

Worsham, gaining momentum and confidence with every stroke, brushed off his first two challengers with little strain and tonight was looked upon as the man who might perform a feat which has been accomplished only once in the history of American golf—winning the Open and the PGA the same year.

Banty-legged Sarazen did it in 1922 and Worsham, the unassuming former caddy who still can't believe he's the Open champion, has a great chance to pull the trick this year.

With his most feared opposition—Snead, Hogan, Demaret and Locke—on thre outside looking in, Lew has only Ed (Porky) Oliver, former PGA Champion Vic Ghezzi and Lloyd Mangrum, whom he dethroned as Open monarch last week, to look forward to for rough going.

None of these is in Worsham's bracket and the rest of the field should be a breeze for the lantern-jawed former sailor from the Nation's Capital.

Penna 7 Under Par

Hogan was first off the tee—starting at 8 a. m., and the first to go out. Penna, one-time Congressional Club assistant in Washington, beat him 3 and 1, but was 7 under par for the distance. Hogan was 5 under.

Hogan started birdie, birdie, birdie and was 2 up after three holes. Penna, however, squared accounts on the sixth, took the lead on the seventh and held the upper hand the rest of the way.

Ky Laffoon dropped Penna in the afternoon, 1 up.

Snead knocked off long-hitting Jimmy Thomson, 2 up, in the morning round, but ran into a tartar in knicker-clad Sarazen in the afternoon.

Sarazen, who dumped Johnny Revolta in order to get to Snead, got an eagle on the first hole, but Snead squared the battle on five and went to the front on six.

Gene squared again, lost the tenth and evened it again on 11. Sarazen, however, missed an ace on the short fourteenth by 2 inches to grab the lead again and hold it, closing the door on the Slammer on the seventeenth.

Locke Misses Vital Point

Henry Ransom, another Texas golfing product, finished with two birdies to beat Locke, 1 up. Locke missed a 10-footer which would have forced an extra hole.

Demaret fell before the sharp play of Earl Martin, an unknown from Inglewood, Calif., 2 and 1, while Jim Ferrier polished off Herman Barron in a second-round match, 3 and 2.

Long-hitting Worsham, unsteady during his qualifying rounds which he completed in even par 144, was a smooth-stroking whiz out there today.

He polished off Johnny Morris of Montgomery, Ala., before lunch, 4 and 3, grabbed a quick sandwich and made mincemeat of 38-year-old Clarence Dosar, Hartsdale, N. Y., 5 and 4, in the afternoon. For the 29 holes he played, Lew was 6 under par.

Eighth Not His Lucky Hole

Worsham lost only two holes all day—the eighth on each trip. On the morning jaunt, Morris chipped in from 75 feet for an eagle to beat Worsham's birdie four and Doser won the same hole on the afternoon skirmish with a birdie against Worsham's par.

Morris, scrambling but recovering well, held Worsham even until the 205-yard fifth where Worsham scored with a birdie deuce. Lew picked up another hole on the seventh when he approached to within 18 inches and holed out for a birdie three.

His birdie was no good on eight, but Worsham got down in a par three against Morris' bogey on nine to make the turn two up.

That's the way it remained until the 13th when Worsham went three up as Morris three-putted. They halved the par three 14th and Lew turned out the lights on his first challenger on 15 with a four against Morris' five.

In the afternoon, Worsham went to the fore on the second with a par against Doser's bogey on the second, made it two up the same way on the fourth and picked up another hole at seven when he drove the green on the 320-yard hole and got a birdie three against Doser's par.

Doser reduced the overhead on the eighth and they halved the ninth to give Worsham a 3-up advantage as they began the incoming nine.

Lew got another hole to make it 4 up at 10 and closed out Doser on 13 with another birdie.

Newhouser Beaten Again By Shea, 5-3

Shea, who blanked the Tigers in his two previous starts against Newhouser, stopped the Tigers with four hits today, two of which were homers by Eddie Mayo which accounted for all of the Tigers' runs.

The hefty recruit, who fanned nine and walked six, held the Tigers hitless until Mayo banged his first homer of the game in the fifth with the bases empty.

Kirby, Suggs Reach Finals Of Atlanta Golf

Atlanta, June 20 (AP).—Defending Champion Louise Suggs of Lithia Springs, Ga., defeated Patty Berg of Minneapolis, one-up, today to reach the finals of the eighteenth annual Women's Western Open Golf Tournament.

She meets Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta in the playoffs tomorrow.

Earlier in the day Miss Kirby of Atlanta ousted Medalist Grace Lenczyk of Newington, Conn., 6-5, to reach the finals.

Miss Kirby, a semifinalist in this event last year, led Miss Lenczyk 4-up at the end of nine holes and closed her out on the fourteenth after winning the eleventh and twelfth holes to have her opponent down six.

Shooting a 4-under par 34 on the first nine, Miss Kirby went on to victory without losing a single hole to her younger opponent.

The Suggs-Berg match today was reminiscent of last year's finals in this event which Suggs won 2 up, as they battled down to the eighteenth green. The Georgia entry came from behind on the second nine to square the match on the eleventh after being one down at the turn. She won the fourteenth hole to go one up but lost the fifteenth. They came to the eighteenth green still even.

Miss Berg's speed shot was short of the green and behind a sand trap. She chipped onto the green and barely missed her putt which would have sent the match into an extra hole. Miss Suggs was on the green with her drive but had a long, difficult putt. She went past the hole but sank a 4-footer for a birdie to win.

Yale 7-3 Victor Over Clemson

New Haven, Conn., June 20 (AP).—Yale's Eastern Intercollegiate champs, behind strong twirling by Frank (Fireball) Quinn, eliminated Clemson, representing the Southeast, 7 to 3, today, opening the National Collegiate A. A's Eastern Division Baseball Tournament.

With Quinn mowing down the Columbia, S. C., Tigers in masterly fashion, except for a bad fourth inning when Clemson tallied all its runs, Yale moved into tomorrow's final with the winner of the second game of today's twin bill between New York University and the University of Illinois.

Riggs, Budge Advance in Pro Net Play

Forest Hills, N. Y., June 20 (AP).—Defending Champion Bobby Riggs and two of his foremost challengers moved into the semifinals of the National Professional Tennis Tournament today, each by the simple method of walloping the daylights out of an underdog opponent.

A late afternoon rain which sent some 2000 spectators scampering prevented completion of the quarterfinals, however, and probably saved fourth-seeded Fred Perry, a two-time titleholder, from elimination at the hands of Welby Van Horn—at least temporarily.

Riggs reached the semifinals at the expense of Elwood Cooke of New York, the same man he defeated in the finals at Wimbledon eight years ago. It took him five sets to turn the trick in 1939, but the Ferndale (N. Y.) pro needed only 44 minutes today to sweep through Cooke by scores of 6—4, 6—2, 6—1.

In the semifinals tomorrow, Riggs will tangle with Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., who turned back John Faunce of Los Angeles, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2.

3 Yanks Gain London Finals

London, June 20 (AP).—California tennis stars gained three of the four berths in the finals of the London Tennis Championships yesterday at the Queens Club.

Margaret Osborne defeated Doris Hart of Miami, 4—6, 10—8, 7—5; Louise Brough defeated Pat Todd of California, 6—0, 6—3, and Bob Falkenburg trounced S. C. Misra of India, 6—1, 6—3.

In today's finals, Miss Osborne will face Miss Brough, and Falkenburg will tackle Colin Long, the Australian Davis Cupper, who defeated Pierre Pelizza of France, 9—7, 7—9, 6—4, in yesterday's other semifinal match.

The men's doubles finals will see Jack Kramer and Falkenburg meeting the Australian pair of Dinny Pails and Jack Bromwich.

Redskins Sign Norfolk Wingman

The Washington Redskins have announced the signing of George Randolph Brodston, 25, former end at Creighton University in Omaha, who played with the Norfolk Shamrocks of the Dixie League last year while stationed at Norfolk.

Brodston, who weighs 220 and stands 6 feet 4, served in the Navy for three years. He previously played with Bowling Green University in Berea, Ohio.

Gil Bogley Advances To Rye Tennis Final

Rye, N. Y., June 20.— Gil Bogley of Landon School reached the finals of the Manursing Cup Invitation Tournament here today by defeating Bob Washburn of the Hill School, 3—6, 6—4, 7—5.

In the other semi-final, Don Mathey of Deerfield beat Jack Yates of Landon, 6—4, 6—3. Bogley and Yates reached the doubles final by downing Bliss and Hooe of Exeter, 6—2, 6—4. Landon leads Deerfield Academy, 42-41, in the team standings.

District Shooting Championships Today

The thirteenth annual amateur trapshooting championship of the District of Columbia will take place today and Sunday over the traps of the Washington Gun Club, 34th st. and Benning rd. ne.

Griffith Unveils Walter Johnson Shrine Today

THE unveiling of the Walter Johnson Memorial shrine at Griffith Stadium will take place today at 2:45 p. m., fifteen minutes before the Nats take the field against the St. Louis Browns.

Clark Griffith announced that "a high personage" would officiate at the undraping of the monument of the late great pitching idol, but did not disclose his identity.

A testimonial speech will mark the ceremonies at the shrine which is located at the main grandstand entrance inside the park gates. An evergreen-lined walkway leads to the granite monument and bronze tablet inscribed to the memory of Johnson.

Stadium officials announced that the ceremonies would be broadcast to all fans seated inside the park by special amplifiers. The shrine will be open to viewing by the fans after the game.

Sheik of Albrurae Leads Jumpers at Timonium Show

Timonium, Md., June 20.—The Maryland horse show's knock down and out preliminaries provided this afternoon's most exciting event as a bay gelding from Wilton Conn., Sheik of Albrurae, cleared well over 5 -foot fences to capture a total of 15 points

His performance gave him a virtual clinch on the jumpers' championship.

Competition was closer toward the conformation hunt championship on this the second afternoon of the four-day affair, as Highlander owned by Mr. and Mrs. Amory Lawrence of Warrenton, Va., held the lead with 1½ points over Portmaker, belonging to Dr. Alvin I. Kay of Washington.

Portmaker held 7½ points and there were four events to go in the conformation division.

Mrs. Liz Whitney's Llangollen Stables was leading the green division. Safety Call had 10 points against 8 for Bill's Star, owned by the James D. McKinnons of Elmira, N. Y.

Betty Bosley's Count Stefan, with 10 points in the working hunter division, was performing brilliantly.

Tied for second, with three classes to go and 5 points each, were King's Respite from Springsbury Farms, and Holle-Jo owned by Donald Sutherland.

7 Washingtonians Reach Maryland Amateur Quarter-Finals

Bennings

DEAR FOLKS:

The weekend program here promises plenty of action with the day's chief event, the Villa Maria Purse. This test is over the "Charles Town Course" of 120 feet more than 6 furlongs and includes Fall Guy, Rise to Follow and other speedsters. The card shows events from 4½ furlongs to a mile and sixteenth. Jockey Al Bocson of Washington joined the ranks of the Benedicts last week, taking as his bride Miss Hilda P. Shaw of Hagerstown. Jockey Wayne Weber has served his suspension and is now eligible to ride. The same goes for Jockey Joe Carroll, who served 20 days on the ground. G. E. Littlefield of Washington is training Aerial Mission, recently purchased by E. K. Merchant from the Tiempo Farm. Sammy Palumbo has 15 winners, six behind Apprentice Jimmy Baird. Benny Toothman has taken over James Gomojak's Algopeg for conditioning. Trainer Sidney Boniface shipped in Valdina Brave from Delaware Park. Mrs. K. Basehore has sold Ammon Barr to J. W. Young. Alan Clarke's Over Gold, the horse everybody thought had been killed last Saturday, is in the entries for this weekend's card. See you on the rail. BILL.

1—Blahblah, Westing, Fair Mail.

2—Sure Footed, Bullrushes, Prognostic.

3—Old Harry, Breakable Miss, Time Flies.

4—Well Allright, Gradea, Meysah.

5—Fall Guy, Mellegino, Rise to Follow.

6—Psychic Polly, Argos, Karakal.

7—Chiff Chaff, Big Sneeze, Ted O.

8—Caffeine, Strolling Lee, Run Way.

Overton Only Invader to Keep Pace

By Al Costello
Post Reporter

The day was long and tough for out of town favorites yesterday at Columbia Country Club as seven Washingtonians and a lone Baltimorean battled their way into the quarterfinals of the Maryland State Amateur Golf Tournament.

After 12 of 14 out-of-towners fell by the wayside in the first round of match play in the morning, only one of the two remaining invaders—Medalist Spencer Overton, of Rolling Road Club—managed to survive the second round in the afternoon and even he had to go 22 holes before finally eliminating grim Donald Cook, of Chevy Chase.

Outside of Overton and Chevy Chase's Ralph Bogart, all of the low shooters in Thursday's qualifying round were bumped off by players who turned in cards of from three to nine strokes higher.

Wagner Beaten

These casualties included Herb Wagner, of Green Spring Valley, who was one stroke behind Overton for the medal and another Baltimorean, Eddie Johnston, of Country Club of Maryland, who also had a 72.

Wagner was beaten by Charley Price of Kenwood, 3 and 2. Price thereupon continued his success, defeating Billy Shea in the second round, 2 and 1, to enter today's quarter finals.

Johnston was eliminated by Bob Harrington of Catoctin Club, Frederick, Md., 1 up. But Harrington, unlike Overton, fell from the victory ranks in the afternoon second round by bowing to Eddie Ault of Indian Spring in a 2-and-1 duel. Harrington was the thirteenth out-of-town invader to go.

Overton's first-round match was a 5-and-4 triumph over Bill Larkin of Annapolis Roads, but he had to go all-out to turn back Cook in the afternoon. Cook dropped a 20-footer on the seventeenth to square things and for four more holes matched par golf with the Monumental City veteran. However, on the twenty-second, Cook's precise golf slipped as his putter betrayed him on a 4-foot putt for a half.

Kinder Beats Gehring

Others besides Overton, Ault and Price to enter the quarter-finals were Jim Kinder of the prince Georges; Earl Skinker of the host Columbia Club; Ralph Bogart of Chevy Chase; Jerry Hart of Prince Georges, and Bobby Brownell of Manor.

Kinder, a Navy lieutenant, defeated another low shooter of Thursday, Bill Gehring of Clifton Park, 4 and 2 in the first round and then eliminated Don Miller of Kenwood, 3 and 2.

The veteran Earl Skinker defeated Stuart Foxwell of Rolling Road, 5 and 4 and S. S. Fletcher of Columbia, 5 and 4; Bogart, with Overton now rated as co-favorite, defeated Bill Eager of Elkridge, 2 up and Leroy Smith of Manor, 6 and 5; Hart advanced by eliminating Arnold Litman of Suburban, 1 up after measuring Earl McAleer of Manor, 7 and 6.

Brownell Goes Into Overtime

Brownell's second round match in which he eliminated Buddy Sharkey of Indian Spring, like the Overton-Cook affair, went into overtime with Brownell winning on the twentieth when Sharkey three-putted. At the outset, Sharkey won the first three holes but Brownell got two back to trail 1 down at the end of nine, a deficit he made up coming home.

Previously, Brownell ousted Dave Wortman of Woodmont, 7 and 6, while Sharkey edged out Ed Finnessey, another invader from Mount Pleasant, Baltimore, 2 and 1.

Quarter-final matches will be played this morning with semifinals in the afternoon. Tomorrow's final will be a 36-hole affair.

It's Wide Open Race at Poughkeepsie Today

By Ted Smits

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 20 (AP).—The Poughkeepsie Regatta, oldest crew competition of its kind in America, comes back to the Hudson River tomorrow at twilight after a lapse of six years during which war demanded the attentions of most of its more than 250 competitors.

With 11 crews in the varsity race, "it is bigger than ever before and, I hope, better," said Asa S. Bushnell, secretary-treasurer of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association. The previous record was nine.

The setting for the forty-fifth regatta is a rich one. There will be as many yachts on the river as ever, although probably no big ones. In the absence of an observation train thousands of spectators—possibly as manf as 100,000—will crowd both the steep west bank and the industrialized east side.

At approximately 7:15 p. m. EDT, the 11 finely conditioned varsity crews will surge down the river with the tide, starting at the Columbia boathouse and finishing 3 miles farther, a half-mile below the majestic mid-Hudson bridge.

There are five co-favorites—California, Washington, Cornell, Navy and Princeton—and a possible dark horse, Pennsylvania.

Washington naturally comes in for major attention. The Huskies won the last regatta in 1941, and of the 11 coaches represented here only three did not stem from the Hiram Conibear fountainhead in Seattle. They are Hubert Glendon of Columbia, Buck Walsh of Navy, and Ned Ten Eyck of Syracuse. All the rest are Washington men.

Two other races precede the varsity. They are the freshmen, at 2 miles, starting at 6:15, and the junior varsity, at 3 miles, at 7:15 p. m.

Favored in the freshman race are Washington, Navy, Princeton and Syracuse.

In the junior vaysity, Coach Al Ulbrickson of Washington picked California to win. Five of the eight in this shell are freshmen moved up from the yearling boat.

Tomorrow's races will come down the West side of the river, the stewards having rejected an appeal by the coaches to move the lanes into the center of the Hudson.

The first five lanes will pass under the second span of the railroad bridge, counting from the west shore, and the other six under the center span. If there is a west wind the crews in the low numbered lanes will be protected by the palisades while those in the middle will be hard hit.

The forecast for tomorrow is sunny and cool, and conditions today for the tapering off workouts were perfect.

In the freshman race the record at which the seven crews will be aiming it 9:11.6 set by Cornell in 1909. The 3-mile junior varsity record is 13:44, made by Washington in 1937. Ordinarily the varsity race is at 4 miles, but the record for the occasions on which it has been competed at 3 is 13:33.6 made by Navy in 1922.

The lanes for the races follow:

VARSITY—1, Rutgers; 2, California; 3, Syracuse; 4, Wisconsin; 5, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; 6, Pennsylvania; 7, Washington; 8, Cornell; 9, Columbia; 10, Navy; 11, Princeton.

JUNIOR VARSITY—1, Cornell; 2, Navy; 3, Pennsylvania; 4, Syracuse; 5, Wisconsin; 6, Princeton; 7, California; 8, MIT; 9, Rutgers; 10, Columbia; 11, Washington.

FRESHMEN—3, Washington; 4, Syracuse; 5, Princeton; 6, Cornell; 7, Pennsylvania; 8, Navy; 9, Columbia.

Whirlaway's Mark Is at Stake Today

New York, June 20 (AP).—The world money-winning mark of $561,161 owned by Warren Wright's Whirlaway, will be at stake tomorrow when they run the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct.

The record has held since 1942 when the Calumet Farm's chestnut champion hung up his racing shoes after a four-year career during which he ran off with most of the major honors of the American turf, including the Derby-Preakness triple of 1941.

Either of two Texas-bred titans can dethrone Mr. Longtail by winning Saturday's $50,000, mile and a quarter Brooklyn. Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie is in second place with $546,435, while King Ranch's Assault has banked away $538,570.

300 Kids Go Today in Boys' Club Track

Thirty-one track and field events are on the bill today for more than 300 youngsters from the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, who will compete in the annual games at Central High School's Stadium, starting at 10 a. m.

Kids from 7 to 18 and from 50 to 165 pounds will vie for gold, silver and bronze medals and gold track shoes. All events will be conducted under AAU rules.

The Police Boys Club Band, under Maj. Leon Brusiloff's direction, will join the contestants in a parade around the field just before the first event starts. Youngsters from Clubs No. 4, 5, 10, 11 and 12 will participate.

Boston Man Sets New Charles Town Mark

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 20.—Mrs. J. D. S. Coleman's Boston Man, a 9-year-old campaigner bred in the rolling hills of Virginia, came back with another sterling performance, but this time created a new track record for a mile and one-sixteenth. He stepped the distance in 1:45 in winning the Halltown Purse which featured this afternoon's program.

Boston Man clipped one-fifth from the mark which was held by Overnight and established back in 1939. He was smartly handled by the veteran Stanley Austin, and at the end of his fleet journey was 10 lengths in front of J. E. Crider's Comedy Player, with H. W. Shaffer's Woodscott a nose back in third position.

Taking back of the killing pace set by Tryout, Austin gave Boston Man the "go" signal midway down the backstretch and, bouncing to the front, lengthened his margin with each strinde to win a common gallop. He performed in the role of the public choice and returned $3.20.

Sun Target Wins

The victory was the campaigner's second during the meeting and his fifth in seven attempts this year. Comedy Player came like an express train down the homestretch to nose out Woodscott for the place award.

The sixth race, the day's secondary feature, brought a rousing ,nish with the photo giving H. F. Atwell's Sun Target the decision by a lip margin over S. H. Hall's Tintrel. In third position in the field of eight going 6 furlongs was Raymond Bates' Idaho Maid. Sun Target, excellently handled by Jockey Johnny Tammaro, paid his scattered backers a $66.20 mutuel and was clocked in 1:17.

Air tight racing was the keynote of the early stages of the program. A dead heat developed in the second half of the daily double, necessitating a split of the pay-off. In fact, the first race narrowly missed being another dead heat.

In the first race, C. E. Taylor's Ringside Table lasted by the narrowest of margins to nose out B. C. Rifkin's Tatting while in the role of a $5 favorite.

Short Prices

The camera failed to separate R. L. Hall's Patuxent Belle and the Art-Dale Stable's Carib Song. It was a battle to the wire between veteran Jockeys Sammy Palumbo and Mike Sarno. This divided the win money with Patuxent Belle paying $2.60 and Carib Song, which ran third yesterday, returning $4.40.

In the division of the daily double, those who had Ringside Table, ridden by Jockey R. D. Scot, teamed with Patuxent Belle collected a mere $5.20 while those with the combination ending on Carib Song took down $15.40. If Patuxent Belle had won alone her double would have paid $9.20 to 819 ticket holders while the single pay-off on Carib Song would have meant $36.80 to 207 customers.

Braves' Error Gives Cubs 6-5 Edge in 9th

Chicago, June 20 (AP).—Tommy Holmes lost Emil Kush's short fly in the sun for a double in the last half of the ninth inning and it developed into the winning run to give the Chicago Cubs a 6-5 victory over the Boston Braves and snap their four-game losing streak today.

Kush moved to third on Don Johnsons' grounder to short and tallied on Harry "Peanuts" Lowrey's long fly.

79 Maryland Women Receive Certificates As Rural Short Course Ends at University

Certificates were awarded 79 Maryland women yesterday at the closing exercises of the 21st annual Rural Women's Short Course at the University of Maryland.

The awards were made to women who had attended four courses. In addition 21 others received pins for eight years' attendance.

A return to "horse and buggy" days was urged by Dr. Peter Marshall, minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and chaplain of the United States Senate, if by doing so the higher moral plane of those days can be recaptured.

The speaker, who had delivered an address on the same subject, "Keepers of the Springs," before another commencement of the short course a few years ago, urged the women to return to their rural homes as "keepers of the springs" to restore to the Nation its religious ideals which, he said, had been lost in the past two decades.

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of extension for the university, presented the certificates after the graduates had been introduced by Miss Venia M. Kellar, assistant director, who was in charge of the course. The eight-year pins were presented by Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president.

The invocation and benediction were delivered by the Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton, vicar of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, College Park. Vocal selections were sung by Mrs. Harold Nesbitt of Baltimore, who led the graduates in group singing.

Chinese Plead for Ammunition to Prevent Communists From Capturing Manchuria

Nanking, China, June 20 (U.P.).—Dr. Eun Fo, vice president, said tonight the Communists were going to take Manchuria unless the American-trained and equipped central armies received ammunition quickly.

"Help and encouragement is needed at once from the western powers, led by the United States and Britain, if Manchuria is to be saved," he said. "This help should include not only military supplies and credits but also vigorous political support. A declaration from Washington and London supporting Nanking's position might help, but would not take the place of munitions."

In this connection, he charged that the Chinese Communist offensive in Manchuria was Russia-inspired and directed. He said the Communists were well equipped with Japanese arms, which were surrendered to the Russians and turned over to the Communists.

Furthermore, he said, there was "ample proof" that large numbers of Korean soldiers, trained and equipped in the Russian (northern) half of Korea were fighting with the Communists. He said that the Communists already had won control of 85 per cent of Manchuria.

Dr Sun is a son of Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, father of the Chinese republic. At one time he was an ardent proponent of Chinese-Russian cooperation.

Dr. Sun said the south Manchurian ports of Dairden and Port Arthur were being used by the Communist forces to bring their supplies and men into Manchuria. Russia, he said, had consistently refused to let the Chinese central government put troops in these ports, violating the spirit of the Russian-Chinese Treaty of August, 1945.

"Manchuria is the key to Korea and China," he said. "If Manchuria becomes Russia's puppet state now, then those countries will be next. If China goes Communist, you may be sure that India and the nations of southeastern Asia will follow."

Dr. Sun recalled that he had spent some time in Moscow, and said that for a considerable interval he had believed there was a basis for friendship and cooperation betwen China and the Soviet Union. That was why, he said, he had supported the efforts of Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley and Gen. George C. Marshall, when they were special Ambassadors to China, to bring the Communists into the government.

"Events have convinced me, however, that the Communists never intended to participate in any government in China which they could not control by at least veto power," he said.

"The Communists never will be content with the minority role in any government of China to which their numbers would entitle them. They believe in the policy of rule or ruin."

The Town Crier in Transit Company Uniform

Wherever he goes along his route, like the town crier of old, he carries the messages of local and national merchants who have goods or services to sell.

Who is he? He's your transit company bus driver or street-car motorman. The messages he takes to every corner of Washington are neatly arranged in his vehicle. They're the Transitads (car cards) you see overhead as you ride the street-car or bus.

Of course, the driver's or motorman's most important job is to transport you swiftly and safely to your destination, just as the old-time town crier's main job was to proclaim the news. But, in both cases, the natural by-product of the large audiences gathered was to convey the selling messages of merchants and businessmen. Today, advertisers using Transitads (car cards) have the opportunity to convey their selling messages to an average 1½ million Washington transit-riders—every day.

So, as you ride the street-car or bus, take note of the Transitads and see what messages the town crier in Transit Company uniform has to convey.

Strike Threat Over as Milk Employes Accept Raise

$4.80 Weekly Wage Increase Agreed On After Warning By Business Agent

Threat of a milk strike vanished last night when union dairy employes voted to accept new contracts giving 1600 members a $4.80 weekly wage increase.

The vote, 615 to 517, came after warnings from Eugene R. Hubbard, business agent of Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Local 246, that the contract should be accepted "in the face of the critical situation on Capitol Hill (on labor)."

Differences over failure to get a five-day-week clause in the new contract churned the meeting of 1000 or more union members in Turner's Arena prior to the vote.

Hubbard had warned that "public opinion would kill a strike at this time."

A. B. & W. Bus Strike Slated For July 26

Two hundred and sixty bus drivers of the ABW line, servicing Alexandria and Washington, yesterday notified the company that they will strike July 26.

The strike notice followed three weeks of negotiations between the company and Local 1131, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL).

A union spokesman said that a notice has been filed with the Governor in accordance with State law.

Required by Law

Under Virginia statute a public utility must notify the Governor five weeks in advance of a strike. When the strike becomes effective the Governor may operate the company and put the employes on the State payroll.

A union spokesman said that the strike notice was filed only after the company had refused to submit the dispute to arbitration.

Robert T. Mitchell, vice president of the company, said union demands would add $750,000 to the annual payroll. He stated further that the company operated at a loss during the first quarter of 1947 and that the demands were beyond the company's ability to pay.

Negotiations Continue

The union has given assurance that operation of the 199 scheduled daily runs will continue during the five-week period prior to July 26.

Meanwhile, negotiations between the Arnold Bus Co. and bus drivers' union Local 1097 were delayed pending selection of a third arbitrator.

The union has named labor attorney Eli Oliver as its arbitrator. Douglas L. Hatch will be the company's arbitrator. The AFL union seeks a flat 38-cent hourly increase for all its drivers, added vacation time, overtime pay, and severance pay provisions.

J. A. Councilor Named to Head '47 Regatta

James A. Councilor, jr., whose father headed the President's Cup Regatta in 1938, yesterday was named 1947 chairman of the event.

His appointment was announced by Edward Baltz,, president of the President's Cup Regatta Association. Dates for the races have been set for September 6 and 7 for swimming events; September 13 and 14 for sailing events, and September 20 and 21 for power boat races, Baltz said.

Councilor, head of an accountancy firm started by his father, served in the Navy during the war. He is a graduate of Cornell University and lives at 5645 Audubon rd., Bethesda. Mr. Councilor, sr., died in 1945.

Gen. Taylor Takes Command Today At Andrews Field

Brig. Gen. Yantis H. Taylor will take over command of Andrews Field and the Third Combat Fighter Wing stationed there at 10 a. m. today when he reviews troops of his command during a parade in his honor.

A squadron of P-80 jet fighters will circle overhead during the ceremony.

General Taylor replaces Col. C. D. Sluman, Andrews Field commander since November, 1945, who is being transferred to the Air Transport Command at Gravelly Point, Va.

General Taylor served during the war in North Africa as deputy chief of staff and in Italy as chief of staff of the Fifteenth Air Force. He later became commander of the 306th Fighter Wing.

Tuberculosis Survey Doomed Unless Commissioners Act

Only special action in a hurry by Washington's Commissioners can get $66,990 into next year's budget for a city-wide tuberculosis case-finding survey.

This was made clear last night by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the House District Appropriations Subcommittee.

Horan said he could not consider the bid for tuberculosis survey funds formally before his subcommittee unless it clears with the Commissioners and gets their backing.

Chances for that are slight. Commissioner Guy Mason has strongly opposed the survey because the city has no facilities to take care of the nwe cases that would be found. He has said he would favor the survey if the city had the necessary facilities.

Letter Held Up

Notice that the formal request for survey funds had not been presented to Horan's Subcommittee was given to Dr. James Feffer, vice president of the Washington Tuberculosis Association, as he urged approval for the funds during an open hearing att he Capitol on the city budget.

Feffer promptly called Health Officer George C. Ruhland.

Ruhland said later he had dictated the necessary letter during the day formally requesting the survey funds, but was holding it up until he was assured it could be forwarded to Congress without violating budget policy.

In the hearing, J. B. Ottenstein, of the District News Co., backed the survey proposal. He explained his wife had been seriously ill with tuberculosis.

Other Increases Asked

Several witnesses urged increases in other parts of the health department budget. Among those who testified were: Mrs. Harold N. Marsh, Mrs. Howard C. Davidson and Mrs. Dean K. Brundage, of the citizens' advisory committee on housekeeping assistance; Mrs. Walter S. Ufford, of the District Legislative Council; Mrs. George Tobias and Mrs. Grace Parr, of the American Association of Medical Social Workers.

Washington I. Cleveland, District manager of the American Automobile Association, urged three additional employes to speed issuance of drivers' permits. Mrs. George Thorpe, chairman of the women's safety committee of the AAA, called for increased driver training in the schools.

Horan said his committee will meet Monday in executive session to discuss a report from the Comptroller General on the city auditing setup. Ned for improvement is shown in the report, he said, but he added details would be released later. He said the committee also will discuss school building needs and administratoin of the receiving home.

Fire Alarm Box Buying To Be Probed

House Committee Also Votes Funds To Hire Investigator

The House District Committee yesterday voted a complete investigation of the District's methods of obtaining fire alarm boxes.

The sub-committee on public service was instructed to make the investigation and report its findings to the full committee. Funds for hiring a special investigator to assist in the probe were also voted.

Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) asked for the investigation following a study of Justice Department evidence against the Gamewell Co., manufacturers of fire alarm equipment.

The Gamewell Co. is now under indictment in Boston on charges of monopolistic practices which led t ohigh and unreasonable prices for fire-alarm boxes sold to the District and other cities.

Dirksen said his study showed that District fire alarm equipment was obtained under "a peculiar situation" in which former Fire Alarm Superintendent Herbert A. Friede was a "focal figure."

He said the situation here warranted a "complete investigation of the acquisition of fire alarm equipment, past, present and future."

Doctor's Advice:

Don't Say 'Juvenile Delinquency'

A national authority on recreation urged yesterday that the words "juvenile delinquency" be abandoned.

The plea came from Dr. Harold D. Meyer, president of the American Recreation Society, at the annual meeting of the Council of Social Agencies' recreation division, in the Y.W.C.A.

Dr. Meyer suggested that the term "youth adequacy" be substituted for juvenile deniquency. As is, he told some 100 area recreation officials, "we are damning 95 per cent of our youth for what five per cent are doing, and it isn't quite rgiht."

Simultaneously, Dr. Meyer, who is a professor of sociology at North Carolina University, recommended that:

1. Emphasis be placed on recreation needs of "adults and elders as well as children."

2. All races be permitted to share equally in recreation opportunities.

3. Colleges set up "adequate curriculum" for training proficient recreation leaders.

He suggested further that the District "set the pattern" in recreation for the rest of the country.

Ernest Henry, a local attorney, was nominated to serve another term as chairman of the recreation division of the council. Harry English, an official of the D. C. Recreation Department, was named vice chairman.

3 Face Chair Nov. 21 for Kelly Death

New Trial Denied; 3 Others Given Jail Sentences In Rape Case

The three youths convicted of the murder of Frank C. Kelly, 56, were sentenced to die in the electrict chair here on November 21.

Justice Alexander Holtzoff of District Court imposed the mandatory extreme penalty. Kelly was fatally shot in an attempted holdup March 11.

Joseph Gray, 19, put his hands over his eyes and began to weep.

Shirley Harris, 23, the triggerman, showed no emotion.

Herbert H. Hall, 18, nodded his head slightly.

Justice Holtzoff pronounced sentence after he denied the defendants a new trial, sought on technical grounds.

Three Others Sentenced

In another case, three other young men were given jail sentences for raping a 13-year-old girl on April 1. The defendants, who pleaded guilty, are Matthew Musolino, 26, of 5720 16th st. nw., who was given five to 15 years; Russell E. Fowler, 22, 522 10th st. se., given three to 10 years, and Robert E. Herbert, 22, of Fort Washington, Md., given one to three years.

Justice Holtzoff said evidence that the girl resisted the men strenuously was inconclusive, but he characterized the orime as "bestial."

Given Probation

Five year probation tearms each were imposed on three men guilty of stealing a safe containing $1389 from the officers club, Army War College on April 8. These defendants are Aaron Pledger, 26, 706 4th st. ne.; Fred D. ell, 34, ofB the same address, and Floyd Neair, 29, 228 G st. ne.

Three men who escaped from Occoquan to be captured when they went through a Virginia town in a stolen automobile, were given one to three years each for the auto theft. They are Lavere G. Hawkins, 21, Earl Forest, 27, and George A. Searl, 21.

Two sailors acquitted last week of rape were each given 3 to 15 years imprisonment for robbing taxicabs here last winter. The sailors are William A. Campbell, 22, and Elwood W. McMasters, jr., 19, both of Dahlgren, Va.

Civil Service Retirement Bill Gets 'Go' Sign

Committee Seeks To Speed House Action on Measure

The House Civil Service Committee yesterday gave the Langr-Chavez-Stevenson retirement bill a favorable report. The vote was unanimous.

At the same time, the committee sought to speed House consideration of the important Federal measure. It voted to request the House Rules Committee to give the bill right-of-way on the House floor.

In voting unanimously, the committee accepted the view of Warren Irons, chief of the Civil Service retirement division, that the cost of the bill would be borne by Government workers.

The bill provides that the employe contribution is to be raised from 5 to 6 per cent. Irons contends the bill would cost the Government nothing additional.

The bill already has been reported out of the Senate Civil Service Committee and it will be debated nxt week in the Senate. The only outspoken opponent to the measure is Senator Williams (R., Del.).

The bill would liberalize the retirement system to provide larger pensions; arlier retirement ages, and benefits to survivors.

District Guard Is Neutral on Armory Sale

Use Is Only Concern, General Cox Declares; Lease Expires Soon

The District National Guard is keeping strictly neutral om Commissioner Guy Mason's proposal to sell the $2,700,000 Guard armory here to the Federal Government.

So is the Public Buildings Administration, which has had the spacious building at 19th and East Capitol sts. se. under lease from the District since 1942.

"It is not important who owns the building so long as the Guard is permitted to use it," Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, Guard commander, said.

The general, however, holds the Guard controls and is responsible for the armory's use.

L. A. Ziernicki, chief of space use in Public Building Administration, said PBA had formulated no policy on Commisioner Mason's suggestion, which was made Wednesday to the House District Appropriations Subcommittee.

Ziernicki said he had notified District Commissioners PBA will not renew its lease which expires June 30. The PBA has paid the District approximately $80,000 a year rent.

The National Guard moved into the WPA-built building after FBI moved out. The FBI had used the building during the war. Commissioner Mason, in proposing the building be sold to the Federal Government, estimated the District would have to pay $260,000 to maintain it annually and would receive only $50,000 to $70,000 income from its use.

Scalping Charge Against Barbers Tabled by Board

Action on complaints by GIs and sailors of being scalped by barber shop bills ranging from $5 to $20 was tabled yesterday by the Army and Navy Disciplinary Board.

Te board decided after holding a hearing on charges that the Esquire Barber Shop of 1204 New York ave. nw. was taking advantage of the boys that if the firm would furnish documentary evidence that no overcharges were made and charges were not made for unordered services, no action would be taken against the shop.

Lieut. Comdr. M. J. McIntire of the Shore Patrol, acting president of the board, said the shop's attorney, Myer Koonin, had promised to supply such statements.

Witness Absent

ABC Erases Four Liquor Sale Charges

The District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board dismissed charges of sales to a minor yesterday against four licensees, when the minor who was to be the material witness did not appear for scheduled hearings.

The ABC Board listed the minor as Kingsley Crowe Martin, also known as Lee Martin, 16, of 701 C st. sw. He could not be found for two of the hearings schedued for yesterday against Lorenzo Costa, jr., of Costa's Wine and Liquors, 3417 11th st. nw., and Harry Wallerstein of the Arcadia Liquor Shop, 3134 14th st. nw.

The board thereupon dismissed charges against these two defendants and two others, the F. D. Wine and Liquor Shop, Inc., 3249 Mount Pleasant st. nw., and Harry C. and Ruth O. Wechsler of York Liquors, 3659 Georgia ave. nw.

Mrs. Adelman, Old Resident Of D. C., Dies

Mrs. Nora E. Adelman, 65, wife of Arthur Adelman, 3709 Military rd. nw., died Thursday at Woodlawn Sanitarium.

Funeral services are to be held at 2 p. m. today at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., burial following in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Adelman, a native of Chesaning, Mich., had lived in the District more than 40 years. Her husband is chief of ammunition development in the Army Ordnance Department.

She was a member of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, the Chevy Chase Women's Club, the Frances Scott Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Christian B. Adelman of Boston; a adughter, Mrs. Phyllis M. Larson of Harrisburg, Pa., and a sister, Miss Lella B. Christian of Minneapolis.

At the funeral services the Rev. J. H. Hollister, pastor of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, will officiate.

Welfare Rolls Need Cutting, Horan Avows

Witnesses Appeal For More Funds Here in Fiscal 1948

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) said yesterday 5 to 25 per cent of those getting welfare assistance in Washington could be trimmed from the rolls by a well-managed welfare department.

He told citizens at a public hearing on the city's 1948 budget that his House District Appropriations Subcommittee is investigating "social workers who give away money and are contributing to adult delinquency."

From witnesses, Horan's group heard strong appeals for increases in the welfare budget. These appeals ran into his warning that the Washington revenue bill spells a budget cut.

Concedes Some Abuses

Leonard S. Edmonds, social welfare director for the Washington Federation of Churches, told Horan, "We don't want to see abuses—there are a few errors of judgment in welfare administration, but they are very small in proportion to the amount of work, and the great good that is done."

Edmonds predicted an adequate welfare staff could weed out some cases by closer scrutiny, but added the welfare load was fixed by factors which even an adequate staff could not control.

Mrs. Henry Gichner, of the Council of Social Agencies, urged an increase in welfare payments. She said a mother with three children on relief can now get $95.50 a month, and should have $129.95. She told about a family of a woman who died of tuberculosis last Morch. The father had been in and out of St. Elizabeths, and the family had been on relief most of the time since 1933. Average payment over a 64-month period was $62.75.

Calls It Penny-Wise

"We object," she said, "to this penny-wise pound-foolish type of expenditure."

Others who testified on welfare needs included Mrs. Frances Simsarian, Mrs. Hester Stoll and Mrs. Leah Lachenbruch of the District Chapters, American Association of Social Workers; Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, speaking for the Washington Home for Incurables; William E. Montague, of the American Veterans Committee; Mrs. Mildred Kilinski, Family Service Association; Mrs. Eva G. Aaronson, Jewish Social Service Agency; Mrs. Robert G. Wilson, District League of Women Voters, and Mrs. B. G. McIlwee, 507 Quackenbos st. nw.

Widow Received $186 Illegally, Charges Say

A 39-year-old widowed mother of five children yesterday was arraigned on charges of illegally receiving $186 from the Board of Public Welfare.

Mrs. Alice Smith of 1610 11th st. nw., was arrested Thursday on three counts of obtaining money from the board under false pretenses. Authorities said she received $63 on both October 1 and November 1 and 160 on December 1, 1945, by signing a statement she had received no income during those periods.

They said investigation disclosed she had been receiving $100 monthly from a serviceman; $25.79 monthly from Social Security under the widows' and children's benefit clause and had been working as a housemaid part-time durin gthose periods.

Her case was continued when arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Bill to Extend Rent Control In District Sent to House

Measure Would Keep Regulations In Effect Until March 31 Next Year

The House District Committee yesterday reported out a bill to extend District rent control to March 31 of next year. The present act is due to expire at the end of 1947.

Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) offered an amendment to exclude hotels from the continuation of rent restrictions. This move was defeated 7-4, after Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) declared that no hotelman appeared before his subcommittee to seek such exemption.

The bill ends D. C. rent controls one month after the date set for the end of national rent ceilings—as agreed by the House and Senate. The idea behind this extra month is to give the District committee time to consider the situation after Congress reconvenes in January.

Representative Henry O. Talle (R., Iowa), who is also a long-time member of the House Banking Committee which has been dealing with national rent legislation, paid tribute to the administration of controls here by Rent Commissioner Robert F. Cogswell.

Administration in the District, Talle said, was "more successful than in any other part of the country."

House Group Backs Support Of Care Centers

Senate-Passed Bill Provides $150,000 For Another Year

Continuation of day-care centers in the District, rejected by a House subcommittee a few minutes before, was approved on a temporary basis yesterday by the full House District Committee.

The committee okayed a Senate-passed bill providing $250,000 to continue child-care centers for working parents for another year.

However, the committee agreed that an investigation should be held into two questions:

1. Should the centers, established in 1942 as a war measure to permit parents to participate in the war effort, be retained under the District government as a permanent peacetime program?

2. Why is the cost so high? There are currently 400 children attending day-care centers, at an average cost of $50 per child a month.

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) urged that the bill be turned down on the ground that the centers were set up strictly as a war measure, and that "the war need no longer exists."

Leading advocates for approval of the measure was James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.). His motion was carried after Representative Howard Smith (D., Va.) suggested the bill be approved, but that the further investigation be carried out by Representative Miller's subcommittee on public welfare.

District officials, who opposed the bill because the city is "broke," pointed out at hearings Thursday that the $150,000 authorization would keep only 7 of the 12 centers open.

Reconversion Cost Liability Being Studied

Who should pay the $450,000 bill for "reconverting" the first unit of the District's new Central Library from wartime office use to library use—the Federal Government or the District?

Commissioner Guy Mason said yesterday he will seek the answer over the weekend by studying the District-Federal Government rent agreement for the building.

When wartime restrictions held up work on the library, the Federal Government stopped in and completed the structure in May, 1943, as an office building for the Office of Emergency Management.

The State Department's Office of Inter-American Affairs still occupies three of the building's five floors. Mason said he expected the building to be returned to the District in July.

A spokesman for Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the House District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee, said latest estimates indicate about $450,000 will be necessary to prepare the building for use as a library.

Fund Asked to Convert Building Into Library

Chevy Chase civic leaders yesterday urged the House District Appropriations Subcommittee to include $60.000 in the city budget for converting the abandoned E. V. Brown School Building into a library and recreation center.

Testifying for the plan at a hearing in the Capitol were Samuel F. Higger, chairman of the Chevy Chase Community Council, and Charles Lueck, president of the Chevy Chase Citizens Association.

'Cannonball' Baker Shows Safe Driving Is Fast Enough

Reckless driving won't get you anywhere faster than safe driving—unless your destination is court, jail or the permanence of the tomb.

E. G. (Cannonball) Baker, holder of a carload of speeding troubles, proved that yesterday mdist such fanfare.

With blessings of traffic authorities, he drove a car along a 5-mile route, from Connecticut ave. and Porter st. nw. to Constitution ave. and 1st st.—the right way, then the wrong way.

Coasting along within the 25-mile speed limit, observing all the niceties of careful driving, he made the run in 18 minutes and 49 4-5 seconds. Returning to the starting point, he sallied forth again for the violation trip.

Whipping along at speeds up to 50 miles an hour, sneering at red lights and generally driving as though he were asking for a winding sheet, he veered, swerved, zigzagged and snaked his way in and around cars like a jazzed-up broken field runner.

at 16 minutes and 59 4/5 seconds—

The perilous passage was docked a saving of less than 2 minutes.

In a post-mortem on operation reckless, Traffic Policeman Ross G. Riker, who rode with Baker, pointed out:

Driving the wrong way, Cannonball was stopped by 13 red lights. But driving the right way he was halted by only 7 of the 39 signal lights along the route.

The speedy trip involved 13 traffic violations: Failing to give a hand signal, changing lanes three times without due caution, passing two red lights, exceeding the speed limit by 25 miles an hour, driving on the wrong side of the road three times, two unnecessary horn honks and crowding.

A driver apprehended on these charges would have to pay out at least $155 minimum collateral, Policemn Riker noted.

The test er was a flashy yellow and black job, the pace car in the 500-mile '47 Indianapolis races.

Equally colorful wa sits pilot, who said he was dubbed Cannonball by sports writers in 1914 when he hit headlines with a new San Diego-to-New York auto record of 11 days 12 hours and 10 minutes.

But safety rather than speed is his prime concern today. His advice is: "Give those cowboy drivers a wide berth and watch safety"—which stands for See All Four Extremes

Supervising yesterday's exploit were Traffic Inspector Arthur E. Miller and Lieut. W. J. Livingston, chief of the Accident Investigation Unit.

In Maryland and Virginia

Lot of Liquor Doomed If Nobody Speaks Up

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—A lot of good drinkin' liquor—imported stuff—is going down the drain if someone doesn't claim it soon.

George T. Cromwell, collector of customs, listed it all in newspaper advertisements today, and it took him two feet of small type to do it.

Sharp-eared postal workers seized the bottled goods, sent home by servicemen overseas, and routed it over to Cromwell. The shipper or the addressee either one may redeem the packages by paying Cromwell the customs duty.

Few do this, since it is against the law in the first place to ship spirits through the mails.

The law also says Cromwell must dump the contents of unredeemed packages unless they contain at least a gallon. Gallon lots may be sold at auction, the money going to the Government.

While those who will try to slip a quart through the mails apparently are legion, it takes gall to try it with a gallon. Cromwell has very few gallons.

Bald Men Organize

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—Bald men are people too.

So said "Baldheads, Inc.," organized by 20 Marylanders, which today held a charter from the State Tax Commission and "hundreds" of applications for membership from San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago and New York.

First crusade, said Chief Baldhead J. Fred Andreae, is to "encourage sensitive bald-headed men, while in company of those who deride, ridicule and look down upon their baldheads, to assert themselves."

Teacher Raise Backed

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—A proposed new salary schedule for Baltimore teachers and school administrators calling for a total increase of $3,161,000 had the sanction of the city school board today.

The board recommended an education budget of $13,839,000 for 1948 and said it hoped a blanket raise of $700 would be given all teachers by September 1 this year. Under the new scale, a teacher's entrance salary would be fixed at $2200. This would apply to instructors with two years' preparation.

Teachers with four years of training would receive at least $2600, with graduated annual increases up to $4600.

Differentials for additional training and service would boost this to a peak of $5000.

Annexation Voted

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 20.—By a close vote of 106 to 95, Rosemont, a surburb of this city, voted yesterday in favor of annexation by the city. The balloting, held by a city council committee, was requested by Mayor Paul B. Martin before instituting legal proceedings.

Bigamist Pleads Guilty

Fredericksburg, Va., June 20.—James Arthur Dickerson, 25, of Arlington, a former resident of Fredericksburg, pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy in Caroline County Circuit Court at Bowling Green yesterday and was sentenced to 20 years in prison. Judge Leon Bazile suspended the sentence dependent upon the defendant good behavior.

Dickerson married Ruth Stepp of Woodstock in Washington on November 8, 1943, and, while still wed to her was married to Rachel Gayle of Caroline County November 5, 1946, under the name of James Davis.

Leniency was requested by Commonwealth's Attorney Bernard Mahon, who said a six-year sentence given Dickerson in Fredericksburg in April, 1940, for housebreaking, was "too harsh" and possibly the cause of much of his later trouble.

Consonant Trouble

The Communications Commission came up against a lip-tickling, tongue-twisting tangle yesterday.

Radio Station WSSV of Petersburg asked that WFFV of Richmond change its call letters and save Virginians possible confusion.

The FCC looked that one over, tried it out, thought about it—then agreed with "double-you-ess-ess-vee."

"Double-you-eff-eff-vee" will have to switch but its announcers probably will give the "eff-eee-cee" a vote of thanks. You try 'em! Get the idea?

Speak to Doctors

Charles Town, W. Va., June 20.—Dr. Christopher Parnall, medical director of the Newton D. Baker Veterans Administration Center here, and Dr. E. C. Drash of the University of Virginia faculty at Charlottesville, Va., were the principal speakers at the quarterly meeting of the Eastern Panhandle Medical Association here yesterday. The next meeting will be held at Harpers Ferry.

Organ to Be Dedicated

Leesburg, Va., June 20.—The Rev. Charles W. Caulkins of Washington, former pastor, will speak at Leesburg Baptist Church memorial services Sunday morning. A new organ will be dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Sudie Cunningham, who for many years was a member of the church. The services will begin at 10:45 a. m. with an organ recital by Mrs. Jane Simmons.

Carnival Scheduled

Prince Frederick, Md., June. 20.—The Calvert County Volunteer Fire Department will hold its second annual carnival June 28 to July 7 on the Calvert County High School grounds. The committee in charge is headed by Ray Shipley and includes Frank Smith, Duke Brightwell, Abby Wilson and Robert Lee Horsmon.

Burgee Bust Unveiled

Frederick, Md., June 20.—Several hundred of "his boys" gathered here today to unveil a memorial to the late Prof. Amon Burgee, who served as principal of Frederick Boys' High School from 1894 to 1916. The memorial, a gift of the alumni association of the school, stands in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

The lifesize bronze bust is mounted on a granite pedestal. The inscription reads: Amon Burgee, Scholar, Teacher, Friend; born April 16, 1865; died August 6, 1945. He molded the thoughts and character of "His Boys". Erected in loving memory by the Boys' High School Alumni Association, 1947."

Unveiling of the monument was by Amon Burgee, jr., son of the late educator. Invocation was by the Rev. Walter M. Michael of Cumberland, Md. Eulogy was delivered by Judge Charles E. Moylan of the Supreme Court bench of Baltimore.

Road Work Let

Winchester, Va., June 20.—A bid of $41,193 made by Richard F. Kline of Frederick, Md., for improvement of 5.4 miles of road on Route 629 in Frederick and Shenandoah Counties has been accepted by the State Highway Department. Work on the road between Lebannon Church and Stephens City is expected to start shortly and be completed in five months.

The State highway department also announced improvements to close gaps on two primary highways in Clarke and Frederick Counties. Construction estimated to cost $20,000 was started June 13 on the 1.3 miles unpaved section of Route 274 at Opequon Creek, and on Route 261, State forces are preparing to grade and surface a 2.47 mile section from White Hall to the West Virginia line, expected to cost $45,000.

Guard Grows

Richmond, Va., June 20 (AP).—The strength of the new Virginia National Guard increased to 1578 during the period from May 31 to June 16, the office of Adjutant Gen. S. Gardner Waller reported today.

The Guard now includes 1352 enlisted men, 211 officers and 15 warrant officers. The newly established units include the Twenty-nigth Cavalry Reconnaissance Troop (mechanized) at Berryville; Company C, 176th Infantry, Richmond; Company F, 116th, South Boston; Service Company, 116th, Roanoke, and Company E, 176th, Hopewell.

Four Reappointed

Richmond, Va., June 20 (AP).—Four members of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute board of visitors were reappointed by Governor Tuck today for new terms beginning July 1.

They are Mrs. H. H. Walton of Fredericks Hall, Mrs. Robert L. McConnell of Radford and State Senator Harry. C. Stuart of Elk Garden, all for terms of four years, and G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction and an ex-officio member of the board, for a term of two years.

The Governor also reappointed Highway Commissioner James A. Anderson for a five-year term as a member and chairman of the Elizabeth River Tunnel Commission. The new term begins June 30.

Tiny Baby Gains

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—Michael Lane Ewart, the smallest baby ever born at Johns Hopkins Hospital to survive, went home to join his parents in Annapolis today, weighing a healthy six pounds for his three and a half months.

Michael weighed one pound, 14 ounces at birth on March 6, three months ahead of schedule. He was named for the Harriet Lane Branch of the hospital, which kept him alive with stomach feedings and an incubator.

The John P. Ewarts have two other sons, aged 16 and 14.

City Gets New Signs

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 20.—This city is getting new street signs this month—first in 15 years—through the effort: of the Martinsburg Lions Club, which raised funds for the project through benefit carnivals.

The first signs were presented by Clarence Becker, club president, to Mayor Paul B. Martin. The 75 signs will be placed on 10-foot poles, replacing many now attached to buildings. The remainder are on order.

Bishop to Visit

Rites for Pipe Hermit

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 20. Funeral services for DeWitt T. Bosley, 60, World War I veteran who was discovered living in a concrete pipe several months ago near Cumberland, Md., were held yesterday afternoon in Cumberland.

Mr. Bosley, who was born here, died at Newton D. Baker Veterans Administration Hospital where he was taken after residents discovered him too ill to secure food from his pipe home. His only survivor is a brother in Cumberland.

Drag Duck Pond Outlet for Boy's Body...

SCENE OF DROWNING—Harbor police in a rowboat drag the Duck Pond outlet, below Mount Vernon Memorial hwy., north of National Airp ort, for the body of Isaiah Bates, 10, of 474 Clarkes Court sw. The youth was swept beyond his depth while swimming and drowned

2 D. C. Boys Swept to Death While Swimming With Friends

In separate tragedies yesterday, two District boys lost their lives by drowning when swept beyond their depth while swimming.

The victims were Robert L. Mitchell, 12, of 1837 Belmont st. nw., who was drowned in Rock Creek below the Taft Bridge, and Isaiah Bates, 10, of 474 Clark's Court sw, who lost his life in the bird sanctuary outlet below Mount Vernon Memorial hwy. north of National Airport.

In both cases, the youths were swimming with several companions. They were pronounced dead after artificial respiration proved vain.

Fisherman O. L. Ayers, 216 N. Asaph st., Arlington, snagged the sunken body of the Bates boy with his hook as Washington Harbor police dragged the deep pond outlet with their grapples.

Police said Elijah Bates, 12, brother of the victim, tried unsuccessfully to grab Isaiah when he was swept off his feet at about 11:50 a. m. yesterday.

Elijah and two other swimmers in the party, Regina Temple, 8, of 1250 Union Court sw. and Louis J. Moses, 8, of 457 Stafford Court sw., brought motorists and eventually park police to the scene.

Young Bates' body was recovered at 12:40 p. m. and taken by District police to the morgue.

The Mitchell boy's body was taken from Rock Creek by two park policemen at 4:32 p. m.

Park Police said 7-year-old Roland Brady of 2410 20th st. nw. ran home to tell his grandmother that Robert was drowning. She told Mrs. W. A. Reich, 2410 20th st. nw., who called police.

Park Police Willis L. Headlee and Paul W. Johnson who stripped to their shorts and waded in after the victim found him in about 3 minutes in a section of the creek 6 feet deep.

The boy lived with his mother, Mrs. Mae Mitchell of the Belmont st. nw. address.

Mother of the other victim is Mrs. Francis Bates, who is employed at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

In both tragedies, police pointed out that swimming is illegal in those areas.

Efforts Set To End Strike At Celanese

Cumberland, Md., June 20 (AP).—A union spokesman said today both sides had been called to Washington for an attempt on Monday to settle the three-week strike of 8600 production workers at the Cumberland plant of Celanese Corp. of America.

Wesley Cook, assistant director of the rayon industry division of the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) reported the development to Local 1874's strike strategy committee.

He said the negotiating committee had been asked to meet in Washington at 3 p. m. Monday with management representatives, Chief Edgar L. Warren of the United States Conciliation Service, and Peter J. Manno, director of the service's Philadelphia region.

Company spokesmen said they had not received an invitation but understood such a move was in the works.

St. Louis Still Walks

St. Louis, June 20 (AP).—St. Louis streets were still devoid of buses and streetcars today following the operators' rejection of a proposal that they return to work and let the Missouri Public Service Commission arbitrate their wage dispute. The operators' strike began a week ago today.

Bay System Tied Up

Oakland, Calif., June 20 (AP).—The "rule of thumb" held for the tenth straight day today in transportation-paralyzed Oakland's East Bay area—and the end was nowhere in sight.

It was hitchhike a ride as best he could for many a rider among the 500,000 who ordinarily depend on the Key System.

The AFL car men and maintenance men late yesterday turned down what the management said was a "final offer" embracing a raise of 12 cents an hour to $1.32—3 cents short of the latest union demand. The offer also included terms which fell short of union demands for 8 hours of work in a spread of 10.

John M. Rankin

Des Moines, June 20 (AP).—Iowa Attorney General John M. Rankin, 74, president of the National Association of Attorneys General in 1944-45, died today in the Veterans' Hospital after a long illness.

Before becoming attorney general, in 194, he had been a district judge at Keokuk from 1925 to 1938, and previous to that had served three terms in the Iowa Legislature as a member of the House. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Dr. W. H. Houghton

Chicago, June 20 (AP).—Funeral services were held today for Dr. W. H. Houghton, 60, president of the Moody Bible Institute, who died Saturday in Los Angeles.

Final rites for Dr. Houghton were conducted by Dr. William Culbertson, the institute's dean of education, and Dr. Harry A. Ironside, pastor of Moody Memorial Church, where the services were held.

Emeritus professor of history at the University College of North Wales, Lloyd was a vice president of the Royal Historical Society, a member of numerous historical commissions an dauthor of a number of historical works, most of them dealing with Wales.

Road Builders To Meet Here In January

The American Road Builders Association has selected Washington as the site for its forty-fifth annual convention next January. This will mark the first time the association has met here since 1935.

About 2000 persons are expected to attend the three-day convention to be held from January 26 to 28, J. T. Callaway of Chicago, president of the ARBA, announced.

"This meeting will be of the utmost importance to the postwar highway construction program," Callaway declared. "Our program in 1948 should be on its way to a peak of two billion dollars annually. Deliberation at this convention will have vital bearing on the expenditure of this huge sum and on the problems of meeting today's ever-increasing traffic demands."

All divisions of the ARBA, including manufacturers, contractors, distributors, and county and municipal highway officials, will hold individual group sessions and participate in the general discussions. Also, more than 40 technical committees will make detailed reports.

'Duel in Sun' Called 'Nasty'; House Unit Hints Censorship

The congressional outcry against "Duel in the Sun" because of the way in which it combines sin and sex with sunshine may bring about stricter censorship of Washington movies.

The House District Committee yesterday agreed to consider the matter of censorship here even though most of the members expressed a dread of "snooping boards."

The committee took up a House resolution, proposed Thursday by Representative John Rankin (D., Miss.), which would bar the superduper Western technicolor film from all Washington theaters. Several members of the District Committee who had seen the film concurred that the picture was "filthy," "nasty," and "one of the worst pictures to come out of Hollywood."

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) warned the committee that he knew the six-million-dollar David O. Selznick production to be a flop, and that by banning the film, Congress would only succeed in making it a best-seller.

The committee formally directed Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) to confer with Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Association of America, Hollywood's self-censorship agency, which permitted production and release of the film.

"I'll explore the situation," Dirksen promised. "It may be necessary for us to establish a board of censorship here."

Censorship of Washington's movie and vaudeville shows is conducted by the Women's Bureau of the Police Department.

U. of Va. to Honor Dr. J. L. Newcomb Upon Retirement

Charlottesville, Va., June 20 (AP).—John Lloyd Newcomb, president of the University of Virginia, will end two decades of administrative activities this weekend, and ceremonies honoring him upon his retirement, will be held Sunday at 4 p. m., in Cabell Hall as part of the three-day "victory reunion" of alumni.

Dean Ivey F. Lewis will preside over the exercises. Edward R. Stettinius, jr., University rector, will speak as member of the board of visitors; Robert B. Tunstall, Norfolk, as representative of the alumni; Robert K. Gooch, as representative of the faculty, and Alexander W. Wells, Daytona Beach, Fla., president of the Student Council, as representative of the students.

A reception honoring Dr. Newcomb will be held in the Colonnade Club after exercises.

Colgate W. Darden, jr., alumnus and former Governor of Virginia, will take office as the university's third president on Monday, but he will not be inaugurated formally until next fall.

Apple Firm Expands

Winchester, Va., June 20.—Workmen have started razing the six-story apple storage building of the C. L. Robinson Ice & Cold Storage Corp. here. The frame building, built between 1905 and 1912, as the first apple cold storage in the Shenandoah Valley, will be replaced with a new concrete and brick building, increasing the apple storage and quick freeze capacity of the local firm's operations here.

Cost of the modernization is estimated by Manager H. D. Robinson, jr., at between $200,000 and $300,000. The firm has completed a five-story quick-freezing plant in Charles Town which will be opened July 1.

Police Chief Named

Charles Town, W. Va., June 20.—T. W. Allen has been named chief of police here. Harry O. Owens has been named city clerk by the Town Council to succeed George F. Shields, who resigned.

Inspection Date Near

It will soon be roundup time again for jaloppies in Virginia.

The American Automobile Association reminded Virginians that their vehicles must be inspected between July 1 and August 31. A list of inspection stations will be issued by the State police shortly. The garages will be permitted to charge 25 cents for the inspection.

Pageant Event Set

Newport News, Va., June 20 (AP).—Governor Tuck has designated Friday, July 18, as "historic Peninsula Night" at "The Common Glory," historical pageant to be presented at Lake Matoaka, near Williamsburg, and appointed House Speaker George Alvin Massenburg of Hampton as chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The Paul Green pageant will be presented for the first time on July 17.

Town Talk

By Eva Hinton

THE theme was distinctly "Auld Lang Syne" when old friends of the U. S. Minister to Ireland and Mrs. George Angus Garrett got together and gave a farewell garden party for the popular couple at the 1925 F Street Club the other afternoon. Luckily it was real garden party weather, so that the bar and hors d'oeuvres table could be set up in the garden with confidence.

Mrs. Garrett was as pretty as a picture in a rose and white silk print worn with a becoming, crownless hat made entirely of roses. One of the guests remarked admiringly, "That might be a halo, or it might be a headdress, but it certainly is not a mere hat."

The Garretts were both in their accustomed friendly and happy mood and were inviting visits to Ireland and accepting errands for everyone. Mrs. Garrett remarked that she is keen to see the Dublin Horse Show and one of the guests was able to give her a first-hand description of the event. Golden-haired Mrs. "Chip" Robert was in Dublin for the show in 1938.

Mrs. John M. Gross, owner of the F Street Club, had come down from her home in Pennsylvania to say goodby to the Garretts and was surrounded every minute. Mrs. Robert Low Bacon was deep in conversation with Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, and at another table the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. James V. Forrestal chatted with Mrs. Dwight Davis and Arthur Krock.

Mrs. Amory Perkins came all the way from Middleburg for the party in honor of the Garretts, but Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse and Myron Hofer had only to cross the street from their respective homes.

Coleman Jennings made one of his infrequent party appearances, and other distinguished men saying their adieux to the Garretts included Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador, Frank Kent, Eugene Meyer, and Breckinridge Long.

MOST quietly sophisticated debutante of the summer is pretty blonde Alberta Legare who will surely follow her mother right into that list of the "ten best-dressed women." For at the tea at which she was presented to her mother's friends, both Alberta and Mrs. Legare ignored the usual froufrou mother-and-daughter debutante costumes and chose fashion-plate afternoon dresses. Both wore taffeta made with the new silhouette which is bouffante at the hip line and tapers toward the hem. Alberta's dress was a soft shade of deeper-than-Alice-blue with touches of black embroidery on the bodice. Mrs. Legare daringly chose black and made it festive with stunning jewels, plus gardenias at the squared neckline.

The Dean of the Diplomatic Corps and Mme. Martins brought their second daughter, Anna Maria, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Reed were accompanied by their attractive daughter, Caroline. Mrs. Noyes Lewis and Mrs. Wallach Merriam were complimenting Mrs. Robert Olds on her beautiful suntan which she set off with a slinky black dress and black picture hat.

Col. and Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock, with pretty daughters, Claire and Mary Lee, were saying goodby before leaving for the summer on a ranch near Lake Tahoe. Other family friends greeting the debutante included Col. and Mrs. Horace Smith, Justice Frank Murphy, Capt. and Mrs. Edward Mitchell, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, Miss Irene Boyle, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. Alex Legare, the Nathan Scotts, Mrs. Sam Beach and Mrs. Eugene Carusi.

Luncheon Showers Feature Parties

THE much feted Miss Zelma Joan Manfuso was guest of honor at a luncheon and shower at the Columbia Country Club yesterday. Her hostess was Mrs. Thomas Perry and there were about 20 guests. Miss Manfusco's marriage to James Brown Morrison, jr., will take place Tuesday afternoon.

Later in the day Miss Manfuso was again honored, when her fiance's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Brown Morrison, entertained for her at a cocktail party.

Couple Feted

COMPLIMENTING Miss Jean Cummings Collingwood and John Henry Spelman, who will be married this afternoon in Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lipscomb entertained with a cocktail party last night at their home following the wedding rehearsal. Later the group went to the Shoreham Terrace for supper.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Baxter C. Prescott, Miss Joan Trangman, Miss Patricia Johnson, Miss Rebecca Collingwood, Miss Lucy Staton, Miss Barbara Nesbitt, Lieut. Col. John Morrissey, Philip Spelman, Sam Musser, Harris Collingwood, jr., Stanley Johnston and William Johnston.

Mrs. Wing Honored

MRS. JACK B. WING, who was Miss Mary Helen Benham before her recent marriage, was guest of honor at a buffet luncheon and shower given at the home of Miss Phyllis Gaal Thursday evening.

Among those present were Miss Verner Brewer, Miss Cleo Roesch, Miss Mildred Hare, Miss Dorothy Palmer, Miss Helen Heselton, Miss May Kidwell, Miss Cheryl Roesch and Miss Deanne Hammond.

No Freedom in Hungary Today, Nagy Tells Congressional Club

By Genevieve Reynolds

WIVES of the Nation's lawmakers turned out en masse yesterday at the Congressional Club's tea to hear Ferenc Nagy, former Premier of Hungary, give a first hand account of how he was ousted by the Communists.

Speaking through an interpreter —Stephen Swift, Hungarian-American of New York—Nagy told the large audience that Hungary's radio and press today has no freedom. "It is following the Communist Party line as rigidly as it parroted Nazi propaganda five years ago," he asserted.

The former Premier said that the Hungarian Communists cooperated with the Soviet occupying forces to overthrow existing Hungarian institutions. "Hungarian Communists emphasized freedom for the country while infringing deeper and deeper themselves," he explained. "Gradually and slowly there was no chance to move freely because the occupying power and the Hungarian Communists were in cahoots."

Nagy said that he had seen the Hungarian Communists, aided by the force of the Soviet occupation army, disband all religious youth organizations and attack other institutions of the country. "Not withstanding," he declared, "I was prepared to work with a coalition government until Hungary obtained its independence and freedom under the peace treaties."

Looking to U. S.

"I believe every freedom-loving statesman in the world today is looking to the United States," Nagy declared. "That's why I came here," he added.

"I am happy to notice America's public opinion toward Hungary's tragedy," said Nagy. "I am sure this understanding public opinion will encourage the peoples of Southeastern Europe to fight for their own freedom."

When asked by a congressional wife to define his conception of democracy, Nagy answered. "To me it means freedom of the individual to choose his own private life, plus freedom of political and economic life. The people should be led by the people, elected by the people in a secret ballot."

Queried about present political freedom in Hungary, he answered, "there is none," and cited the fact that the Freedom Party had been forbidden to hold meetings.

Called upon in a question-answer period following his main talk to estimate the present strength of the Communist Party in Hungary, Nagy said that he could not give accurate figures, explaining that Communist strength was only 17 pr cent in the last free elections.

As for Soviet Russia's opportunity to interfere with the economic life of Hungary, he said there was "ample opportunity," listing two reasons: the armistice agreement whereby Hungary is to pay 200 million dollars to Russia and 100 million to Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia; the Potsdam Agreement which gave all the German assets in Hungary to Russia.

Family There

The former Premier's family, including his wife, daughter Lucille, son, Francis Nagy, jr., who was an attache at the legation here, and 4-year-old Lacika, held as hostage by the Communists before Nagy's "resignation," accompanied him. All were introduced as were the former Hungarian Minister, Aladar Szegedy-Maszak and members of the legation staff who resigned with him. These included the former Counselor and Mme. Stephen Borsody, Mrs. Alexander Szasz.

Mrs. Clifford Davis, club president, presided and introduced little Lacika Nagy. Mrs. Albert Gore, program chairman, introduced Ferenc Nagy with the other members of his family, and other former members of the legation staff here.

Miss Mira Noyes Selects Attendants For June Nuptials

Miss Mira Pearce Noyes, daughter of Mrs. Laurence H. Green, who will be married next Saturday to Robert Henry Boarman, will have Miss Margaret Shumaker as her maid of honor and Mrs. John W. Bowman, a cousin, as her matron of honor.

Bridesmaids will be Miss Katherine Fisher and Miss Margaret Ferguson, classmates at Wells College.

Thomas Dade will be Mr. Boarman's best man and the ushers include Theodore Noyes, brother of the bride-elect; Robert L. Simmons, Robert Means of Boston, and Muscoe Martin of Paducah, Ky.

A reception will follow at the Sulgrave Club.

Stantons Announce Daughter's Troth

The Rev. John Hubert Stanton and Mrs. Stanton, of Johnstown, Pa., have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Barbara Jeanne, to David DuBose Gaillard 2d, son of Mrs. and Mrs. David St. Pierre Gaillard of Washington.

The ceremony will take place Saturday, June 28, at the Westmont Presbyterian Church, Johnstown. A reception in the church parlors will follow.

Mrs. Hoyt Visiting

Mrs. Neil F. Hoyt of St. Cloud, Minn., formerly of Manila, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Rosemarie Hoyt, is visiting Mrs. William R. Richardson at her home in Mount Rainier, Md.

On the Capital Party Calendar

THREE Australian diplomats, soon to leave Washington, will be honored at a reception Friday at the embassy. The Ambassador and Mrs. Makin will be hosts, and guests are invited from 5 to 7 o'clock.

J. E. Brigden, Economic Counselor of the embassy, is one of the honor guests. He and Mrs. Brigden will return to Australia via London, after the Counselor attends a meeting of the Expert Committee on Contributions at U. N. in August.

The retiring Counselor, John Oldham, and Mrs. Oldham will leave Washington the first week in July, and the third departing diplomat, L. R. McIntyre, and Mrs. McIntyre, will leave a month later.

All three couples have made many friends in Washington and they are kept busy these days keeping pace with the parties given in their honor.

Greek Envoy, Wife To Be Honored

THE Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis will be guests of honor at the Greek dinner dance to be given by the United Nations Club tomorrow at 7:30.

Miss Meredith Howard will entertain at dinner preceding the dance. Chairman of the evening is Mrs. Henry William Morgan, jr.

Stainbacks Feted By Lockwoods

GOV. AND MRS. Ingram Stainback of Hawaii are again at the Mayflower, after 10 days spent visiting friends in Princeton and New York. Yesterday Governor and Mrs. Stainback were guests of honor at a small cocktail party given by their old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood at their estate Lock-Woods-on-the Potomac. Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood visited the Steinbacks in Honolulu last winter.

Mrs. Stainback will leave on Tuesday afternoon for Springfield, Mo., where she will visit members of her family, afterward meeting the Governor in Salt Lake City for the Governors Conference.

The Stainbacks will return to Honolulu in July.

Aspinwalls Entertain At Garden Party

IN their garden last evening Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall entertained at a buffet supper in honor of Miss Hillis Morris and members of her wedding party. Mrs. J. Harris Franklin, sister of Mrs. Aspinwall, was cohostess at the party.

Mrs. Alexander Holliday, daughter of Mrs. Franklin, is an old school friend of Miss Morris, and has come on from her home in Indianapolis for the wedding festivities. Mrs. Aspinwall's daughter, Mrs. David Scull, is also a former schoolmate of Miss Morris, but was unable to be in town for the fete last evening.

The garden provided a perfect setting for the young gathering. Lilies and larkpur crowded the fountain, and roses were thick along the garden wall. There were about 35 guests in all, including Mrs. Aspinwall's son, and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Blair Lee, III.

Sir Frederick Bain Feted at Luncheon

SIR FREDERICK BAIN, president of the Federation of British Industries, was the guest in whose honor Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, was host at a stag luncheon on Thursday at the Carlton Hotel.

Overby, United States executive director of the Monetary Fund; Paul Hoffman, Arthur Hall, Eugene Meyer, Rufus F. Hale, Raymond S. Smethurst and Walter Chamblin, jr.

Wellington Koos Give Formal Dinner

AT TWIN OAKS last evening the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Koo entertained at a formal dinner in honor of Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred M. Vinson.

Other guests were Associate Justice and Mrs. Stanley Norman Reed, the Chinese Ambassador to the Netherlands, Chang Chien; Senator and Mrs. George W. Malone, Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, Representative Sol Bloom, Miss Vera Bloom, Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, Representative James G. Fulton, Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Clarence B. Hewes, and Minister of the Chinese Embassy and Mme. Tan.

Dr. Douglass Fetes Miss Cordelia Cowan

DR. PAUL F. DOUGLASS, president of the American University, entertained at a buffet supper at his home on the university campus last evening in honor of former dean of the school of nursing, Miss Cordelia Cowan, and the nursing students of the university who have written the State board examination for registration. Of the group of 35 students who have written the examination, 15 passed with honors.

Mrs. C. G. Moore Gives Luncheon

A LUNCHEON for twelve was given by Mrs. Charles Godwin Moore yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel. Mme. Eriksson, wife of the Swedish Minister, was ranking guest. Blue and yellow flowers, the colors of Sweden, centered the table.

Miss Beatrice Moore, the hostess' daughter, had as guests at the luncheon, Mrs. Leslie Douglas and Miss Anita Baralbar, daughter of the Spanish Minister.

A sightseeing trip and boat ride to Mount Vernon is scheduled tomorrow. At a luncheon to be held Monday Manheim S. Shapiro, national director of programs, will be the principal speaker.

Susie Q

"But, Susie . . . you've been naggin' at me for weeks to get a car radio!"

Ask Anne — Your Questions On Homemaking

How can I refinish a wicker couch and front rest which was painted white and has peeled badly? How can I clean an electric sprayer which was not cleaned after water paint was used in it? It is now clogged with this paint which has dried like cement. Also, could you please tell me how I can remove white enamel paint from a white enamel ware pot? The paint is inside and I'd like to remove it without ruining the pot.
T. E. L.

Sand down all of the spots where the paint has peeled on your furniture. Brush away all of the paint particles and dust. For the spots not accessible to sandpapering, brush them vigorously with a stiff brush or a wire brush. When all loose paint has been removed, paint the furniture with two coats of good enamel suitable for furniture.

I'm afraid there is no way to satisfactorily clean your paint sprayer.

Put turpentine or paint remover into the pot and let stand to soften and scrub with a stiff brush. Several applications and scrubbing may be necessary.

The cream-colored window shades in our apartment are quite soiled. Is there any way we may clean them as they are still in good condition otherwise? If not, do dry cleaners do this kind of work? Is there any way in which milk stains may be removed from a lunch cloth? The cloth has been washed many times, but they still show.
B. C. E.

If your shades are washable, you may clean them with mild soap and water. Do not, however, attempt to clean them this way if you do not know that they are washable. Remove them from the window, unroll them and lay them out on a flat surface such as a table top. Using a circular motion, clean the shade with a cloth wrung out of warm soapy water. Wipe off the suds with a damp cloth wrung out of clean, cool water. Work on a small area at a time, overlapping each area. Wash shade on both sides. Hang up to dry before rerolling.

If the shades are not washable, their appearance can sometimes be improved by laying them flat and erasing the dirt with a dough-type wallpaper cleaner or art gum eraser. Work with light strokes.

Repeated washings may have set the milk stain so that nothing will remove it. However, try sponging it with carbon tetrachloride. Or dampen the stain with cold water, then sprinkle pepsin on the dampened stain and let it stand 30 minutes. Brush off and rinse the spot well. For best results be sure the material is free from soap or other alkali before applying the pepsin.

Will you please tell me how black paint can be removed from a hardwood floor? This paint came from the bottom of a pair of bathroom scales that got wet as the result of an open window. It was quite a while before the scales were moved. In three or four days the large spot was noticed. We tried to remove this paint with turpentine. Since then, several coats of wax have been applied. Can you suggest anything, except having the floor scraped, that might remove this black paint?
K. G.

Remove all the wax with a prepared wax remover. To remove the spot, try a paint remover, but I'm afraid the stain has soaked into the wood so that the paint remover wouldn't reach it. In that case, scrub the spot with powdered pumice, sandpaper or steel wool and refinish.

I have some beautiful embroidered Puerto Rican linens which are stained as if they had been damp for a long time. The brown streaks show up especially when the doilies are wet. I have tried laundry bleach with little success and would like to know if it is safe to use anything more potent? If so, what?
B. S. S.

Mildew spots are difficult to remove because a fungus growth actually changes the fibers. Try removing the stain by moistening with lemon juice and salt and placing in the sun.

I would like to know how to make or where to buy a red, transparent paint or lacquer used on glassware to give it the appearance of ruby glass which will be permanent. I have used red nail polish on the bottom of glasses and the edges of ash trays, candy dishes, etc., and although it looks like the results I want, it chips off eventually. I believe I once heard that a combination of sealing wax and alcohol will make the desired substance, but I don't know how to do it. Any information on the subject will be appreciated.

Housework Can Beautify Your Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

IF HOUSEWORK made women beautiful, it wouldn't be considered such drudgery. Well, I have found a model housewife who has worked out a special technique that turns housework into figure-controlling exercise and lightens the housework to boot.

Her figure is proof of the beauty of her program. Our ingenious homemaker weighs 127 nicely distributed pounds; bust 36 inches, waist 25½ inches, and hips 38½ inches. Those are model measurements. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall. She has two teen-age children. Here's the routine that keeps her figure perfect:

It's Invigorating

"When I run the vacuum cleaner, I reach out with it and at the same time pull up and in with my stomach muscles. It took a bit of practice to do it that way; but now it's a habit. And when I hang up clothes I reach up for the line, but concentrate the upstretch through the middle to prevent thickening there. And oddly enough, I find the upstretch invigorating, which makes hanging clothes less tiring and less monotonous.

"When I bend to pick up the children's belongings, I keep my back straight, and use the thigh and leg muscles. I have found it's far better not to 'put your back into your work.' Even in doing work that requires sitting I try to keep my back straight. Also in walking upstairs. Now it's a habit, and at the end of the day my back is never tired. And when I carry groceries I have them in two bags and carry one in each arm so as not to get lopsided.

"For an eye-opener, when waking in the morning, while still in bed, I try to touch my toes to the bottom of the bed and my head to the top at the same time, while pulling slim through the middle. And when I tie my shoe laces I balance on one foot and try not to topple over.

"All these are not exercises, but things that must be done anyway. I don't actually take any exercises, yet I really exercise all day long. And I bowl about five games a week for fun."

Party Cake

One of the most attractive party cakes can be made by simply spreading glistening jam from the grocery store on the top of the cake and icing the sides with either whipped cream or powdered sugar icing.

Banish Fish Smell

To make the smell of cooking fish something sweet and pleasant, scorch a little brown sugar or vinegar in a frying pan. The sugar gives off the aroma of caramel and chases the fish smell out of the window.

Warmack—May

Miss Alethea Jeanne May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Noble May, and William Davies Warmack, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Warmack, were married yesterday in National Baptist Memorial Church, the Rev. Edward Bacon Willingham officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an Edwardian period dress of magnolia satin with a strand of pearls and fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of Brandywine roses.

Miss Muriel Warmack, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Miss Beverly Cook and Miss Kay Youngblood were bridesmaids. Sharron Lee Patterson, cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl and David Jameson Barton, another cousin, was ring bearer.

Roy Parker served as best man. Ushers were Irvin Tuttle May, brother of the bride; Joseph Warmack, brother of the bridegroom, Edward Hill and William Clarence Fowler.

A reception at the Kennedy-Warren followed the ceremony.

The bridegroom served as a lieutenant in the Army Air Force and now attends George Washington University.

Suit—Miller

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Suit, married on June 2 in Elizabethton, Tenn., have returned from a honeymoon in Asheville, N. C., to reside in Washington. The bride is the former Flora Blanche Miller of Berwyn, Md., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Miller of Elizabethton. Her husband is the son of George Suit of Norfolk, Va.

Bunyan—Ramsay

Rock Spring Congregational Church, Arlington, Va., was the setting for the wedding on Tuesday of Miss Jeanne Breckinridge Ramsay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Livingston Ramsay, and Clarence Riley Bunyan of Wichita, Kans. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bunyan.

The Rev. Paul Hunter officiated at the ceremony held at 5 p. m., and Mrs. Harry Abell, godmother of the bride, played the wedding music.

Mr. Ramsay gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory faille taffeta made with tight bodice and high net yoke, and a full skirt ending in a circular train. Her finger-tip veil of ivory illusion fell from a Mary Queen of Scots, cap. She carried an ivory-bound prayer book and gardenias with streamers of white ribbon tied with lilies of the valley.

Miss Agatha Kalanzie, the bride's only attendant, wore a chartreuse net gown with full skirt and matching lace jacket.

Andrew Clement Ramsay, brother of the bride, was best man, and Ben Mehaffey and Walter Gaines Ramsay were ushers.

The ceremony was followed by a reception in the garden of the bride's home on Rock Spring rd.

After a motor trip through the Shenandoah Valley and a visit to the bridegroom's parents in Wichita, Mr. and Mrs. Bunyan will go to Chicago to live. The bride is a student at the University of Chicago and Mr. Bunyan is attending Roosevelt College.

Muehlhause—Lyon

In a candlelight ceremony June 17, Miss Carolyn Lyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clyde Lyon, became the bride of Dr. Carl O. Muehlhause, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Muehlhause of Washington and Baltimore. The wedding took place in the New York Ave. Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Peter Marshall officiated. A reception followed in the Carlton Room of the Carlton Hotel.

The bride wore a gown of white slipper satin trimmed with seed pearls and a veil of illusion held by a tiara of seed pearls. Her flowers were white orchids and roses.

Mrs. Alice Wallace was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Hamblin, Miss Helen Lois Hamblin, and Mrs. Rhes Snowden. Dr. Vernon Myers served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Muehlhause, father of the bridegroom, La Verne Birks and Waller George.

Following a honeymoon in Bermuda, Dr. and Mrs. Muehlhause will reside in Chicago.

Tate—Byrd

Miss Pauline Elizabeth Byrd and the Rev. Edward Engram Tate were married June 18 in Immanuel-Church-on-the-Hill, Alexandria, with the Rev. D. A. de Boardenave officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Roy Edward Byrd, Alexandria, and the late Mr. Byrd, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Edward Tate, Kansas City, Mo.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Representative Frank W. Boykin of Alabama, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with mousseline de soie yoke, bustle back and long train. Her heirloom veil, which had been worn by the matron of honor, Mrs. Walter Curtis Imrie, fell from a crown of latticed satin and she carried a white prayer book covered with orchids and lilies of the valley.

Bridesmaids were Misses Joanne Vann, Betty Burks Quarles and Jean Quarles. All the bride's attendants were gowned in lavender mousseline de soie with picture hats and carried yellow roses. Bernard M. Suttler served as best man.

After a month's honeymoon in the Carolinas, the Rev. and Mrs. Tate will make their home in Alexandria, where the bridegroom is headmaster of St. Stephen's Episcopal School for Boys.

Moyer—Cunningham

In a candlelight ceremony performed by Chaplain George D. Lesley in Walter Reed Memorial Chapel last night, Miss Helen-Marie Cunningham became the bride of Maj. Maynard George Moyer, USA. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy N. Cunningham of Washington, at present in Paris, France, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Bickle, Chardon, Ohio.

Given in marriage by her brother, William W. Cunningham, the bride wore a long veil of illusion and a gown of white faille with court train, high neckline and leg-o'-mutton sleeves. Her bouquet was of small white orchids.

Mrs. A. W. Bushman, matron of honor, was dressed in green mousseline over yellow satin and carried tea roses. Other attendants were Miss Yvette Le Dain, maid of honor; Miss Jacqueline Duncan, Eleanor Hughes, Michele Cann, and Francoise Cann, bridesmaids, and Maryvonne Cann, flower girl. All wore frocks of white eyelet embroidery over yellow taffeta and carried blue delphinium and yellow roses.

William S. Hope served as best man and ushers were Col. John M. Kemper, Col. Allen F. Clark, Lieut. Col. Thomas Badger, and Maj. James D. T. Hamilton.

After a honeymoon at Virginia Beach and Charleston S. C., the couple will leave for Major Moyer's station in Peiping, China.

The bride was educated at Trinity College here and Lycee Racine in Paris. Major Moyer is a graduate of the United States Military Academy and Yale University.

The Painting Curley Abhors

Capitol Show's Arty, In Left Bank Sense, Not to Say Hypnotic

By Richard L. Coe

ALL KINDS OF EXOTIC oddities are awash at the Capitol this week.

Ralph Slater's hypnotic half-hour, one of the really remarkable acts of the show world, is the most entertaining of the strange goings-on, but there are also some pretty fancy doings in the picture, "The Private Affairs of Bel Ami."

Ralph Slater

The film isn't unalloyed delight by any means. Matter of fact it's pretty dull and inexplicable some of the time. But who'd ever expect to find a painting by the daring Max Ernst as a sidelight of a pedestrian movie? And another extreme modernist, Darius Milhaud, has supplied the music, with the exception of a rather insinuating little tune, "Bel Ami."

The Ernst painting comes upon you in Gu-lorious Technicolor smack in the middle of the picture. Its subject is a traditional one, "The Temptation of Saint Anthony," and its handling also is in the tradition of this century-old favorite of painters.

Yes, it's on the gruesome side and you'll be amused to know that Boston's Mayor Curley, who faces a prison sentence, was shocked by the Ernst conception "Exhibiting such pictures," said he, "would do no good, but would be a great injury to the morals of the public."

So much for the Curley nonsense and the Ernst painting, which you don't see much of anyway. But it does epitomize the struggle with temptation "Bel Ami" puts in the hearts of his female victims.

The film begins with this foreword: "This is the history of a Scoundrel. The time is 1880. The place is Paris."

Georges Duroy is down and out, but his old war pal of 1870, played by John Carradine, helps him get started in the newspaper world of Paris. This leads Georges from one woman to another and gains him his nickname, "Bel Ami." He ignores Marie Wilson, a lady of the better bars; he takes up with Angela Lansbury but ditches her to marry Ann Dvorak, his pal's clever widow; he involves the aging wife, Katherine Emery, of a crooked friend and then intrigues with her daughter, Susan Douglas.

This adept heartbreaker is played by George Sanders and we must say he seems hardly the type to be so unerringly successful. But then, you never know, do you? He winds up badly in a duel, whose rules are considerably more involved than we'd previously expected of such things.

The story's been adapted from a De Maupassant novel by Albert Lewin. David M. Loew's production is fascinatingly lush in its detail—Paris of the gaslight era, with unusual shots of the Notre Dame apse from the Left Bank. These settings and rare details we found handsomely nostalgic and for them we were able to gloss over the more tedious portions of the script. We're inclined to blame the heavy-handed Sanders for the incredible aspects of what should have been a dashing portrait.

If the Ralph Slater hypnotic business is new to you, we strongly recommend a look-in on him. He takes a couple of people from the audience (unknown to him, we're certain, for we've watched him many times) and by hypnotic suggestion makes them do all manner of amusing and incredible things.

Slater's strong on the scientific angle of his peculiar ability, which he claims isn't peculiar at all, says anyone of average intelligence can do it. It's a remarkable act and vastly entertaining, serious though he is about it.

Also on the Capitol stage are George Church and Marilyn Hale in some sturdy tap-dancing, and a song satirist, Vivian Marshall. And Milt Slosser's "Linda" sets you to singing as that tune invariably does.

Cop-Hating Healy Gave One the 'Cold Shoulder'

New York—At the Friars Club last week some vaudevillians were discussing the quirks of their colleagues, and one of them told of the late Ted Healy who insisted that he was allergic to policemen. All policemen. His dislike was so intense that when, in a hotel room in Chicago, he read that the thermometer was registering the low for the year, he walked out into the blizzard, stepped up to a cop standing in the middle of the street and started addressing him in double-talk . . . The cop couldn't understand the gibberish—and removed his ear-muffs, to hear better. Healy then asked him the address of an obscure Chicago theater. The freezing cop unbuttoned his overcoat to get at his directory. "Will you write the address down for me? I can't write," said Healy—who considered his triumph complete when the cop took his gloves off to write it.

John Steinbeck

Robert Capa, the photographer, leaves for Europe shortly to collaborate with John Steinbeck in a book about the places they'll visit. Capa, who was naturalized recently, at last will travel on an American passport . . . He worked as a war correspondent in Spain, China, Africa, Sicily and Normandy. And during this period he carried unusual credentials. As his alleged passport Capa had a document signed by a Hungarian former consul. In it the former consul certified that he would not say that Robert Capa was not a Hungarian.

Oil men are suggesting that Nelson Rockefeller's visit to Venezuela may have been in relation to a threat by the Venezuelan government to expropriate—via confiscatory taxes—all the foreign-owned oil fields and concessions . . . Elsa Lanchester, wife of Charles Laughton, may emerge as a night club star next season. Barney Josephson of Cafe Society has gone to Hollywood to sign her . . . Representative L. F. Rayfiel expects to get the Federal judgeship in Brooklyn.

No one agent, either in Hollywood or New York, has ever represented as many high-salaried actors, writers, producers and directors as did Myron Selznick. His activities involved millions of dollars every year. Selznick's approach was unique. He often would acknowledge a movie executive's greeting by shouting: "How dare you say hello to me, you soandso—after all the things you said about me in Ciro's last night" . . . "Nine times out of 10," Selznick later would confess, "the guy really did say those things about me. This immediately would put him on the defensive—and in a bad bargaining position."

Deborah Kerr, the British star whose first American screen role is with Clark Gable in "The Hucksters," went to a premiere in Hollywood. When she left, and asked the doorman to call her car, the doorman announced over the microphone: "Miss Kurr's car, please" . . . Miss Kerr corrected him: "'K-e-r-r' is pronounced 'Karr,' not 'Kurr'" . . . "Oh, I beg your pardon," the doorman apologized, then announced: "Miss Karr's cur, please."

Mike Romanoff, now at Johns Hopkins for a check-up, saw two men fighting outside his restaurant shortly before he flew East. A policeman stood by. Romanoff, suddenly remembering his imperial background, removed his gloves, slapped them at the cop's cheeks, and said: "Cossack, can't you keep order?" . . . Martha Stewart, who had a minor singing job at the Copacabana two years ago, has been offered $4,000 a week to appear at the Roxy. Miss Stewart is the wife of Joe E. Lewis . . . The Richard Aldrich-Gertrude Niesen dispute, about her scheduled appearance at the Cape Playhouse, is reaching the Equity Council petition stage.

Sheridan's Value to Warners Upped Million by 'Sam' Role

Hollywood.—On May 30, I wrote: "If Ann Sheridan is allowed to play the lead in 'Good Sam' under Leo McCarey's direction, she'll be worth a million dollars more to Warners, because Ann will move right up into the Ingrid Bergman stratosphere." Well, Warners saw the light; and Ann will play opposite Gary Cooper in "Good Sam." In return, she has promised to do one more picture than her present contract calls for at Warners. This means she has a total of three more films to do for that studio before she's on her own . . . Jimmy Cagney would like Gregory Peck to co-star with him in "A Lion Is in the Streets." It's the part Clark Gable wanted to do. The Cagney brothers won't get the picture rolling until November, because "The Stray Lamb" comes first. No, neither of these is an animal picture—nor for children . . . Clifton Webb has no idea what picture he'll make next, since "Julie," with Jeanne Crain, has been postponed. Meanwhile, his mother, Maybelle, says "we're living very well in a beautifully furnished mansion near Bel Air. I don't worry, but Clifton does. He likes to work" . . . Norma Shearer is reading the script for Francis Sill Wickare's "Tuesday to Bed." If she likes it, she'll do the picture for Enterprise . . . Roz Russell and husband Freddie Brisson are wooing Bette Davis like mad. They want her to join their independent production set-up when she finishes her contract at Warners.

Belatedly Knighted

Our snake trainers have had the bite put on them by the animal trainers' union, which demands membership in it before a guy can work his educated serpents . . . The knighthood bestowed on Laurence Olivier for services rendered the British empire by his work in the theater and the movies was a year late. But better late than never . . . The Basil Rathbones paid a mere $200,000 for a five-story house on East 92d street in New York. Meanwhile, they've also rented a summer place in Connecticut. Evidently Ouida has shaken the Hollywood dust from Basil's boots . . . "The Little Foxes" is being transformed into an operetta by Mark Blitzstein, who's also writing the score . . . The Fred Astaires are back in town for the Hollywood Park races. But when Fred learned his horse had been scratched one day, he scratched his presence at the park for the same length of time . . . Two years ago when I suggested that Charlie Chaplin be deported after the Joan Berry case, a roar went up here. Now I see that Representative John Rankin is advocating the same thing. Tennessee is not alone in frowning on Charlie's new picture.

Going Their Ways

Richard Ney is back in town and again living at the Charles Mendl house after a week's visit with Greer Garson at Del Monte. If those two have reconciled, they're still living under separate roofs . . . Martin Kosleck, actor and painter, married Felix Mendelssohn's daughter, Eleanora, May 27, in Michigan, where the bride was playing in "The Two Mrs. Carrolls." They'll spend the summer here.

Md. Asks PSC Reject Phone Rate Increase

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—The State of Maryland today requested the Public Service Commission to refuse an annual rate increase of $2,800,000 sought by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The requested findings, signed by People's Counsel Philip H. Dorsey, jr., Attorney General Hall Hammond and Deputy Attorney General Richard W. Emory, also recommended that a $3,500,000 temporary rate increase granted by the commission in February be made permanent.

Although the State intervened in the case about a month ago, it has taken no active part in the hearings which have been held before the commission for the past two months.

In the letter of transmittal accompanying the requested findings, Hammond said he trusted they would be "of material assistance to the commission" in its determination of the case.

"We have recognized that the telephone company must be granted a substantial increase in its rates in order to earn a fair return," Hammond said, but added that the February increase will permit the company to earn an additional net operating income of $2,094,000 after taking into account the rise in operating costs due to recent wage increases.

The letter then suggested that the second rate boost was asked because "it is human nature to ask for more than you believe you can obtain in order to achieve that to which you are entitled."

Conductor Knows His Rail Tickets—From 1907 to Now

Roanoke, Va., June 20 (AP).—C. L. Harper, veteran Norfolk & Western Railway conductor, knows his tickets and he has no hesitation in saying so.

He is particularly emphatic on this as a result of a story—related by former Governor Colgate W. Darden, jr., with tongue in cheek—which Harper says has made his life "a howling madness by railroad men kidding me about that ticket."

"That ticket" is a reference to a 1907 train ticket which Darden said he saw the Powhatan Arrow conductor accept last Tuesday. Harper declared "Tain't so," and explained:

"A man got on in Lynchburg, gave his ticket which was new and good and later called me over to see this 1907 ticket.

"He showed me this old ticket as a relic and asked me if it was still good. I said it was. That's all there is to it."

Anyhow, adds Harper, "the ticket was as good as the day it was bought."

Paraguayan Teacher To Visit in Virginia

Richmond, Va., June 20 (AP).—Virginia will be paid a visit by Ramon Viveros, president of the Teachers Association of Paraguay, early next month, the State Department of Education was advised today.

Viveros, now in the United States on a teacher training fellowship in rural education, plans to come to Virginia July 7-11.

Who found her hotel room a trifle confining
And for an apartment one day started pining—
A place near her work in which she and a friend
Could eat, sleep and live in a well-balanced blend.
She placed a want ad in The Washington Post,
In hopes that some landlord would soon be her host.
Her hopes were well founded—in only two days
Mrs. Hussey and friend were invited to gaze
At four nice apartments. They settled on one,
Furnished, with rental not high as the sun.
Now they're happily settled on Fifteenth, northwest,
And they know, like so many, that Post ads are best,

WAA Sees a 'White Elephant'

U. S. Loans Used to Build Up Foreign Shipping, Says Sasscer

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) said in a radio broadcast tonight that construction of foreign merchant fleets which can operate cheaper than the American fleet is being subsidized indirectly by U. S. loans.

Sasscer charged America was making little effort to compete with this foreign shipping. He predicted there would be no shipbuilding in Baltimore or other ports next year "unless the Government clarifies its merchant marine program."

He said the American fleet, which had 56 million tons at the end of the war, "is now down to about 30 million tons, and is decreasing fast."

Only 64 ships are now under construction in this country, with 14 of them destined for foreign owners, the Congressman said, citing a "report which reached me not long ago."

At the same time, he said, Great Britain was building 464 new ships, Holland 91, Italy 87 and Sweden 66.

The only solution, he declared, is to subsidize both shipping and ship construction in the United States since the cost of operating American vessels at present is often 100 per cent or more above that of foreign ships, with foreign shipbuilding proportionately lower.

Auto Crash Suits Total $99,000

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 20.—Damages totaling $99,000 were asked in five suits filed in Circuit Court here Wednesday as the result of an auto collision on Route 11 near here July 25.

Plaintiffs are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Crawford of Berkeley County; their son, Allen, jr., aged 13 months; Mrs. Mary Marra of Clarksburg, W. Va.; and her daughter, Rose Joanne Marra, passengers in the Crawford vehicle.

Defendant is Howard Sober, Inc., of Springfield, Ohio, whose alleged representative, Henry Horner, was driving two large trucks in tandem from Massachusetts to Ohio. The suit says Horner attempted to pass an auto on the wrong side of a hill and crashed into the car driven by Crawford.

153 Graduated At 3 Schools in Prince Georges

Diplomas were awarded to 153 graduates in exercises held by three Prince Georges County high schools last night.

Largest class was at Greenbelt High School, where 94 seniors were addressed by Superintendent of Schools G. Gardner Shugart.

George R. Jones was awarded a four-year scholarship to Western Maryland College in competition among all schools in the county. A $250 nursing scholarship presented by the Greenbelt Women's Club was won by Carol Fredin. Kiwanis Club citizenship awards were given to Louise Steinle and Don Robinson.

Awards Presented

Faculty awards for outstanding service to the school were presented to Caroll Byerly and Harry Powers. Alison McDermid and Robert Scott received the American Legion scholarship, citizenship and attendance awards.

State Senator L. Harold Sothoron spoke at Surrattsville High School, where diplomas were presented to 28 students by O. W. Phair, board of education member.

Recipients of the Kiwanis Club awards for citizenship were Betty Lou Rawlings and Francis Collins, with the Sons of the American Revolution medals being presented to Ruth Roylance and Richard Duke. Margaret Cochrane was awarded a scholarship to Strayer College.

31 At Lakeland

Diplomas were presented to 31 members of the graduating class of Lakeland High School by Mrs. Edna Pitts, also a member of the board of education.

County P-TA $100 scholarship awards were presented to Gloria Selden and Carroll Marshall by Dr. H. Allen Griffith, Berwyn physician. Samuel Briggs and Miss Selden received American Legion scholarship awards and Doris Prather, Joyce Mayes and Laverne Tolson were awarded prizes in the County Tuberculosis Association essay contest.

Richmond, Va., June 20 (AP).—Dr. J. H. Kolb, head of the Department of Rural Sociology, will be among the speakers at the Virginia summer school for rural ministers to be held at Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, July 14-18, it was announced here today.

Tobacconists Ask End of Trade Barriers

Virginia Beach, Va., June 20 (AP). The Tobacco Association of the United States today urged United States representatives at the Geneva International Trade Agreement Conference to "exert every effort to further and promote commerce between the nations by the elimination of discriminatory trade barriers, excessive tarff and quantative restrictions."

The association took the action at its annual convention in a resolution which declared that sale and consumption of American tobacco in foreign countries "is now seriously hampered and hindered by discriminatory tariff, duties, excessive tariff rates and quantative restrictions imposed by many nations."

In other business the association reelected Clyde B. Austin of Greenville, Tenn., as president and named a committee to study a proposal for amalgamation of the association with the Leaf Tobacco Association and the Burley Association.

Other officers named were three vice presidents, N. Mischaum of Wilson, N. C.; H. W. Jackson, jr., Richmond, Va., and J. E. Bohannon, Bowling Green, Ky.

New members elected to the board of governors are Alex Parker, Maysville, Ky.; Townes Lea, Danville, Va.; Shields Harvey, Durham, N. C.; P. C. Warwick, Richmond, Va.; L. Taylor Larus, Richmond, Va.; L. I. Gravely, jr., Rocky Mount, N. C.; E. W. Tucker, South Boston, Va.; J. S. Ficklen, jr., of Greenville, S. C., and Tom Austin, Greeneville, Tenn.

It was announced that the association's subcommittee which will meet at Raleigh, N. C., next Tuesday with committees representing warehousmen and growers to fix opening dates for flue-cured markets is composed of A. B. Carrington, jr., Danville, Va.; J. B. Roundtree, Lumberton, N. C.; Penn Watson, Wilson, N. C.; E. H. Turner, Richmond, Va., and R. R. Patterson, Danville, Va.

Linville Youth Wins Virginia Chicken Prize

Harrisonburg, Va., June 20 (AP). David Yoder of Linville, Rockingham County, was announced today as winner of the first State prize in the $10,000 national "Chicken of Tomorrow" contest after the judging held today at nearby Timberville.

The youthful poultry farmer and the next three winners will enter their birds in the regional contest at Athens, Ga., on June 26, and will compete in the national contest to be held next year.

There were 19 entries in the Virginia competition.

Other winners included Irvin Foltz of Luray, second prize; Dewey Stahl of Harrisonburg, third, and Howell F. Brown of Purcellville, fourth.

The remaining entries placed as follows: A. D. Lough, Harrisonburg, fifth; Heatwole Hatchery, Harrisonburg, sixth; H. W. Kelly, Ayletts, seventh; B. F. McDaniel, Luray, eighth; Elwood Dyfart, Woodstock, ninth; J. H. Bowman, Harrisonburg, tenth; Mrs. H. R. Talley, Columbia, eleventh; Mrs. Laura Garst, Bridgewater, twelfth, and Clark R. Showalter, Keezletown, thirteenth.

Each of the poultrymen entered 15 birds in the contests and 12 were judged. All the winning birds were reds with the exception of fourth prize, which was won by an entry of cornish.

Boone Sworn as State Secretary of Maryland

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—Bertram L. Boone, 2d, an administrative assistant to Governor Lane last January, was sworn in at the executive offices here today as secretary of State of Maryland.

Japs Hanged at Guam

DIE ON ROPE—Convicted on war crimes charges, these Japanese were hanged the night of June 19 on the Island of Guam. They are (from left) Vice Admiral Koho Abe, former ranking naval commander in the Marshalls; Capt. Noboru Nakajima, who beat an American flier to death on Chichi Jima, and Superior Pvt. Kiyoshi Takahashi, convicted of murder and cannibalism

WAKE COMMANDER AMONG THEM—Along with the three other Japanese war criminals hanged at Guam were (from left) Lieut. Col. Kikuji Ito, who had American fliers bayoneted to death; Seaman Kaji Shoji, condemned for murder and cannibalism, and Rear Admiral Shigematsu Sakiababa, Jap commander of Wake Island, guilty of the machine gun massacre of 98 Americans on the island base

Students Again Visit Maryland Hall of Records

Annapolis, Md., June 20 (AP).—Graduate students are once more making the Maryland Hall of Records their summer haunt, another sign that the war is over, according to Dr. Morris L. Radoff, State archivist.

Radoff says that during the war there were virtually no special students coming to look over Maryland records which go back to early colonial times seeking material for scholarly dissertations.

At least six have arranged to come to the hall this summer to study various subjects.

Among the studies to be made or which have been made are "Land Speculation in the Eighteenth Century," "The Life of Daniel Dulany the Elder," "The Protestant Carrolls," "Problems of the Tobacco Raising States in the First Half of the Nineteenth Century," and "Land Tenure in Eighteenth Century Maryland."

Two of the graduate students came from Iowa, one from the University of Maryland and one of them was a nun working for a doctorate.

Maryland Pilots Plan Flight Today For Air Tour Week

Maryland's private pilots will tour the Free State from the mountains to the sea today in observance of National Air Tour Week.

Nucleus of the flight will take off from Glen Burnie Airport near Baltimore at 9:30 a. m., fly over Rutherford Airport at Woodlawn, Smith Avenue Airport at Pimlico, Westminster's Stevens, heading for a first stop at Frederick at 10:20 a. m.

A buffet lunch and inspection of the Fairchild Packet cargo-carrying plane is scheduled at Hagerstown at 11:30 before the flight takes off for Congressional Airport in nearby Maryland.

The tour is expected to bring out 200 pilots and 100 planes by the time it has visited Lee Airport at Annapolis, Easton's Municipal, Salisbury for a final banquet at Rehoboth, Del.

Farrer, New York City, director of the educational division, National Association of Insurance Agents, and P. J. Leen, Chicago, Fireman's Fund Insurance Co.

Meeting Is Called To Draw Report On Cheltenham

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—A meeting of the Board of Public Welfare and the board of the Cheltenham School for Boys has been called for next Friday at the request of Governor Lane, Director of Welfare J. Milton Patterson said today.

At the same time, Thomas B. Sprague, chairman of the school board, said an eligible list of five candidates for superintendent of the school had been received. The job pays a minimum of $4500 a year, with home and maintenance.

Sprague said the joint boards would discuss conditions at Cheltenham and a report will be forwarded to Lane, who recently asserted that he wanted a "full report on the difficulties" under which the school is operating. Lane paid the school a surprise three-hour visit Tuesday, but did not discuss his tour.

AVC Plans 'Grass Roots' Member Drive

Special Dispatch to The Post

Milwaukee, Wis., June 19.—An ambitious "grassroots" membership campaign was mapped here today by the American Veterans Committee. "Workshop" sessions were being held preliminary to its second annual convention opening tomorrow. The membership drive would place emphasis on service at community levels instead of on policy and politics.

Charles G. Bolte of New York, outgoing national chairman of AVC, explained this change at a farewell press conference when he said the largest War II veterans group "must get away from the practice of merely passing resolutions denouncing bad guys and praising good guys."

As details were spelled out at Municipal Auditorium, an estimated 1500 delegates from every State and the District of Columbia jam-packed AVC's headquarters at the Hotel Schroeder registering for the largest convention veterans of World War II have yet held anywhere. A total of 2000 delegates, alternates and guests are expected.

Fifty of them, representing the 25 chapters of the Greater Washington area council, checked in during the day led by Council Chairman Joseph Clorety of 6007 Newell Court, Silver Spring. Washington Chapter No. 1, among the largest in AVC with 1800 members, is limited this year to only 10 delegates and as many alternates by a new maximum representation rule which may cut the influence it exerted on AVC organization a year ago at the Des Moines Constitutional Convention.

Chapter members will be in the thick of it, however, because their chairman, Robert Nathan, of 2500 Q st. nw., an economist, has drafted the projected domestic platform containing such highly controversial issues as opposition to a Federal bonus, opposition to universal military training and planks dealing with labor and housing which are not radical enough to suit the extreme left-wing group within the organization.

Like the National organization, the Greater Washington area council is split on internal policy issues between the so-called liberal and left wing factions. A group not in harmony with the Nathan views is represented here by eight members of the Gorge Washington University chapter headed by Don Rothenberg, of 915 F st. sw.

The factional split will appear in differences on issues rather than in the anticipated fight over a successor to "Chuck" Bolte as national chairman largely because the left-wing lacks the delegate strength to elect a national deader, these spokesmen said.

Furious politicking is already underway for the chairmanship with two Washingtonians well out in front. They are Chat Paterson of 1725 17th st. nw., the AVC's national legislative representative, and Robert White, a lawyer, who moved from Washington to Akron, Ohio, only a fortnight ago to open a law practice there.

Paterson reportedly has the backing of Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., and Nathan, both influential as members of AVC's National Planning Committee, while outgoing Chairman Bolte is said to favor Richard Bolling of Kansas City, an organizer for the Americans for Democratic Action.

This apparent top-level split is being resolved tonight in an organization-wide caucus that may not only clarify the picture by eliminating nearly a score of "favorite son" candidates but may agree on a single organization candidate to buck the strategy of the left wing.

The leftist group is said to be pushing the candidacy of Michael Straight, young publisher of the New Republic, as a leader potentially acceptable to all elements. Elections are scheduled for Sunday morning.

The plenary convention session opens tomorrow with addresses by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, and Bishop Bernard T. Shiel of Chicago.

Dance Tonight

Takoma Recreation Center, 4th and Van Buren sts. nw., will have the first of its summer outdoor dances for teenagers tonight at 8:45 on its tennis court.

JOBS FOR YOU IN JAPAN
Young men: often you've dreamed of travel to foreign countries, seeing how other people live, visiting curious sights of world renown. Now that spring has come to Japan, this is your chance—at last!

If you measure up to the Regular Army's high standards, you can sign up for 3 years with one of the famed divisions now backing up General MacArthur's occupation program in Japan. Occupation duties include a wide variety of opportunities in specialized skills, trades and administration — all while you're drawing full pay!

Clubs, resort hotels, ball parks are well-equipped for active sportsmen. Dance bands add zip to unit parties. Competitive sports keep men fit the year 'round. No wonder General MacArthur and his men are doing such a good job—a history-making job.

If you are 18 to 34 inclusive (17 with parents' consent), visit your nearest U. S. Army Recruiting Station immediately! U. S. Army Recruiting Station, 403 10th st. nw., Washington 4, D. C.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Lieut. Comdr. Young Says, "On Your Feet, Men"

TEN-SHUN!!

The morning mail brings a stirring indictment of male car riders from Lieut. Comdr. H. S. Young.

Commander Young agrees that since women are competing with men in the business world, they should no longer expect those little extra courtesies they used to get.

But the commander thinks we're carrying equality too far when we permit mothers with babies in their arms, elderly crippled women, or expectant mothers to stand in streetcars, while men occupy the seats.

What makes Comdr. Young's letter particularly interesting is the fact that the Commander is a gal. She's Harriet S. (Toni) Young, of 5863 Chevy Chase Parkway.

WARNING!

There's a panhandler operating in the vicinity of 15th and K sts. nw., with a variation of an old, old racket.

He's a nice looking young fellow, small, and neatly dressed. He usually "works" at night.

He approaches his victims politely, and explains that he has just lost his wallet and needs 60 cents to wire home for money.

If your reaction is to help a guy in distress—suppress it. He's strictly on the mooch.

Tell him to send his telegram collect, and watch how quickly he disappears to hunt up another sucker.

HOW TO "FIX" A TICKET

Charlie's story is the dizziest of the week.

"My boss bought a car, and I was assigned to drive him wherever he went.

"Everything went fine until I got a parking ticket. I couldn't pay it, because the first thing the cop at the precinct asks for is your driver's license—and I had never gotten around to getting one.

"So I went to the boss and said, 'Boss, you'll have to take my money and go pay the ticket. I don't have a license.'

"He looked kind of sheepish and replied, 'Charlie, I don't have one, either. That's why I had you drive me around.'"

"So I had to take two days off and get a license, so that I could pay the ticket."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Friendly, lovable white husky dog" would like to hear from householder with large yard. Object: Place to romp. Call DEcatur 1698 evenings or Sunday.

"Six cute little kittens, one male and five female."—Metropolitan 0770.

DOUBLE-HEADER

Where would a columnist be without his cab drivers as source material?

Yesterday I encountered two stories on two successive trips. First I drew a driver who was chuckling to himself.

"What's so funny," I asked.

"Oh, I was just thinking about what happened to me a few minutes ago. I took a fare out to St. Elizabeths, and as I was about to pull away, a guy jumps in my cab and says 'Take me to New York.'

"I got rid of him as gently as I could, and then I found a guard and said, 'Hey, one of your guests must have gotten loose. He tried to get me to take him to New York.'

"The guard just laughed and said, 'Oh, pay no attention to him. He does that to all the cab drivers. When they get to the front gate he hops out and thanks them for the ride.'"

Shortly afterward, I ran into a middle-aged hacker who used to be a prizefighter, and told me of some of his experiences.

"How did you make out in the ring?" I asked. "Did you get anything out of it?"

"Lord, yes," he answered. "I got all my teeth knocked out, I got a busted nose, six broken ribs and two cauliflower ears; and my manager got a beautiful house on 16th st."

THE WASHINGTON POST
Saturday, June 21, 1947

Grin and Bear It

"It is a dastardly lie to say my committee is engaged in a 'witch hunt'—when, may I ask, have we ever investigated a mother-in-law?"

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

You are declarer of today's four-heart contract and West opens the king of diamonds. Study only the North-South cards and the bidding, then plan your play.

Today's Hand

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠AQJ3 ♡965 ◇9764 ♣Q5 | |
| ♠1095 ♡K10 ◇AKQJ 53 ♣42 | NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH | ♠8764 ♡J84 ◇2 ♣9876 3 |
| | ♠K3 ♡AQ732 ◇108 ♣AKJ10 | |

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1◇ | Pass | Pass | Dble |
| 2◇ | 2♠ | Pass | 3♡ |
| Pass | 4♡ | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: K◇.

South wins game by properly handling his trump suit. He trumps the third round of diamonds and sees that he can afford to give up only one heart trick. The usul safety play in this situation is to lay lown the heart ace, enter dummy and lead a low heart toward the closed hand. If East does not come up with the king, South decides on the basis of the cards that have already been played whether or not to put up the queen.

Declarer cashes the heart ace, leads a club to the queen and returns a trump. When the king does not appear from East, declarer follows small, placing West with the king on the bidding. West takes the king, but declarer wins the return, draws East's remaining trump with the queen and claims the balance of the tricks.

South makes his four-heart contract, losing two diamonds and one heart.

If declarer finesses his heart queen on the first lead of the suit, he will lose a second trump trick for down one.
